PREPARE FOR 'GREATEST' DRY DRIVE

NEXT YEAR TO SEE INTENSIVE PROHIB MOVE

"Grand Offensive" Against Liquor Runners and Violators To Be Launched By General Andrews September 1--"Big Business" To Assist.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—The next year is to witness the most intensive drive ever undertaken by the government to enforce one of its laws.

It is aimed to make prohibition really effective. It is to be the "grand offensive" against rum runners, alcohol manufacturers, warehouse robbers and the multitude of smaller conspirators, who have waxed fat since 1920 and whose operations have kept the big cities and the Atlantic seaboard in a more or less moist state during that time.

September first is the "zero hour" for the attack to be launched. By that date, General Lincoln C. Andrews hopes to have his re-assembled enforcement machine all set for the big push.

Behind these more or less known facts, a number of sensational and quasi-sensational stories are circulating in Washington, one of which at least is sensational enough to have engaged the attention of congressmen and caused no little excitement on Capitol hill.

Stripped of its unessential detail it is this:

The administration has determined for one year to drive with every arm of the government's law enforcement organization to really enforce prohibition.

Politics is to be driven as nearly completely out of the situation as it is ever possible to drive politics out of anything connected with a government activity.

To Attack Supply Source.

The main drive will be conducted not at the hip toter and the home brewer, but at the bootlegging industry's source of supply, which is industrial alcohol. Once cut off from the basic supply of raw alcohol and the props are knocked out of the business.

At the end of this one year's grand offensive to enforce the law, after the government has thrown every gun against the bootlegger and alcohol industry, leaders will take stock of the situation.

If it is found then that appreciable progress has been made, if it is found that it is really possible to enforce prohibition insofar as the commercial aspects of the law breaking industry are concerned, the drive will continue into another year.

If little progress is made, if it is still possible to buy liquor on almost any corner in the big cities, if the graft and corruption are found to still flourish, then these leaders, with administration backing, will prepare to go before congress and recommend that the Volstead law be modified on the ground that prohibition is incapable of adequate enforcement.

"Big Business" To Aid.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Big business of the type exemplified by John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford and Charles M. Schwab, is coming to the aid of the government in its forthcoming grand offensive against the liquor business. Heads of some of the largest business concerns in the country

GREEK TROOPS ON BULGAR FRONTIER

Soldiers Convicted of 'Red' Activities Will Go to Island

HONOLULU, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Privs. Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, under arrest and sentenced for communistic activities among soldiers of Scofie'd barracks here, will be sent by the authorities to Alcatraz island on the transport Cambria, August 8, it was announced here today.

Crouch, 24, a University of Deleaware graduate, and Trumbull, 26, were arrested and charged with attempting to form a secret organization among their fellows and with circulating seditious matter advocating communism.

They were convicted and held by army authorities despite tempts through civil courts to secure their release on habeas corpus proceedings.

Makes Flight With Cargo of Half Dollars

VANCOUVER, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Lieut. Oakley C. Kelly, carrying three-quarters of a ton of silver in half dollars and having Donald Sterling, managing editor of the Oregon Journal, as a passenger, arrived at Pearson fields here at 6:20 p. m., after having completed a flight to San Francisco and return in ten hours, forty-five minutes elapsed time.

Kelly brought back with him 50,000 newly minted half dollars which will be sold at $1 each, the proceeds to be used in furthering the plans of the Fort Vancouver centenary celebration.

This is the first time on record that a flight has been made from San Francisco and return between daylight and dark.

ITALIAN KING FREES MANY

Between 10,000 and 15,000 Political Prisoners Released By King Victor Emanuel On Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Accession Throne.

ROME, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Between 10,000 and 15,000 political prisoners, charged with various offenses against the state, received freedom under an amnesty decree which King Victor Emanuel signed today in recognition of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the throne.

It was on August 1, 1900, that the youthful prince of the house of Savoy came to the throne through the assassination of his father, King Humbert.

His act in freeing these thousands of political prisoners, it is hoped, will have a quieting effect on the rather troublous currents of Italian politics, inflamed somewhat by the stern insistence of the Mussolini government that it will brook no opposition to the program it has determined upon for Italy's salvation.

It is regarded by some as a gesture that the powers which rule Italy can be merciful as well as stern in their administration.

Chief of the prisoners and of special importance in view of the political significance of the prosecution are the men charged with the murder of Signor Matteoti, the anti-fascistic leader.

Signor Salvemi, imprisoned under charges brought against him because of his writings against the government, is among those freed under the amnesty decree.

In numerous cases prisoners other than political, whose sentences were not wiped out by the amnesty decree, had their terms of servitude reduced by from two to four years.

BANK DEPOSITS IN BIG GAIN

Nebraska's State Institutions Report $30,000,000 Increase Over Last Year's Total, Says Secretary Kirk Griggs.

$267,000,000 TOTAL NEARS 1920 RECORD

An increase of more than $33,000,000 in deposits of Nebraska's state banks is revealed by a summary of conditions as they existed on June 30, last, in comparison with the date of July 21, 1924, prepared and given out from the office of State Trade and Commerce Secretary Kirk Griggs. The deposits aggregated over $267,000,000, or within $11,000,000 of the peak attained in February 1920, just before the collapse of the post-war inflation boom.

This extremely favorable showing, in spite of the fact that there are ten fewer banks in existence now than a year ago, is regarded by Secreary Griggs as unmistakeable evidence of the improvement that has taken place in the state's banking situation in recent months. It is all the more remarkable because the June statements this year did not include any returns from the whetat harvest, as they did on the July date of 1924 when the reports were made.

June sometimes marks the low point of the year in volume of bank deposits: but this year the total for June 30 is a million and a half above that on March 31, when the last inventory was taken.

Expect Record in September.

It is possible that the next statements, which will be called for probably in September, may register a gain sufficient to top the high record of $298,000,000 reached in the early part of 1920.

Here are a few comparasions which show how the state banks have this year been retrieving the ground lost during the previous period of financial adversity:

Loans and discounts—July last year $213,611,031; March this year, $221 669,656; June this year $220,351.372.

Cash reserve—July last year, $51,443,953, or 20.2 per cent; March this year, $64,060.905, or 22.4 per cent; June this year, 63,536,141, or 22.1 per cent.

The number of banks a year ago was 925. Consolidations and a few failures have reduced it to 915. but the individual banks have gained enough so that, as a group, their status has been greatly strengthened.

Encouraging, Says Griggs.

"This is a most encouraging synopsis," said Secretary Griggs, "and

REFORMATORY TRUSTY GONE

Leo Farrow, Serving 1 to 3 Year Sentence For Breaking and Entering, Makes His Escape Saturday Afternoon.

Leo Farrow, 21 years old, trusty at the state reformatory for men, disappeared Saturday afternoon and up to late Saturday evening no trace of him had been found, Superintendent Gus Miller reported.

The missing man was sentenced from Geneva, Clay county, on August 23, 1924, with a 1 to 3 year term for breaking and entering. He had been at the reformatory since last September, and a trusty outside on the farm for the last seven months.

His absence was not noticed until the 5 o'clock count. He was working as late as 2 o'clock, as far back as Superintendent Miller was able to trace him.

Farrow was dressed in his work clothes when seen last, but the superintendent was inclined to think he wouldn't be in those long. He probably walked out along the road for a mile or two, and caught a ride in a passing automobile, Miller thought.

Farrow is 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has brown eyes and hair, and a very deeply tanned complexion. Farrow had been at Kearney twice before he was committed to the men's reformatory.

"He was quiet," said Superintendent Miller, "and he was a hard worker. He had had better chances than this to leave. He had been out alone after dark. But he just walked away.

"Oh, we'll get him," the superintendent asserted Saturday evening. "Not many of them get away. All but the last three have been accounted for. Those last three were the only ones who ever made their 'get away' good." And he expects them to turn up some day, if not back at the men's reformatory, at some state prison.

CLAIMS SCOTT'S ALLEGED CRIME IS REALLY HIS

John Gordon, Held In Wichita, "Confesses" Killing Joseph Maurer.

Officials Place No Credence In Story—Charged With Other Crimes.

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 2.—(U. P.)—John Gordon, held by authorities here on two first degree robbery charges, and accused in several other robberies and one criminal assault, today confessed, according to county authorities, that he is the man who killed Joseph Maurer, Chicago drug clerk, and for whose death Russell Scott is sentenced to hang.

Declaring that he has gone under many assumed names, but that his real name is Donald Allen Curly, "Gordon" today told officers whom he had summoned saying he wanted to confess, that he killed Maurer while he was attempting to hold up a drug store and that an innocent man is condemned to die.

Gordon was insistent in declaring that it was he and not Scott who killed Maurer.

Several persons claiming to be eyewitnesses to the slaying of the young drug clerk positively identified Russell Scott as the murderer when they testified at Scott's trial in Chicago.

Russell has maintained his innocence, declaring that his fugitive brother, Robert, fired the fatal shot. He has never accused a third—or unknown person—as the slayer.

Officials placed no credence in Gordon's "confession." They suggested that perhaps Gordon was attempting to lay the basis for a plea of insanity when he is brought to trial on other criminal charges.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Chicago authorities tonight placed no credence in the "confession" of John Gordon that he murdered Joseph Maurer, a crime for which Russell Scott is under sentence to hang.

Cap. William Shoemaker of the detective bureau, said Gordon apparently was "posing for a purpose," presumably to establish an insanity basis in one of his own trials.

At the jail where Scott awaits a sanity hearing, beginning Monday, it was said that the former "boy millionaire" probably would not be informed of Gordon's story.

Scott's attorneys said they had never heard of Gordon.

TAX REDUCTION STEPS ARE TO BEGIN AT ONCE

FIGHT OVER $5,000 EXEMPTION LOOMING

Treasury Head Opposes Slash In Tax Rate For Incomes Under $5,000 But May Agree To Slight Reduction After Study.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.—With the return here next week of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, tax reduction steps will be begun in preparation of definite plans to be laid before the house ways and means committee.

Statistics thus far compiled by experts have been submitted to President Coolidge for his information in drafting the administration's policy.

Both the small and the large taxpayer must be beneficiaries of the new revenue law, according to letters received by the treasury from members of both branches of congress.

The exemption clause may be increased to $5,000, according to expectations. Such an exemption would cut about $150,000,000 annually off the government's revenue and decrease the number of taxpayers by nearly 7,000,000.

Should the exemption be increased, the government would have to rely on about 1,000,000 in-

TWO ARE HURT BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Minnie Nelson and Niece Hit While Alighting From Streetcar.

Mrs Minnie Nelson, 2034 F street, widow of Bengt Nelson, suffered one or more fractured ribs and a fractured ankle and sustained a scalp wound when she was struck to the pavement and run over by a passing automobile as she was alighting from a street car at Twentieth and G streets Saturday at 3:30 p. m. The hind wheels of the machine dragged her several feet before it was stopped.

Miss Adeline Altine of Saronville, Neb., a niece of Mrs. Nelson, was injured at the same time, but she escaped serious injury by clinging to a front fender of the automobile until it stopped. She was bruised and suffered some shock, but no broken bones were found on the first examination at the Lincoln general hospital. Dr. E. J. Fleetwood took charge of the case.

John Kehm, 945 South Sixth street, driver of the Durant touring car which struck the two women, was arrested by Patrol Driver Edwards, on charges of driving with faulty brakes and of passing a street car halted to unload passengers. He was released to appear in police court Monday. Kehm was driving slowly but his brakes failed to hold when he suddenly came upon the two women in his path, according to police information.

One of the rear wheels came to rest on Mrs. Nelson's back and had to be lifted from her. By clinging to a front fender, Miss Altine avoided being badly injured beneath the car. Castle, Roper and Matthews' ambulance rushed the victims to the Lincoln general hospital.

Both the street car and the automobile were traveling east. Kehm said he did not know the street car was going to stop and did not see the women until just before his auto knocked them down.

Attacks Settlement Of British Strike By Subsidizing of Mines

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—The Baldwin government's provisional settlement of the coal strike, through a subsidy to the mines, was attacked today by Lloyd-George in a speech in which he characterized the step as one of the most serious ever taken by any government in an industrial crisis.

Lloyd George foresaw that a reorganization of the coal business must come. Subsidies, he felt, established a dangerous precedent and taxpayers could not meet the strain of added taxes forever.

Meantime Secretary Cramp of the railway men's union expressed the result as "not a complete victory for labor," but at least a success in avoiding what he deemed an attempt to push the miners "below the absolute poverty level."

U. S. JOINING TO COME SOON SAYS PEPPER

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—The United States will enter the world court without insisting that the court be entirely divorced from the League of Nations, Senator George Wharton Pepper, Pennsylvania, said tonight at the summer white house here.

Pepper is a house guest of President Coolidge over the week-end. His visit is social, but he is prepared to discuss the world court question if the president so desires.

Pepper, who sponsored one of the world court proposals which was not acted upon at the last session of congress, predicts the senate will adopt a resolution permitting the president to make the United States a member of the court.

The senator made it clear that he was strongly opposed to this government becoming part and parcel of the league itself, but that under his new proposal the United States could be in the world court without becoming involved, through the court, in the league.

He expained in detail his views on the situation in an interview after he had been received by Mr. Coolidge. The senate agreed to take up the world court proposal on December 17.

Predicts "Amendment."

"The resolution of adherence will carry into effect the Harding proposal as enlarged upon by Mr. Coolidge. "Pepper said. Ho pointed out that Presidents Harding and Coolidge had avoided the use of the word "reservations" and said that the conditions upon which he thought this country would enter the court would be in the form of an "amendment" to the treaty which created the court. The resolution would assure senate's consent to adherence, conditional upon President Coolidge's ability to get the forty-eight nations which have signed the world court treaty to accept the amendment, he said.

The amendment would provide that the United States will have voting power in the court without

GRAIN MARKET INQUIRY NEARS

CUTTEN CREDITED WITH HARVEST OF $250,000

Two Traders Forced To Default And Complaints Are Lodged — Many Support Cutten In His Denial Of "Corner."

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Rumblings of a financial war and almost certain investigation of the Chicago board of trade were heard along La Salle street, Chicago's avenue of finance, today as a result of Arthur W. Cutten's spectacular coup in the wheat pit.

Cutten, who first gained financial prominence because of his sensational earnings in the corn market, is credited with reaping a harvest of at least $250.000 in the wheat pit yesterday when he sold his stored holdings at sharply advanced prices to dealers who were "short" and were forced to buy at any price.

Reports that Secretary of Agriculture Jardine would launch an inquiry to ascertain whether a "corner" in the wheat had been negotiated were freely circulated in the financial district, but they had no influence on the market, grain prices making further gains at the Saturday session.

Two Handlers Default.

Because Cutten hung tightly to his wheat and refused to sell until buyers met his price, two large grain handlers were forced to default—one for 75,000 bushels and another for 20,000 bushels. The latter, John Barrett, complained to the board of trade directors that there was a "corner" in the July wheat market. His charges are to be investigated by Frank Carey, president of the board.

While most members of the board supported Cutter in denying charges of a corner, many of them suggested that Cutter may have operated a successful squeeze.

Lines were drawn between Cutten and his supporters and those friendly to the defaulting firms and many operators predicted a desperate financial struggle for supremacy.

Rodes and 54 Of "Near" Relatives Arrive In Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—San Francisco was treated to a rare sight today.

And the whole darn town is chuckling.

He is taking them on a trip over the United States.

He described himself as a former West Virginia coal miner. He said he arrived in Florida with a few dimes fifteen years ago and was in moderate circumstances until a year ago when the real estate boom hit that state.

Then he unexpectedly made more than a million dollars.

"I've all the money I'll ever need," he said. "From now on it's enjoy life and make others enjoy it too."

PREPARE FOR 'GREATEST' DRY DRIVE

NEXT YEAR TO SEE INTENSIVE PROHIB MOVE

"Grand Offensive" Against Liquor Runners and Violators To Be Launched By General Andrews September 1--"Big Business" To Assist.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—The next year is to witness the most intensive drive ever undertaken by the government to enforce one of its laws.

It is aimed to make prohibition really effective. It is to be the "grand offensive" against rum runners, alcohol manufacturers, warehouse robbers and the multitude of smaller conspirators, who have waxed fat since 1920 and whose operations have kept the big cities and the Atlantic seaboard in a more or less moist state during that time.

September first is the "zero hour" for the attack to be launched. By that date, General Lincoln C. Andrews hopes to have his re-assembled enforcement machine all set for the big push.

Behind these more or less known facts, a number of sensational and quasi-sensational stories are circulating in Washington, one of which at least is sensational enough to have engaged the attention of congressmen and caused no little excitement on Capitol hill.

Stripped of its unessential detail it is this:

The administration has determined for one year to drive with every arm of the government's law enforcement organization to really enforce prohibition.

Politics is to be driven as nearly completely out of the situation as it is ever possible to drive politics out of anything connected with a government activity.

To Attack Supply Source.

The main drive will be conducted not at the hip toter and the home brewer, but at the bootlegging industry's source of supply, which is industrial alcohol. Once cut off from the basic supply of raw alcohol and the props are knocked out of the business.

At the end of this one year's grand offensive to enforce the law, after the government has thrown every gun against the bootlegger and alcohol industry, leaders will take stock of the situation.

If it is found then that appreciable progress has been made, if it is found that it is really possible to enforce prohibition insofar as the commercial aspects of the law breaking industry are concerned, the drive will continue into another year.

If little progress is made, if it is still possible to buy liquor on almost any corner in the big cities, if the graft and corruption are found to still flourish, then these leaders, with administration backing, will prepare to go before congress and recommend that the Volstead law be modified on the ground that prohibition is incapable of adequate enforcement.

"Big Business" To Aid.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Big business of the type exemplified by John D. Rockefeller, Henry Ford and Charles M. Schwab, is coming to the aid of the government in its forthcoming grand offensive against the liquor business. Heads of some of the largest business concerns in the country

Crouch, 24, a University of Delaware graduate, and Trumbull, 26, were arrested and charged with attempting to form a secret organization among their fellows and with circulating seditious matter advocating communism.

They were convicted and held by army authorities despite tempts through civil courts to secure their release on habeas corpus proceedings.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 Political Prisoners Released By King Victor Emanuel On Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Accession Throne.

ROME, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Between 10,000 and 15,000 political prisoners, charged with various offenses against the state, received freedom under an amnesty decree which King Victor Emanuel signed today in recognition of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the throne.

It was on August 1, 1900, that the youthful prince of the house of Savoy came to the throne through the assassination of his father, King Humbert.

His act in freeing these thousands of political prisoners, it is hoped, will have a quieting effect on the rather troublous currents of Italian politics, inflamed somewhat by the stern insistence of the Mussolini government that it will brook no opposition to the program it has determined upon for Italy's salvation.

It is regarded by some as a gesture that the powers which rule Italy can be merciful as well as stern in their administration.

Chief of the prisoners and of special importance in view of the political significance of the prosecution are the men charged with the murder of Signor Matteoti, the anti-fascistic leader.

Signor Salvemini, imprisoned under charges brought against him because of his writings against the government, is among those freed under the amnesty decree.

In numerous cases prisoners other than political, whose sentences were not wiped out by the amnesty decree, had their terms of servitude reduced by from two to four years.

BANK DEPOSITS IN BIG GAIN

An increase of more than $33,000,000 in deposits of Nebraska's state banks is revealed by a summary of conditions as they existed on June 30, last, in comparison with the date of July 21, 1924, prepared and given out from the office of State Trade and Commerce Secretary Kirk Griggs. The deposits aggregated over $287,000,000, or within $11,000,000 of the peak attained in February 1920, just before the collapse of the post-war inflation boom.

This extremely favorable showing, in spite of the fact that there are ten fewer banks in existence now than a year ago, is regarded by Secreary Griggs as unmistakeable evidence of the improvement that has taken place in the state's banking situation in recent months. It is all the more remarkable because the June statements this year did not include any returns from the whetat harvest, as they did on the July date of 1924 when the reports were made.

June sometimes marks the low point of the year in volume of bank deposits; but this year the total for June 30 is a million and a half above that on March 31, when the last inventory was taken.

Expect Record in September.

It is possible that the next statements, which will be called for probably in September, may register a gain sufficient to top the high record of $298,000,000 reached in the early part of 1920.

Here are a few comparasions which show how the state banks have this year been retrieving the ground lost during the previous period of financial adversity:

Loans and discounts—July last year $213,611,031; March this year, $221,669,656; June this year $220,351,372.

Cash reserve—July last year, $51,443,053, or 20.2 per cent; March this year, $64,060,905, or 22.4 per cent; June this year, 63,536,141, or 22.1 per cent.

The number of banks a year ago was 925. Consolidations and a few failures have reduced it to 915, but the individual banks have gained enough so that, as a group, their status has been greatly strengthened.

Encouraging, Says Griggs.

Leo Farrow, Serving 1 to 3 Year Sentence For Breaking and Entering, Makes His Escape Saturday Afternoon.

Leo Farrow, 21 years old, trusty at the state reformatory for men, disappeared Saturday afternoon and up to late Saturday evening no trace of him had been found, Superintendent Gus Miller reported.

The missing man was sentenced from Geneva, Clay county, on August 23, 1924, with a 1 to 3 year term for breaking and entering. He had been at the reformatory since last September, and a trusty outside on the farm for the last seven months.

His absence was not noticed until the 5 o'clock count. He was working as late as 2 o'clock, as far back as Superintendent Miller was able to trace him.

Farrow was dressed in his work clothes when seen last, but the superintendent was inclined to think he wouldn't be in those long. He probably walked out along the road for a mile or two, and caught a ride in a passing automobile, Miller thought.

Farrow is 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has brown eyes and hair, and a very deeply tanned complexion. Farrow had been at Kearney twice before he was committed to the men's reformatory.

"He was quiet," said Superintendent Miller, "and he was a hard worker. He had had better chances than this to leave. He had been out alone after dark. But he just walked away.

"Oh, we'll get him," the superintendent asserted Saturday evening. "Not many of them get away. All but the last three have been accounted for. Those last three were the only ones who ever made their 'get away' good." And he expects them to turn up some day, if not back at the men's reformatory, at some state prison.

CLAIMS SCOTT'S ALLEGED CRIME IS REALLY HIS

John Gordon, Held In Wichita, "Confesses" Killing Joseph Maurer.

Officials Place No Credence In Story—Charged With Other Crimes.

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 2.—(U. P.)—John Gordon, held by authorities here on two first degree robbery charges, and accused in several other robberies and one criminal assault, today confessed, according to county authorities, that he is the man who killed Joseph Maurer, Chicago drug clerk, and for whose death Russell Scott is sentenced to hang.

Declaring that he has gone under many assumed names, but that his real name is Donald Allen Curly, "Gordon" today told officers whom he had summoned saying he wanted to confess, that he killed Maurer while he was attempting to hold up a drug store and that an innocent man is condemned to die.

Gordon was insistent in declaring that it was he and not Scott who killed Maurer.

Several persons claiming to be eyewitnesses to the slaying of the young drug clerk positively identified Russell Scott as the murderer when they testified at Scott's trial in Chicago.

Russell has maintained his innocence, declaring that his fugitive brother, Robert, fired the fatal shot. He has never accused a third—or unknown person—as the slayer.

Officials placed no credence in Gorden's "confession." They suggested that perhaps Gordon was attempting to lay the basis for a plea of insanity when he is brought to trial on other criminal charges.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Chicago authorities tonight placed no credence in the "confession" of John Gordon that he murdered Joseph Maurer, a crime for which Russell Scott is under sentence to hang.

Cap. William Shoemaker of the detective bureau, said Gordon apparently was "posing for a purpose," presumably to establish an insanity basis in one of his own trials.

At the jail where Scott awaits a sanity hearing, beginning Monday, it was said that the former "boy millionaire" probably would not be informed of Gordon's story.

Scott's attorneys said they had never heard of Gordon.

TAX REDUCTION STEPS ARE TO BEGIN AT ONCE

FIGHT OVER $5,000 EXEMPTION LOOMING

Treasury Head Opposes Slash In Tax Rate For Incomes Under $5,000 But May Agree To Slight Reduction After Study.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.—With the return here next week of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, tax reduction steps will be begun in preparation of definite plans to be laid before the house ways and means committee.

Statistics thus far compiled by experts have been submitted to President Coolidge for his information in drafting the administration's policy.

Both the small and the large taxpayer must be beneficiaries of the new revenue law, according to letters received by the treasury from members of both branches of congress.

The exemption clause may be increased to $5,000, according to expectations. Such an exemption would cut about $150,000,000 annually off the government's revenue and decrease the number of taxpayers by nearly 7,000,000.

Should the exemption be increased, the government would have to rely on about 1,000,000 in-

TWO ARE HURT BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Minnie Nelson and Niece Hit While Alighting From Streetcar.

Mrs. Minnie Nelson, 2034 F street, widow of Bengt Nelson, suffered one or more fractured ribs and a fractured ankle and sustained a scalp wound when she was struck to the pavement and run over by a passing automobile as she was alighting from a street car at Twentieth and G streets Saturday at 3:30 p. m. The hind wheels of the machine dragged her several feet before it was stopped.

Miss Adeline Altine of Saronville, Neb., a niece of Mrs. Nelson, was injured at the same time, but she escaped serious injury by clinging to a front fender of the automobile until it stopped. She was bruised and suffered some shock, but no broken bones were found on the first examination at the Lincoln general hospital. Dr. E. J. Fleetwood took charge of the case.

John Kehm, 945 South Sixth street, driver of the Durant touring car which struck the two women, was arrested by Patrol Driver Edwards, on charges of driving with faulty brakes and of passing a street car halted to unload passengers. He was released to appear in police court Monday. Kehm was driving slowly but his brakes failed to hold when he suddenly came upon the two women in his path, according to police information.

One of the rear wheels came to rest on Mrs. Nelson's back and had to be lifted from her. By clinging to a front fender, Miss Altine avoided being badly injured beneath the car. Castle, Roper and Matthews' ambulance rushed the victims to the Lincoln general hospital.

Both the street car and the automobile were traveling east. Kehm said he did not know the street car was going to stop and did not see the women until just before his auto knocked them down.

Attacks Settlement Of British Strike By Subsidizing of Mines

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—The Baldwin government's provisional settlement of the coal strike, through a subsidy to the mines, was attacked today by Lloyd-George in a speech in which he characterized the step as one of the most serious ever taken by any government in an industrial crisis.

Lloyd George foresaw that a reorganization of the coal business must come. Subsidies, he felt, established a dangerous precedent and taxpayers could not meet the strain of added taxes forever.

Meantime Secretary Cramp of the railway men's union expressed the result as "not a complete victory for labor," but at least a success in avoiding what he deemed an attempt to push the miners "below the absolute poverty level."

U. S. JOINING TO COME SOON SAYS PEPPER

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—The United States will enter the world court without insisting that the court be entirely divorced from the League of Nations, Senator George Wharton Pepper, Pennsylvania, said tonight at the summer white house here.

Pepper is a house guest of President Coolidge over the week-end. His visit is social, but he is prepared to discuss the world court question if the president so desires.

Pepper, who sponsored one of the world court proposals which was not acted upon at the last session of congress, predicts the senate will adopt a resolution permitting the president to make the United States a member of the court.

The senator made it clear that he was strongly opposed to this government becoming part and parcel of the league itself, but that under his new proposal the United States could be in the world court without becoming involved, through the court, in the league.

He expained in detail his views on the situation in an interview after he had been received by Mr. Coolidge. The senate agreed to take up the world court proposal on December 17.

Predicts "Amendment."

"The resolution of adherence will carry into effect the Harding proposal as enlarged upon by Mr. Coolidge. "Pepper said. He pointed out that Presidents Harding and Coolidge had avoided the use of the word "reservations" and said that the conditions upon which he thought this country would enter the court would be in the form of an "amendment" to the treaty which created the court. The resolution would assure senate's consent to adherence, conditional upon President Coolidge's ability to get the forty-eight nations which have signed the world court treaty to accept the amendment, he said.

The amendment would provide that the United States will have voting power in the court without

GRAIN MARKET INQUIRY NEARS

CUTTEN CREDITED WITH HARVEST OF $250,000

Two Traders Forced To Default And Complaints Are Lodged — Many Support Cutten In His Denial Of "Corner."

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Rumblings of a financial war and almost certain investigation of the Chicago board of trade were heard along La Salle street, Chicago's avenue of finance, today as a result of Arthur W. Cutten's spectacular coup in the wheat pit.

Cutten, who first gained financial prominence because of his sensational earnings in the corn market, is credited with reaping a harvest of at least $250,000 in the wheat pit yesterday when he sold his stored holdings at sharply advanced prices to dealers who were "short" and were forced to buy at any price.

Reports that Secretary of Agriculture Jardine would launch an inquiry to ascertain whether a "corner" in the wheat had been negotiated were freely circulated in the financial district, but they had no influence on the market, grain prices making further gains at the Saturday session.

Two Handlers Default.

Because Cutton hung tightly to his wheat and refused to sell until buyers met his price, two large grain handlers were forced to default—one for 75,000 bushels and another for 20,000 bushels. The latter, John Barrett, complained to the board of trade directors that there was a "corner" in the July wheat market. His charges are to be investigated by Frank Carey, president of the board.

While most members of the board supported Cutter in denying charges of a corner, many of them suggested that Cutter may have operated a successful squeeze.

Lines were drawn between Cutten and his supporters and those friendly to the defaulting firms and many operators predicted a desperate financial struggle for supremacy.

STERLING, Colo., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—A wind and hail storm that reached the proportion of a small tornado today swept over an area 6 miles long in the vicinity of Fleming and the Proctor-Crook district, east of this city, doing heavy damage to crops, blowing down several barn buildings, tearing up fences and unroofing other buildings and uprooting trees.

BUYS STOCK IN SUBURBAN BANK

H. D. Enslow Acquires Interest In Farmers State of College View.

H. D. Enslow purchased a block of stock Saturday in the Farmers State bank of College View from Vernon D. Andrews. Mr. Andrews retains a controlling interest and remains in his position as president. Mr. Enslow will become cashier, replacing H. E. Rosenbach who will devote his entire time to the management of the Hillcrest Jersey Farm Dairy, which he owns jointly with Mr. Andrews.

Mr. Enslow recently sold his lumber and hardware business in College View, known as the Harvey-Enslow Lumber Co., to S. S. Swift of the National Supply Co. Mr. Enslow has had banking experience, having been connected with the City Natonal bank of Lincoln several years ago.

Charles H. Lile who has been in the employ of the bank for the past year will become assistant cashier under the new arrangement.

Rodes and 54 Of "Near" Relatives Arrive In Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—San Francisco was treated to a rare sight today.

And the whole darn town is chuckling.

He is taking them on a trip over the United States.

He described himself as a former West Virginia coal miner. He said he arrived in Florida with a few dimes fifteen years ago and was in moderate circumstances until a year ago when the real estate boom hit that state.

Then he unexpectedly made more than a million dollars.

"I've all the money I'll ever need," he said. "From now on it's enjoy life and make others enjoy it too."

NATIONAL GUARD MEMBERS LEAVE FOR ENCAMPMENT

Sixteen Hundred Men to Train at Ashland August 3 to 17.

Some Forces Now Established In Tent City; Main Movement Monday.

Sixteen hundred officers and men of the Nebraska national guard will spend the next two weeks in their annual training camp at Ashland on the United States government's rifle range. Rifle target practice, physical exercises, frequent drills and maneuvers, parades, guard duty, demonstrations and lectures on military tactics will occupy most of the time each day.

The advance movement upon Ashland began Saturday and will continue Sunday, but the main mobilization of the guardsmen will come on Monday. They will assemble at home stations and board trains bound for camp. Those in western Nebraska will start their journey late Sunday night, in order to arrive Monday afternoon.

Detachments which began trekking to camp Saturday were mostly supply sections. Their business is to see that stores of food for the soldiers, fodder and feed for horses, ice and other things needed are on hand. Stoves will be put up in the semi-permanent camp kitchens, and plenty of wood will be provided for fuel. A number of trucks left Lincoln carrying baggage of the field hospital company here, which will be established in camp by Sunday afternoon or evening.

Adjutant General in Command.

Adjutant General H. J. Paul has gone ahead to Ashland and will be the commanding officer of the camp during its fifteen days' duration, August 3 to 17, inclusive. Major H. C. Stein of the quartermaster corps, who has charge of supplies, has also gone. Other staff officers will assist General Paul in looking after the various details of the camp.

Branches of the service which will participate are as follows:

The 35th division trains, 8 organizations, commanded by Major Marcus A. Potcet of Lincoln.

Quartermaster corps — Capt. Jack L. Meyer, Lincoln.

Medical regiment—Major J. F. Presnell, Lincoln.

It will devolve upon the commanding and staff officers and the instructors to arrange and supervise the program of general training, map problems, lectures, demonstrations in chemical warfare and other special lines, and all activities designed to familiarize the men with the manner in which actual war is carried on.

Governor's Day August 16.

Sunday, August 16, will be "governor's day." Every guardsman will be expected to appear in his best military regalia on that day, for general inspection and review of the troops by Governor McMullen as commander-in-chief.

Shooting at targets will be one of the chief features of the daily routine, especially for the first four days. The 12 men who make the best records will be sent as a team to represent Nebraska at the national competitive rifle tournament at Camp Perry, O., about September 1.

Every morning at 5:30 the bugles will blow to get the men out of bed. A new feature this year will be the firing of a cannon at 5:40. Three bands will then march up and down through the camp playing martial airs. Assembly will come at 5:45, which means that the men must dress and fall into ranks within 15 minutes. The breakfast hour is 6 o'clock, and at 7 the day's schedule of work begins.

After putting in the forenoon in setting up exercises, drills, target practice, and regular duties of various kinds, the men will go to mess again at noon. From 1:30 to 3:30 the training work will be continued. A rest period is then allowed until battalion or regimental parade at 4:50. Supper will be eaten at 5:30, and at 6:30 the guardmount, or change of detail for 24 hours' guard duty in camp, occurs.

Time for Amusements.

During the late afternoons there will be time for baseball games, swimming and other sports.

Entertainments, vaudeville shows, boxing and wrestling matches will be provided in the evenings.

The camp will be supplied with water from a new well located far enough from the camp to insure sanitation.

Liberal rations will be served, including beef, pork and other meats, a good variety of fresh and canned vegetables, plenty of hams and marmalade, macaroni, cheese, butter, pastries, and fruits. It will require 1,200 pounds of bread per day to feed the men. A ton and a half of bacon and a like quantity of ham will be served for breakfasts. Eight tons of potatoes are among the purchases made.

Old Dobbin Pays the Penalty

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., Aug. 1.—That's a muzzle on his nose.

This horse belongs to the American Express company, at Fairbury, Neb., and they pay for what he eats and his board bill recently climbed too high. In addition to his daily ration he'd eat everything. He liked the taste of groceries in the Fairbury delivery wagons in his vicinity. Once he ate two pounds of butter without any bread, and another time he sampled practically everything in the rear end of the wagon. He attacked a bread wagon and consumed several loaves. He nibbled holes in sacks of sugar at the Rasse Wholesale grocery house, and as his crowning achievement, he ate a new paint job right off a Ford coupe belonging to Leslie Drummet, and left many teeth marks. But 'them days are gone forever.' Note the muzzle. His driver, H. D. Holbrook, can now deliver his express packages in peace, while Dobbin stands hitched, and fights flies, and no doubt ruminates on the good old days.

EXTRA PERIODS AT SCOUT CAMP

Orthopedic Hospital Boys, Last Lincoln Group, Back Saturday.

About sixty-five boys who had been at Camp Quivira, Boy Scout camp near Louisville, returned on Saturday after having spent ten days at the camp. The group was the last from Lincoln which will go to the camp this year, although the camp will be continued another week. The boys, however, will come from Falls City, Nebraska City and Union, and will arrive at camp on August 3. Scout Executive W. J. Kent will be in charge.

The last Lincoln group at the camp was made up of last period scouts and eight boys from the Orthopedic hospital sent by the Rotary club, and the troop from the home for dependent children, sent by the American legion.

The camp closed with a court of honor Friday at which a number of the boys were given advancement in ratings, as follows:

First class—Leon Patterson and Ray Palm.

Second class—Hubert Arnold, Jov L. King, jr., Howard Wilkins, Harold Saunders, C. Webster, Fred Krause and Webster Radmore.

Merit badges were awarded to Carl Olson for camping and electricity; Robert Rait, for camping woodcraft, civics and life saving; Harry Foster, for camping, cooking and life saving; and Clinton Ridgell for cooking.

Executive Kent said Saturday that the demand for reservations at Camp Quivira for the 1925 season was the heaviest ever known here. Every period was filled and room had to be made to accommodate those who wanted to stay from week to week.

The period for the scouts from other towns was announced several weeks ago because of a demand for swimmers of the camp coming to the Lincoln office. So many requests were made, Kent declared, he could not refuse to continue the camp a week longer than the regular season. He added that enough boys could be registered to fill the camp at least two more periods if masters could be had to care for them.

Work for the winter months will be outlined as soon as Kent returns at the close of the camp. This will include the regular studies at the scout meetings as well as overnight hikes to the scout cabins south of the city and a number of ceremonials including the father and scout banquet.

FREMONT, Neb., Aug. 1.—City Superintendent A. H. Waterhouse does not regard the action of nine Fremont teachers, who have resigned to get married, a breach of contract. Of the eighty-seven teachers who were contracted, only ten so far have "kicked out," according to the superintendent, and nine of these did so to get married.

CERTIFY BUTLER COUNTY CATTLE

Is Third District In State Declared Free Of Tuberculosis.

Butler county is the third one in Nebraska to be certified by the federal and state bureaus of animal industry as a modified accredited area, free from bovine tuberculosis, breeding herds owned there. Announcement to this effect was made Saturday by Chief Hayes of the state bureau.

By virtue of Butler county's new status, hogs shipped from there will command a price 10 cents above the regular packing house market. This is because hogs that are fed on the same premises with cattle are less likely to contract if the bovine animals are healthy.

Cattle hereafter shipped into Butler county for breeding dairy purposes must be tested upon their arrival and before they are allowed to mingle with other animals. Unless this is done the county will lose its standing as an accredited area. Feeding and grazing cattle must be fed, watered and housed separately from breeders.

No attempts will be made by the state or federal supervisory authorities to police the farms in order to see that the regulations are adhered to. Herd owners are placed upon their honor in this regard. If the regulations are observed, no further general tests will be required for a period of three years.

In the recent tests, 210 tuberculous were found on 17 different farms, out of 25,445 cattle belonging to 2,171 herds.

Gets Money Back After Losing It On Carnival Game

The story of how J. W. C. Auman said to be a Firth merchant, played a carnival game and lost $125 without getting a prize was obtained by Deputy Sheriff Ward yesterday. On the first trip to Firth Ward got a general idea of the affair but he failed to get the names of the principals.

Auman, Mr. Ward learned, had been playing a "rolling ball" game at a carnival, attempting to win a rug. He lost $125 without getting a rug and then fainted. He was carried from the grounds and the sheriff's office called.

Ward failed to get Auman's name, beyond learning that he was a "Firth merchant," but ordered Ike Murphy and Burt Hoover, carnival employes, and Margaret Luyden, also connected with the carnival whose name Ward did not get, to appear.

The unknown gentleman who ran the game was not located by the deputy sheriff, but Hoover, when he appeared, stated that he represented the operator of the game. He offered to pay back the $125 to the "Firth merchant," and the offer was accepted and the charges dropped.

NATIONAL GUARD MEMBERS LEAVE FOR ENCAMPMENT

Sixteen Hundred Men to Train at Ashland August 3 to 17.

Some Forces Now Established In Tent City; Main Movement Monday.

Sixteen hundred officers and men of the Nebraska national guard will spend the next two weeks in their annual training camp at Ashland on the United States government's rifle range. Rifle target practice, physical exercises, frequent drills and maneuvers, parades, guard duty, demonstrations and lectures on military tactics will occupy most of the time each day.

The advance movement upon Ashland began Saturday and will continue Sunday, but the main mobilization of the guardsmen will come on Monday. They will assemble at home stations and board trains bound for camp. Those in western Nebraska will start their journey late Sunday night, in order to arrive Monday afternoon.

Detachments which began trekking to camp Saturday were mostly supply sections. Their business is to see that stores of food for the soldiers, fodder and feed for horses, ice and other things needed are on hand. Stoves will be put up in the semi-permanent camp kitchens, and plenty of wood will be provided for fuel. A number of trucks left Lincoln carrying baggage of the field hospital company here, which will be established in camp by Sunday afternoon or evening.

Adjutant General in Command.

Adjutant General H. J. Paul has gone ahead to Ashland and will be the commanding officer of the camp during its fifteen days' duration, August 3 to 17, inclusive. Major H. C. Stein of the quartermaster corps, who has charge of supplies, has also gone. Other staff officers will assist General Paul in looking after the various details of the camp.

Branches of the service which will participate are as follows:

The 35th division trains, 8 organizations, commanded by Major Marcus A. Poteet of Lincoln.

Quartermaster corps — Capt Jack L. Meyer, Lincoln.

Medical regiment—Major J. F. Presnell, Lincoln.

It will devolve upon the commanding and staff officers and the instructors to arrange and supervise the program of general training, map problems, lectures, demonstrations in chemical warfare and other special lines, and all activities designed to familiarize the men with the manner in which actual war is carried on.

Governor's Day August 16.

Sunday, August 16, will be "governor's day." Every guardsman will be expected to appear in his best military regalia on that day, for general inspection and review of the troops by Governor McMullen as commander-in-chief.

Shooting at targets will be one of the chief features of the daily routine, especially for the first four days. The 12 men who make the best records will be sent as a team to represent Nebraska at the national competitive rifle tournament at Camp Perry, O., about September 1.

Every morning at 5:30 the bugles will blow to get the men out of bed. A new feature this year will be the firing of a cannon at 5:40. Three bands will then march up and down through the camp playing martial airs. Assembly will come at 5:45, which means that the men must dress and fall into ranks within 15 minutes. The breakfast hour is 6 o'clock, and at 7 the day's schedule of work begins.

After putting in the forenoon in setting up exercises, drills, target practice, and regular duties of various kinds, the men will go to mess again at noon. From 1:30 to 3:30 the training work will be continued. A rest period is then allowed until battalion or regimental parade at 4:50. Supper will be eaten at 5:30, and at 6:30 the guardmount, or change of detail for 24 hours' guard duty in camp, occurs.

Time for Amusements.

During the late afternoons there will be time for baseball games swimming and other sports.

Entertainments, vaudeville shows boxing and wrestling matches will be provided in the evenings.

The camp will be supplied with water from a new well located far enough from the camp to insure sanitation.

Liberal rations will be served, including beef, pork and other meats, a good variety of fresh and canned vegetables, plenty of hams and marmalade, macaroni, cheese, butter, pastries, and fruits. It will require 1,200 pounds of bread per day to feed the men. A ton and a half of bacon and a like quantity of ham will be served for breakfasts. Eight tons of potatoes are among the purchases made.

This horse belongs to the American Express company, at Fairbury, Neb., and they pay for what he eats and his board bill recently climbed too high. In addition to his daily ration he ateeverything. He liked the taste of groceries in the Fairbury delivery wagons in his vicinity. Once he ate two pounds of butter without any bread, and another time he sampled practically everything in the rear end of the wagon. He attacked a bread wagon and consumed several loaves. He nibbled holes in sacks of sugar at the Rasse Wholesale grocery house, and as his crowning achievement, he ate a new paint job right off a Ford coupe belonging to Leslie Drummet, and left many teeth marks. But 'them days are gone forever.' Note the muzzle. His driver, H D Holbrook, can now deliver his express packages in peace, while Dobbin stands hitched, and fights flies, and no doubt ruminates on the good old days.

EXTRA PERIODS AT SCOUT CAMP

Orthopedic Hospital Boys, Last Lincoln Group, Back Saturday.

About sixty-five boys who had been at Camp Quivira, Boy Scout camp near Louisville, returned on Saturday after having spent ten days at the camp. The group was the last from Lincoln which will go to the camp this year, although the camp will be continued another week. The boys, however, will come from Falls City, Nebraska City and Union, and will arrive at camp on August 3. Scout Executive W. J. Kent will be in charge.

The last Lincoln group at the camp was made up of last period scouts and eight boys from the Orthopedic hospital sent by the Rotary club, and the troop from the home for dependent children, sent by the American legion.

The camp closed with a court of honor Friday at which a number of the boys were given advancement in ratings, as follows:

First class—Leon Patterson and Ray Palm.

Second class—Hubert Arnold, Joy L. King, jr., Howard Wilkins, Harold Saunders, C. Webster, Fred Krause and Webster Radmore.

Merit badges were awarded to Carl Olson for camping and electricity; Robert Rait, for camping woodcraft, civics and life saving; Harry Foster, for camping, cooking and life saving; and Clinton Ridgell for cooking.

ADVERTISING AIDS SALE OF SURPLUS

Government Disposes of Huge War Stores Through Its Help.

Unexpectedly High Prices Received and Business Undisturbed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The sale, through advertising, of $1,300,000,000 worth of surplus United States government war materials, probably the greatest bargain task in history, has just been completed with receipt of a check for $405 by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World from the Associated Business Papers, Inc.

The Business Papers is a department of the Associated Advertising Clubs. The check represents the residue in the hands of the surplus property committee of the former organization after concluding nearly five years of service, free of charge to the government.

Reporting that $2,160,000 invested by the government in newspaper and business paper advertising was only about one-half of 1 per cent of the gross returns, Jesse H. Neal, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Advertising Clubs and executive secretary of the Associated Business Papers said:

"Total expenditures of $2,160,000 were a recovery of 75 times that based upon the original cost of inflated war prices. It is a remarkable return considering the vast quantities of materials were all but worthless. As a matter of fact many things were sold at more than 100 per cent of the original purchase price."

Tax Reduction Is Result.

Receipt of the $1,300,000,000 from the sale of the property Mr. Neal added, "was in a measure responsible for the ability of congress to reduce federal taxation."

He outlined conditions which led to formation of the committee.

"At the close of the great war, several prominent business paper publishers and editors were called into conference by the war department to determine what should be done to convert the stupendous surplus of war materials into cash without undue disturbance of industry. One step led to another until finally the Associated Business Papers appointed a surplus property committee to co-operate with the government in devising and carrying out a complete plan for the disposal of the surplus.

"After several plans had been tried and found wanting, the war department adopted one proposed by the committee in which advertising was to be the main reliance.

"This, of course, required the services of expert copy writers. The government had no appropriation which would enable it to employ them. So the Associated Business Papers arranged to supply them free of expense and maintained a competent force in Washington during the entire four and a half years.

"This expense and other incidentals, were met through an equitable assessment upon publications receiving copy. Members of the committee donated their services.

Newspapers Aid Work.

"As the work progressed, it was discovered that newspapers as well as business papers would have to be used, and two newspapermen were added to the committee.

"The soundness of the plan adopted by the war department," Mr. Neal explained, "is plainly evidenced by the fact that it survived without material change through three administrations under two political parties.

"The surplus property committee showed that the government can use paid advertising with profit to itself and the entire country. The plan that was used protected trade and industry when they most needed protection."

John W. Weeks, secretary of war, warmly praised the work of the committee.

"The results achieved during the period of the committee's existence and co-operation with the war department," he asserted, "are a signal tribute to the power of well directed advertising."

SHEFFIELD TALKS WITH PRESIDENT

When Questioned Envoy Sidesteps Reference To Kellogg Statement.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Attended by the utmost secrecy, President Coolidge had a luncheon conference this noon with James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico.

Sheffield, whose name did not appear upon the president's summer lunch list, arrived in Swampscott and very nearly slipped out the same way.

The ambassador upon being questioned at his departure, professed surprise that his presence at the summer White house had been ascertained but said he was taken up nothing special with Mr. Coolidge.

The only point with which he was willing to deal, however, was the statement of the president that the statements concerning Secretary Kellogg and Dwight Morrow in Mexico did not discuss the Mexican situation and sidestepped questions as to present conditions.

Friends had learned that American life and property there were not adequately protected and had intimated broadly that unless conditions were remedied American recognition might be withdrawn.

The ambassador, however, said he had been kept posted on developments in Mexico and believed generally it would be a fair statement to say that conditions were improving.

Sheffield announced definitely that he would return to his post in Mexico City. At present he and his wife and son are cruising up and down the New England coast in a houseboat and Sheffield reciprocates from a recent operation.

He will cruise northward as far as Maine next Monday and expects to return later to confer again with President Coolidge.

(Special to The Star.)

COLUMBUS, Neb., Aug. 1.—Charles and George Thompson, twin bachelor-farmers residing on islands in the Platte river, will celebrate their seventy-fourth birthday anniversary Sunday.

Both men prefer an almost hermit style of living during most of the year and seldom leave their islands. But on their last birthday somebody suggested that they give a party, and they had such a big time that they are going to give another one this year. The whole world is invited, too. Invitations sent out by the twins simply state "Everybody come."

Saturday the prospective hosts were busy catching a lot of catfish which will be served to supplement the picnic lunches the guests are expected to bring with them. A program which includes a concert by the David City band and an address by Judge E. E. Lindsay of New Philadelphia, Ohio, will be given in the afternoon.

The party starts at noon, say the twins, and the island, one-half mile north of the Robert Cleland residence in Butler county will be the scene of the activities.

Big Draft Horse Scared To Death

BYRON, Neb., Aug. 1.—A heavy draft horse was scared to death near here Friday. At least, it died of heart failure, as near as anyone knows. The horse was the property of Bob Swartz, farmer, about one mile west of Byron, and had been used, with others in grading highways, mostly in Kansas just south of here and Friday was being worked near a public crossing on the railway. It had been turned away from the tracks by the driver, but was standing very near, when a heavy locomotive hauling a big freight train came suddenly into sight. The horse was seen to jump, but it is claimed, was not struck by the train, and as the last car rolled past the horse dropped dead.

NEW FILLING STATIONS.

BYRON, Neb., Aug. 1.—Two new filling stations are in course of construction at Byron. Each one replaces an old one. The Hill Oil company, of Hardy, is building a new frame station at the east of main street, and the old frame one on the lots has been dismantled. J. McNiece is the manager of the station. William Kirschoff is erecting a fancy tile and stucco station up town on Main street. The Hill station is in Kansas, and the Kirschoff station is in Nebraska, although the two places are only two blocks apart and each is on the main street of the town.

Woman Severely Hurt When She Falls From Car

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Aug. 1.—Mrs. L. Heidman, of Verdon, was severely injured on the Cornhusker highway near here when she fell from the auto driven by her husband, and in which the couple had started from Verdon on a trip into western states.

It is understood that the woman felt a spell of dizziness coming on and requested that the car be stopped. It is said that before the husband could bring the auto to a full stop, Mrs. Heidman reached for the door which went open and she fell out, alighting on her head and shoulder. An examination later by a physician disclosed the fact that her shoulder blade and collar bone were broken and the couple abandoned the trip and returned to their home.

DILLER, Neb., Aug. 1.—A Dodge sedan driven by Corda Wiemers, of Diller, and a Ford roadster driven and owned by Oscar Humm, of Pawnee City, collided with such force at a cross-roads on the "PWF" highway, one mile north of Diller Friday, that the cars were completely wrecked, the Ford later being sold here for junk, but the occupants of the wrecked cars crawled out from under them after the accident with a few minor cuts and bruises, except that John Nagel, of Tarkio, Mo., riding with Humm in the Ford car, was knocked unconscious by a burn on the head and remained so for five hours. He also received body cuts and bruises but suffered no serious injuries.

ADVERTISING AIDS SALE OF SURPLUS

Unexpectedly High Prices Received and Business Undisturbed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The sale, through advertising, of $1,300,000,000 worth of surplus United States government war materials, probably the biggest single business task in history, has just been completed with receipt of a check for $408 by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World from the Associated Business Papers, Inc.

The Business Papers is a department of the Associated Advertising Clubs. The check represents the residue in the hands of the surplus property committee of the former organization after concluding nearly five years of service, free of charge to the government.

Reporting that $2,100,000 invested by the government in newspaper and business paper advertising was only about one-half of 1 per cent of the gross returns, Jesse H. Neal, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Adertising clubs and executive secretary of the Associated Business Papers, said:

"Total receipts of $1,300,000,000 were a recovery of 26.4 per cent, based upon the original cost at inflated war prices. It is a remarkable return considering the vast quantities of materials were all but worthless. As a matter of fact, many things were sold at more than 100 per cent of the original purchase price."

Tax Reduction Is Result.

Receipt of the $1,300,000,000 from the sale of the property, Mr. Neal added, "was in a measure responsible for the ability of congress to reduce federal taxation."

He outlined conditions which led to formation of the committee:

"At the close of the great war, several prominent business paper publishers and editors were called into conference by the war department to determine what should be done to convert the stupendous surplus of war materials into cash without undue disturbance of industry. One step led to another until finally the Associated Business Papers appointed a surplus property committee to co-operate with the government in devising and carrying out a complete plan for the disposal of the surplus.

"After several plans had been tried and found wanting, the war department adopted one proposed by the committee in which advertising was to be the main reliance.

"This, of course, required the services of expert copy writers. The government had no appropriation which would enable it to employ them. So the Associated Business Papers arranged to supply them free of expense and maintained a competent force in Washington during the entire four and a half years.

"This expense and other incidentals, were met through an equitable assessment upon publications receiving copy. Members of the committee donated their services.

Newspapers Aid Work.

"As the work progressed, it was discovered that newspapers as well as business papers would have to be used, and two newspapermen were added to the committee."

"The soundness of the plan adopted by the war department," Mr. Neal explained, "is plainly evidenced by the fact that it survived without material change through three administrations under two political parties.

"The surplus property committee showed that the government can use paid advertising with profit to itself and the entire country. The plan that was used protected trade and industry when they most needed protection."

John W. Weeks, secretary of war, warmly praised the work of the committee.

"The results achieved during the period of the committee's existence and co-operation with the war department," he asserted, "are a signal tribute to the power of well directed advertising."

STOCK MARKET MAKES RECOVERY AT END OF WEEK

NEW YORK Aug
Considerable profit taking and realizing characterized moto sto ks which made a good recovery near the close of Friday s market and in the short session today Bearish statements and opinions issued by Wall Street speculative interests and commission house buying stimulated trading in other stocks

Professional and speculative support gave the market a gene ally strong basis

While stocks of the motor companies featured the c rally the subsequent reaction and the week end recovery in price there was a good demand for industrial and railroad stocks in which the trading was in fairly large volume Both the low pr el o so called speculative rails and re develo n n sto ks figured in the rally in the railway issues

The o stocks howed consid erable weakness n he ars part but recovered late n the week

Rail road bonds were in strong demand in the lis ed bond market and prices of Frisco Katy Seaboard Air Line and International Great Northern systems rose to the highest levels for the movement A spectacular advance of 3 points in Florida Weste n & Northern rail road resulted in a considerable movement of that stock

Foreign Bonds Reactionary

Foreign government bond issues are slightly reactionary thoug losses w re not as large as in the previous week

Higher pri es prevailed in most of the curb industrial and public utility stocks at the close of the week than at the opening The le action in the midweek was not sufficient to wipe out the Monday and Tuesday advances

The oil stocks did not fare as well as the industrials due to the unsettled conditions of the markets

Wheat and corn prices moved in a narrow radius but cotton prices at New York and New Orleans continued to sag as a result of the beneficial rains in Texas and Oklahoma

Call money was marked down to 3 4 but closed the week at 4 per cent

A sharp decline in Polish exchange the revalued currency of the Polish republic was the principal feature of the foreign exchange

Scandinavian exchange was a regular and British exchange steady

Rail Bonds Mount

NEW YORK Aug 1—(I N S —The rise in second grade railroad bonds and the moderate decline in prices of United States and foreign government bons were the principal features of the listed bond market this week Buying of the rails was stimulated by the extremely favorable earnings reports of the class I roads as a whole and of specific lines whose bonds have always been prominent in the listed market

Firmer trends in the money market and further extension of commercial credits by the banking institutions resulted in liquidation of Liberty bonds with a slight decline in prices

CHAMBER TO TRY TO BREAK UNION

Pittsburgh Commerce Body Openly Announces Its Proposed Attempt.

Claims Stagnation In Coal Industry Threatens Prosperity of Section.

PITTSBURGH Pa Aug 1—(I N S)—Claiming that stagnation in the coal industry seriously threatened the prosperity of western Pennsylvania the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce came out openly tonight with the announcement that it would attempt to break the power of the United Mine Workers in this district

The action of the chamber caused considerable discussion

Officers of the district United Mine Workers could not be reached for a statement but it was said by those considered authoritative on union affairs that the chamber's move no doubt would be opposed vigorously

There has been no open clash between the miners and the operators in this field but a majority of the mines have been closed because the operators contend the could no longer compete with one districts and pay the existing union wage scale

But officials of the United Mine Workers repeatedly refused to alter the present wage scale which has until 1927 to run

Seeking to end the business paralysis resulting from depression in the coal industry the chamber first suggested to both miner and operator that each withdraw from his respective national organization and form independent local organizations

This recommendation the miners officials lately refused to consider terming it ridiculous While some operators took the proposal under consideration none has come out openly with an offer of withdrawal

Details of the plan will be given out early next week it is understood

TAX REDUCTION STEPS ARE TO BEGIN A ONCE

come taxpayers for about 800 000 000 revenue

Experts Say Impossible

Treasury experts asserted that such a drastic step is impossible They pointed out that if taxes are to be reduced from $3 000 000 000 to $400 000 000 as contemplated by the administration the number of taxpayers must be increased instead of decreased

A cut in the surtax is claimed by certain according to treasury experts Yet the action will result in greater revenue than under the old bill they say by increasing the number of taxpayers

Incomes under $ 000—6 5 0 61f persons pa $1 4 383 000

$o 000 to $100 000—41 3 persons pay $4 8 99 000

Over $100 000—1 182 persons pay $2 0 6 000

Mellon Is Opposed

Mellon does not favor a cut in the tax rate for incomes under $o 000 although he may agree to a slight reduction should the investigation disclose that it can be accomplished without endangering the government's financial position Nor is a reduction in the 12½ per cent corporation tax favored This tax last year yielded approximately $900 000 000 about 2 0 000 corporations filing returns

Government experts feel that a further material reduction of official expenses would prove poor economy since a penny saved might actually cost a dollar in efficiency For this reason the only solution to the tax reduction problem is in the enactment of a revised plan which is more equal across the board burden will permit rate cuts and yet increase governmental revenue

Pepper made it clear that the actual entry was a matter for the president to handle but that the majority of the senators would arrive at an agreement upon limitation which would be approved

The amendment which the senate will propose will be in a form which will be acceptable to the other signatory nations he said

Peppers resolution last year which was drafted in committee as a compromise contained a number of provisions which were designed to divorce the court entirely from the league. The new proposal will not have any provisions of his sort

Pepper took issue with the proposal of Senator Borah chairman of the senate foreign relations committee of which he (Pepper) is a member that American adherence to the world court wait until international law has been codified

I do not want to raise a controversial issue with Senator Borah Pepper said but I think that codification is a work of perhaps two years and I believe that should be carried out with the United States as a member of the court The occasion of our adherence to the court would be made the starting point toward codification of international law

Pepper said a considerable change in the attitude of senators toward the proposal had come about since congress adjourned The present world court resolution before the senate he believed, will not be accepted

ALLOWS APPEAL IN LEASE CASE

Government to Test Sinclair-Fall Grant In Federal Circuit Court.

CHEYENNE Wyo Aug 1—(U P)—Judge T Blake Kennedy today allowed the government's petition of appeal from the decision of the Federal court for Wyoming in the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit

The appeal was filed today and the appeal to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals was immediately allowed by Judge Kennedy

The petition of appeal sets forth sixty four alleged errors by the court in the trial of the suit

The majority of the errors were predicated upon the exclusion of evidence offered by the government and objected to by counsel of the defendant the Mammoth Oil Co holder of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve

It was set out that the excluded evidence relative to the Continental Trading Co Limited which the government contended had a connection with the alleged passage of Liberty bonds from Harry F Sinclair to Albert B Fall then secretary of the interior showed the negotiations were united with fraud and collusion

Wheat and Corn Prices Move In Narrow Radius—Cotton Quotations Sag.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Considerable profit-taking and realizing characterized motor stocks, which made a good recovery near the close of Friday's market and in the short session today. Bearish statements and opinions issued by Wall Street speculative interests and commission house buying stimulated trading in other stocks.

Professional and speculative support gave the market a generally strong basis.

While stocks of the motor companies featured the early rally, the subsequent reaction and the week-end recovery in prices, there was a good demand for industrial and railroad stocks, in which the trading was in fairly large volume. Both the low priced, or so called speculative, rails and the development stocks figured in the rally in the railway issues.

The oil stocks showed considerable weakness in the first part but recovered later in the week.

Railroad bonds were in strong demand in the listed bond market and prices of Frisco, Katy, Seaboard Air Line and International Great Northern systems rose to the highest levels for the movement. A spectacular advance of 33 points in Florida Western & Northern railroad resulted in a considerable movement of that stock.

Foreign Bonds Reactionary.

Foreign government bond issues are slightly reactionary, though losses were not as large as in the previous week.

Higher prices prevailed in most of the curb industrial and public utility stocks at the close of the week than at the opening. The reaction in the midweek was not sufficient to wipe out the Monday and Tuesday advances.

The oil stocks did not fare as well as the industrials due to the unsettled conditions of the markets.

Wheat and corn prices moved in a narrow radius, but cotton prices at New York and New Orleans continued to sag as a result of the beneficial rains in Texas and Oklahoma.

Call money was marked down to 3 3-4 but closed the week at 4 per cent.

Rail Bonds Mount.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—The rise in second grade railroad bonds and the moderate decline in prices of United States and foreign government bons were the principal features of the listed bond market this week. Buying of the rails was stimulated by the extremely favorable earnings reports of the class 1 roads as a whole, and of specific lines whose bonds have always been prominent in the listed market.

Firmer trends in the money market and further extension of commercial credits by the banking institutions resulted in liquidation of Liberty bonds, with a slight decline in prices.

NEXT YEAR TO SEE INTENSIVE PROHIB MOVE

have been "loaned" to the government to aid in the drive to make prohibition really effective.

The plan is a re-application in peace time of war time utilization of the "dollar-a-year-man."

Confronted with the hopelessness of trying to get great executives to work for the government for the $7,500 a year allowed by congress, Gen. L. C. Andrews, the new field marshal of prohibition enforcement, has appealed to a number of big business men for aid and has met with more or less success.

Convinced By Andrews.

General Andrews is said to have convinced the captains of industry that the enormous increase in crime during the past few years is directly attributable to the breakdown of law enforcement in the prohibition situation. He argued that contempt for the dry laws engendered contempt for other laws, and that the present crop of youthful bandits, killers, stickup men and bank robbers is the result. He warned that the situation has reached a point where American institutions are endangered.

Speaking of his endeavor to awaken the interest of big business, he said he was impressed by the fact that so many had shown their willingness to lend their aid. Business executives in such centers as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, and other cities of more or less "wetness" will assist the government. They may not come into the open at any time and their identity is to remain a carefully guarded secret.

Judge Gary Active.

Judge E. H. Gary is understood to be taking a personal and active interest in the campaign. He is chairman of the Committee of One Thousand for Law Enforcement, which not long ago paid a visit to the White house and called President Coolidge's attention to the enormous growth of crime in the United States.

Andrews' plans for revamping the present enforcement machinery call for the distribution of most of the present personnel in the west and south, whose enforcement conditions are better and where there is more prohibition enforcement than there is in the east. The east will receive more attention than the west because of the greater activities of bootleggers there.

CHAMBER TO TRY TO BREAK UNION

Pittsburgh Commerce Body Openly Announces Its Proposed Attempt.

Claims Stagnation In Coal Industry Threatens Prosperity of Section.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Claiming that stagnation in the coal industry seriously threatened the prosperity of western Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce came out openly tonight with the announcement that it would attempt to break the power of the United Mine Workers in this district.

The action of the chamber caused considerable discussion.

Officers of the district United Mine Workers could not be reached for a statement, but it was said by those considered authoritative on union affairs that the chamber's move no doubt would be opposed vigorously.

There has been no open clash between the miners and the operators in this field, but a majority of the mines have been closed because the operators contend they no longer could compete with other districts and pay the existing union wage scale.

But officials of the United Mine Workers repeatedly refused to alter the present wage scale which has until 1927 to run.

Seeking to overcome the business paralysis, resulting from depression in the coal industry, the chamber first suggested to both miner and operator that each withdraw from his respective national organization and form independent local organizations.

This recommendation the mine officials flatly refused to consider, terming it "ridiculous." While some operators took the proposal under consideration none has come out openly with an offer of withdrawal.

Details of the plan will be given out early next week, it is understood.

CHARGES FRAUD IN IOWA VOTING

Brookhart Makes First Claim of Dishonesty in 1924 Voting for Senator.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I.N.S.)—A charge of fraud at the Iowa senatorial election in 1924 in an effort to defeat Senator Smith W. Brookhart was made today for the first time before the senate privileges and elections committee, which is making a recount of the elections ballots.

Representatives of Senator Brookhart challenged on the ground of prospective fraud the returns from the Second ward of Estherville, Emmet county, because the recount showed 10 ballots more cast than names of voters on the poll books, and because local election officials reported thirty-five ballots scattered among the bound returns made by the local election officials.

The official count from this ward gave Steck 340, Brookhart 326. These totals were changed by the recount to 331 for Steck, 301 for Brookhart with 5 ballots challenged by Steck. Of the thirty-five scattered ballots, twenty-three were for Brookhart and three for Steck, with others blank for senator or defective.

All the returns from Clinton county were challenged by the Steck supporters on the ground of the form of printing the ballots. There was no charge of fraud raised in this challenge.

Steck gained during the past week in the recount. The result for twenty-four counties gave 99,488 for Steck and 99,420 for Brookhart, giving Steck a majority of 68. The Brookhart majority in the state has been placed officially at 1,385.

Reliance of the Steck forces to secure the senate seat for Steck is placed on rejection by the senate committee of the protests of Brookhart ballots. A total of 1,726 ballots has been challenged, 1,335 counted for Brookhart and 391 for Steck.

Incomes under $5,000—6,752,616 persons pay $174,383,000.

Mellon Is Opposed.

Mellon does not favor a cut in the tax rate for incomes under $5,000, although he may agree to a slight reduction should the investigation disclose that it can be accomplished without endangering the government's financial position. Nor is a reduction in the 12½ per cent corporation tax favored. This tax last year yielded approximately $900,000,000, about 250,000 corporations filing returns.

Government experts feel that a further material reduction of official expenses would prove poor economy since a penny saved might actually cost a dollar in efficiency. For this reason the only solution to the tax reduction problem is in the enactment of a revised plan which by more equitably adjusting the burden will permit rate cuts and yet increase governmental revenue.

it shows that a steady improvement has been taking place in banking conditions. Heavier deposits and a larger reserve are not the only indications of this. Bills payable have been reduced more than $2,000,000, and rediscounts are substantially less.

"The increase of over $3,000,000 in real estate holdings means that in a good many cases banks have got rid of doubtful notes by securing conveyances of land from the debtors, who could not make payment in cash. That is another improvement in the situation."

FIRST STAGE IN POLE EXPEDITION NOW COMPLETED

The monotony of the long boat trip to Etah was broken first when the Bowdoin and the Peary ran into a swarm of mosquitoes, which caused discomfort, and later the ships encountered an ice field and the expedition was halted temporarily.

They battled with the ice several days. The boats finally succeeded in ramming their way clear and should be in Etah tonight on schedule time.

"In spite of difficulties we are on schedule time," MacMillan messaged the National Geographic society. "Before leaving Boston we planned to be at Etah on August 1."

The next stage in the dash to the north and the most dangerous will be by airplane.

The navy planes will be unpacked and set up, MacMillan and a few chosen members of his party then will set out on their flight over the vast "blind spot" of the polar north.

Heard In Massachusetts.

NEWTON, Mass., Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—H. H. Cooley, radio amateur, told the United Press late tonight he had heard "snatches" of a radio program on forty meters wave length, which he believed was the MacMillan Eskimo program, broadcast from the far north.

Reception was not particularly good, Cooley said, but he was able to hear brief snatches of a song. He said it appeared as if the sending apparatus was aboard a ship.

Cooley has a powerful low wave length receiver and transmitter with which he consistently communicates with New Zealand, he said. Earlier in the evening he was in communication with the Peary and copied several hundred words of press messages addressed to the National Geographic society in Washington.

First Attempt Success.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—The first experience with Eskimo music proved successful, according to H. H. Roemer, engineer of the Zenith Radio corporation.

At 10:30, central standard time, Roemer said his test set tuned in the MacMillan polar expedition broadcasting from the Arctic regions on a 45-meter wave length.

The experiment, planned by the MacMillan polar expedition, was the first attempt to broadcast the human voice through the vast spaces of the frozen north.

Ellsworth Returns.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Another dash toward the North Pole next time in an airship instead of a plane. This is the hope of Lincoln Ellsworth, polar explorer, he said in an interview tonight.

"I still believe we can reach the top of the world," he declared. "I have always thought so."

Ellsworth, who was co-leader with Capt. Raould Amundsen in the recent effort to reach the pole, returned to his home in New York today from Norway. His appearance did not indicate that the journey into the frozen wastes of the north land had told on his constitution. His color is good, his manner buoyant. There is, however, a somewhat strained look about him.

"We look on the last attempt as merely preliminary," he said. "We hope to try again, although we have no definite plans. If we do try it again the crew will be the same. They were fully. During all the time we were combating the elements in the far north there was not a single bit of complaining.

"Next time—if there is a next time, and I sincerely hope there will be—we will again take off from Spitzbergen."

Ellsworth is extremely modest. He has medals from the king of Norway, but he isn't wearing them. He smilingly declined to relate how he dragged two freezing Norsemen out of the Arctic ice water when the Amundsen party was marooned.

The Amundsen expedition cost about $150,000, he revealed. His father gave about $85,000.

Push Drive To Make Broadway Dry As 'Sahara'

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—The campaign to make Broadway "as dry as the Sahara" was under full swing today.

The night clubs that dot the streets just off Broadway, from Forty-second to Fifty-ninth, are nearly all going to be put out of business if the "flying squadron," which Prohibition Divisional Chief R. Q. Merrick has imported, is permitted to continue operations on the scale it started in the early hours today.

The squad smashed its way into five clubs, seized wines and liquors valued at $1,000 and arrested five men. Scores of diners, many of them in evening clothes, were turned into the street during a downpour of rain when the places were raided.

PLAN TO INSPECT LARGE ORCHARDS

Will Visit Fruit Lands In Southeast Nebraska and North Kansas.

(Special to The Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Aug. 1.—Farmers and orchardists of southeastern Nebraska and northeastern Kansas will gather here at Arbor Lodge Tuesday afternoon to start their annual horticuutural tour. They will spend Tuesday and Wednesday in southeastern Nebraska and Thursday and Friday in northeastern Kansas. E. H. Hoppert, secretary of the Nebraska Horticultural society arranged the Nebraska program.

Following the round-up at Arbor Lodge Tuesday afternoon, Grove Porter will show the visitors two orchards which he has planted for the Joy Morton Orchard Co. One contains 160 acres and is two years old and the other is an 80 acre orchard which is now four years old. The next stop will be at the 12 year old 10 acre orchard of the Loess Land Co., adjoining Arbor Lodge.

At the speaking program on the east side of the mansion at Arbor Lodge, N. C. Abbott, superintendent of the school for the blind, will tell "What J. Sterling Morton did for Horticulture," Morton Steinhart of the local canning company will outline "Recent Developments in the Sour Cherry Industry," and C. A. Lord, of Lincoln, will emphasize "Modern Business Methods are Needed in the Apple Industry of Nebraska." An opportunity will be afforded the visitors to go through the mansion after the program.

The group will leave Nebraska City from the west side of the court house square Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and go to the Lord orchard southeast of Peru. This drive will be through the Missouri river scenery country. They will go from there to Sam Park's fruit farm where he specializes in small fruit. He lives two miles west and one-half mile north of Brownville. On the way back to Brownville they will visit the old orchard set out by former Governor Furnas. J. L. Stivers, who is managing this for the Central State Orchard Co., will point out some of the lessons that this planting teaches.

The crowd will eat chicken dinner at Brownville, then see the small-fruit planting of J. L. Furnas at the edge of town. They will go on to Shubert, which is recognized as the apple metropolis of Nebraska, and visit the young and old planting of the Shuberts, the Loess Land Co. and A. J. Weaver. This will end the Nebraska tour, the next stop being in Kansas Thursday morning. Any parties interested in any part of the tour can get in the crowd at the start or drop in or out at anuy time, Mr. Hoppert states.

ALLOWS APPEAL IN LEASE CASE

Government to Test Sinclair-Fall Grant In Federal Circuit Court.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—Judge T. Blake Kennedy today allowed the government's petition of appeal from the decision of the Federal court for Wyoming in the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit.

The appeal was filed today and the appeal to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals was immediately allowed by Judge Kennedy.

The petition of appeal sets forth sixty-four alleged errors by the court in the trial of the suit.

The majority of the errors were predicated upon the exclusion of evidence offered by the government and objected to by counsel of the defendant, the Mammoth Oil Co., holder of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

It was set out that the excluded evidence relative to the Continental Trading Co., Limited, which the government contended had a connection with the alleged passage of Liberty bonds from Harry F. Sinclair to Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, showed the negotiations were tainted with "fraud and collusion."

U. S. JOINING TO COME SOON SAYS PEPPER

accepting any League of Nations liabilities. Pepper did not specify how many votes.

Pepper made it clear that the actual entry was a matter for the president to handle, but that the majority of the senators would arrive at an agreement upon limitation which would be approved.

The "amendment" which the senate will propose will be in a form which will be acceptable to the other signatory nations, he said.

Pepper's resolution last year, which was drafted in committee as a compromise, contained a number of provisions which were designed to divorce the court entirely from the league. The new proposal will not have any provisions of this sort.

Pepper took issue with the proposal of Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, of which he (Pepper) is a member, that American adherence to the world court wait until international law has been codified.

"I do not want to raise a controversial issue with Senator Borah," Pepper said, "but I think that codification is a work of perhaps twenty years and I believe that it should be carried out with the United States as a member of the court. The occasion of our adherence to the court would be made the starting point toward codification of international law."

Pepper said a considerable change in the attitude of senators toward the proposal had come about since congress adjourned. The present world court resolution before the senate, he believed, will not be accepted.

MINING RESERVE SUPPLY OF COAL

Increased Production Noted As Result Of Strike Threats.

WASHINGTON Aug 1—(U P) With operators and miners deadlocked in negotiations for a new wage agreement for September 1 production of coal is on the boom

Figures furnished by the bureau of mines show production in the anthracite fields—where there is a walkout threatened for a month from today—was higher than at any previous week this year

Bituminous production likewise is on the increase following threats which have been made by union officials for a general mine walkout

Anthracite production for the week ending July 25 as estimated from railroads loadings furnished by the carriers amounted to 2 049 000 tons an increase of 64 000 tons or 3 per cent over the previous week It is also 11 5 per cent over the same period last year when no strike was threatened

Responding to a more active demand the bureau states that the total output of the bituminous mines including lignite and coal coked at the mines was 9 250 000 net tons for the same week About 166 000 cars were loaded for shipment This is an increase of 3 per cent over last tweek and marks the first time since early in March that the 9 000 000 production figure has been exceeded

The renewed activity in both anthracite and bituminous fields is expected to pile up a reserve supply which may be used in case present strike threats materialize

DEDICATION AT CAMP KIWANIS

Over 500 Witness Ceremonials; Water Pageant Feature of Evening.

Old King Neptune, god of the sea, accompanied by his tritons, and a group of mermaids, and the Spirit of Kiwanis, the Spirit of Magic Hill and their attendants, held sway over Camp Kiwanis, Camp Fire girls camp near Milford on the Blue river, Friday night. A party of Camp Fire friends from Lincoln, including a large number of the Kiwanis club, were guests, and witnessed the dedication of the Magic Hill water front by Neptune, and of Magic Hill camp by the Spirit of Magic Hill.

Neptune approached the docks in a large barge propelled by a group of mermaids, preceded by a herald who announced his coming. His barge was beautifully decorated.

At the dock(Neptune demanded the purpose of the water front and was told 'swimming for health, safety, sport and fun," and each was demonstrated by a group of older girls who were spending the week at Magic Hill.

Cabin Dedicated.

Following his acceptance of the water front, Neptune was taken to the open air ampitheater east of the cabin and the hill was dedicated. Spirit of Magic Hill and eight attendants served as an escort. Here also the purposes of the camp were demonstrated for the benefit of Neptune, by girls in costume.

The crowd that witnessed the two ceremonials was the largest that has ever been at Camp Kiwanis. Estimates placed the number at more than 500.

Following the ceremonies Miss Martha Curtis, Camp Fire girls' executive secretary, presented a Kiwanis ring to Miss Ruth Tomson as the honor girl for the week Gertrude Farrens was the girl to receive honorable mention. Selection of the two who receive the awards is made by a vote of the girls.

MINING RESERVE SUPPLY OF COAL

Increased Production Noted As Result Of Strike Threats.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(U. P.) With operators and miners deadlocked in negotiations for a new wage agreement for September 1, production of coal is on the boom.

Figures furnished by the bureau of mines show production in the anthracite fields—where there is a walkout threatened for a month from today—was higher than at any previous week this year.

Bituminous production likewise is on the increase, following threats which have been made by union officials for a general mine walkout.

Anthracite production for the week ending July 25, as estimated from railroads' loadings furnished by the carriers, amounted to 2,049,000 tons, an increase of 64,000 tons or 3.2 per cent over the previous week. It is also 11.5 per cent over the same period last year when no strike was threatened.

"Responding to a more active demand," the bureau states that the total output of the bituminous mines, including lignite and coal coked at the mines, was 9,255,000 net tons for the same week. About 166,000 cars were loaded for shipment. This is an increase of 3 per cent over las tweek and marks the first time since early in March that the 9,000,000 production figure has been exceeded.

The renewed activity in both anthracite and bituminous fields is expected to pile up a reserve supply which may be used in case present strike threats materialize.

May Gravel Road On Incoming Route From Fair Grounds

Negotiations between the county and city authorities are now under way for the graveling of the street running parallel to the south side of the state fair grounds from Fourteenth to Seventeenth street.

BELIEVES HE IS OLDEST SETTLER

Thomas I. Patterson Thinks No Living Man Has Lived Longer In State.

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 1.—Sixty-seven years ago today Thomas L. Patterson of this city came to Nebraska to make his home. He believes he has been a resident of the state longer than any other living man.

He crossed the Missouri river at Brownville, Neb., just four years after Nebraska had been declared a territory through the passage by congress of Stephen A. Douglas' famous squatters' sovereignty bill.

That was thirteen years before the first white settlers came to Adams county to make their home.

Lincoln was a small village and Omaha was very little larger.

For many years Mr. Patterson and his parents lived in Richardson county in the extreme southeastern part of the state. Trouble with Indians, squatters, grasshoppers, drouth, too much moisture, and lack of proper facilities for farming all tended to make their lives full of hardships.

Fought Indians.

Then the war broke out and Thomas Patterson enlisted in the Union forces. He was sent to the region around Fort Kearney to guard the west bound mails and keep down Indian troubles. Part of his company was in the battle of Shiloh, but at that time he, with a small group of comrades was having trouble enough around Fort Laramie, Wyo., seeking to force treaties with the Indians.

At one time they surprised 35,000 Indians, Mr. Patterson said, and managed to secure the coveted treaty after a brife struggle.

Speaking of the chill weather that has visited Nebraska the past week, Mr. Patterson recalled a frost during the night of August 27, 1863, while he was on his way to Fort Kearney to sell some grain. So severe was the frost that the corn in the lowlands was whitened.

Mail Guard.

During the days following the close of the Civil war, Mr. Patterson was for a time a guard of mails between Julesburg, Colo., and Fort Laramie, Wyo.

One a band of 500 Indians attacked the mail stage and Tom Powers, a Kansas man, was shot from his horse beside Patterson.

"When the mil came in from the east, we had to go," Mr. Patterson said. "No matter if it was hot or cold, day or night. We started instantly."

Mr. Patterson is in the best of health and takes a keen interest in the country's affairs. He has visited thirty states of the Union and many of the places he reads of are familiar to him through his own persional experiences.

Legion Post at O'Neill Takes Duties of the G. A. R. Group

O'NEILL, Neb., Aug. 1.—Soldiers of Simonson post of the American Legion relieved General O'Neill post of the G. A. R. of the last of its active duties at the funeral of William Clevish, of O'Neill, Civil war veteran, recently.

The once strong post now has dwindled to but two living members, one of whom is ill and bed-ridden. The other survivor, Charles Wrede of O'Neill, is 84 years old. He was crippled when struck by an automobile several years ago, but still is able to be about. Mr. Wrede as long as he is able, will attend all soldier funerals with the American Legion, bearing the colors of the once strong General O'Neill post of the Grand Army of the Republic. When he is gone it is his wish that the Legion post assume custody of the colors. The photograph shows the flag covered casket of Mr. Clevish about to be consigned to the grave Beside it stands the guard of honor, a soldier of the world war, a soldier of the Civil war, a soldier of the Spanish-American war and a sailor of the World war. From left to right they are Bert Winchell, Charles Wrede, Charles Harding and Ralph Millard. Mr. Wrede is holding the colors. The aged color bearer is one of the real pioneers of the west. He was in the Pike's Peak rush in the "fifties," later was a station tender on the pony express and stage routes and already was a member of the regular army when the Civil war broke out.

EARLY SETTLERS VISIT OLD HOME

(Special to The Star.)

GRAD ISLAND, Neb., Aug 1.—The man who once owned the land on which the present town of Cairo is built has come back from Colorado to see it. Henry Russell came from England in 1871 and in 1872 bought the land—railroad land—for $4 per acre. It was an eighty. The next year he bought another eighty at $12 per acre. His brother, George, later bought 160 acres. A few years thereafter Henry Russell sold his 160 at $17. 50 per acre and George sold his for $20. The Burlington depot, the elevator and part of the town are on Henry Russell's old land and the rest on that of his brother. Mr. Russell is visiting his brother-in-law W. C. Mullen, and family. He is accompanied by Mrs. Russell. They reside at Holleyoke, Colo., now, having retired from active farming in that vicinity. Mr. Russell moved to Chase county, near Imperial, in 1886 and some years later to Colorado.

Mrs. Russell was formerly Miss Emma Green and for a time was with the family of Del Ryan, living in Grand Island. It is a most pleasurable visit for both Mr and Mrs. Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Mullen, and many old events are recalled, including the awful blizzard of 1873.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Keep Water in Battery.

Keep the plates of the storage battery covered with electrolyte by adding distilled water. Water evaporates from a battery and is also decomposed into oxygen and hydrogen gas while the battery is being charged.

A Radiator Tip.

If the sediment in the cooling system keeps the water from draining off, start the engine with the plug open. Vibration and pressure of the circulating water will usually suffice to disturb the sediment and start the water flowing out.

Crank Case Dilution.

Crank case dilution is the mixing of gasoline with oil. This will break down the viscosity or proper lubricating life of the oil and cause excessive wear on the bearings, and in very pronounced cases might score the cylinder, especially if the engine is run at high speed when cold. An engine which has been standing for sevral hours has very little oil on the pistons and cylinder walls, and when first starting care should be taken to allow parts to be well lubricated before running at high speed. Racing the engine or running at a high speed for two or three minutes when cold will do more to break down its life than ordinary driving will do in from 300 to 500 miles. One way to keep crank case dilution to a minimum is to use the choke properly and change the oil at regular intervals, approximately every 500 to 1,000 miles, or in accordance with the instructions provided by the manufacturer which accompany each car.

Brownell Hall, In Omaha, Established In 1863 By Bishop

Mrs. Philip Potter, in her History of Brownell Hall, says, "When, in 1860, Rev. Joseph. C. Talbot was consecrated bishop of the northwest, he chose Nebraska City for his residence. He found three parishes and three clergymen in Nebraska territory. Nebraska City was a point where the government had maintained a ferry and a fort. The latter, (Fort Kearney) had been moved farther west, but still there was a large amount of freighting going on and Nebraska City was a thriving settlement of well-built houses, a really beautiful and attractive town. The little church, still in use, was there, builit on part of the site of old Fort Kearney."

Bishop Talbot saw at once the lack of opportunities for Christian education, or, in fact for any education, for at that time there were no graded schools, high schools, railroads, telegraphs or telephones. Mail was carried by coach buckboard or horseback. Pavements, electricity, gas, coal, water systems, sewer systems, sewing machines and washing machines were unthought of. Saratoga Springs three miles north of Omaha, was chosen by Bishop Talbot as an ideal location for a girl's boarding school, and in 1863 Brownell Hall, so named in honor of Bishop Brownell of Connecticut, was opened.

In 1866 Brownell Hall was moved into Omaha and located at Sixteenth and Jones streets, where it remained until 1886 when a new building was erected at Tenth and Worthington streets. This location was abandoned after more than thirty years and the present quarters, which have been occupied for the last two years, are at fifty-fourth and Underwood. Here are an up-to-date, fireproof dormitory, spacious grounds, with tennis courts and space for outdoor sports. The school heads have striven to maintain the high standards of education and culture established by those first pioneers.

Work Out Plans to Give Farmers Power Machines On Terms

A financial plan which will enable every farmer to own a Fordson tractor, Oliver plow and harrow and other equipment without any inconvenience, was worked out by the Tractor, Implement and Equipment Distributors, according to word received by the Badger Equipment company, authorized distributors of the Omaha Ford district, at the recent convention in Chicago. Power machinery is to be placed in the farmer's hands under long-deferred payments.

The department of agriculture is pledged to a program that will bring good times back to the farmer and it feels, following a survey of the situation, that the best means of bringing prosperity to the farmer is to give him power driven equipment.

By means of this plan the Tractor, Implement and Equipment Distributors expect the business of farming to be placed on the same efficient, economical, productive basis as the manufacturing concern in the city.

New York City Buys 97 White Trucks To Make Fleet of 857

Another large order for motor trucks has been placed by the city of New York with the White company, the contract calling for ninety-seven heavy-duty units for use by the street cleaning department. As the trucks will be utilized principally for the collection and disposal of rubbish they will be equipped with unusually large bodies, a combination steel and wood panel type. The complete order of ninety-seven trucks will be delivered within 150 days.

New York city is by far the largest user of motor trucks among municipalities and has effected big savings by motorizing its street cleaning department. The city has been a large and consistent buyer of White truck equipment since 1920 when it started to motorize on a large scale say White company officials and has placed various orders with them ranging from ten to two hundred twelve trucks. The present order will give New York city a fleet of eight hundred fifty-seven Whites.

BELIEVES HE IS OLDEST SETTLER

Thomas I. Patterson Thinks No Living Man Has Lived Longer In State.

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 1.—Sixty-seven years ago today Thomas L. Patterson of this city came to Nebraska to make his home. He believes he has been a resident of the state longer than any other living man.

He crossed the Missouri river at Brownville, Neb., just four years after Nebraska had been declared a territory through the passage by congress of Stephen A. Douglas' famous squatters' sovereignty bill.

That was thirteen years before the first white settlers came to Adams county to make their home.

Lincoln was a small village and Omaha was very little larger.

For many years Mr. Patterson and his parents lived in Richardson county in the extreme southeastern part of the state. Trouble with Indians, squatters, grasshoppers, drouth, too much moisture, and lack of proper facilities for farming all tended to make their lives full of hardships.

Fought Indians.

Then the war broke out and Thomas Patterson enlisted in the Union forces. He was sent to the region around Fort Kearney to guard the west bound mails and keep down Indian troubles. Part of his company was in the battle of Shiloh, but at that time he, with a small group of comrades was having trouble enough around Fort Laramie, Wyo., seeking to force treaties with the Indians.

At one time they surprised 35,000 Indians, Mr. Patterson said, and managed to secure the coveted treaty after a brife struggle.

Speaking of the chill weather that has visited Nebraska the past week, Mr. Patterson recalled a frost during the night of August 27, 1863, while he was on his way to Fort Kearney to sell some grain. So severe was the frost that the corn in the lowlands was whitened.

Mail Guard.

During the days following the close of the Civil war, Mr. Patterson was for a time a guard of mails between Julesburg, Colo., and Fort Laramie, Wyo.

One a band of 500 Indians attacked the mail stage and Tom Powers, a Kansas man, was shot from his horse beside Patterson.

"When the mil came in from the east, we had to go," Mr. Patterson said. "No matter if it was hot or cold, day or night. We started instantly."

Mr. Patterson is in the best of health and takes a keen interest in the country's affairs. He has visited thirty states of the Union and many of the places he reads of are familiar to him through his own personal experiences.

Legion Post at O'Neill Takes Duties of the G. A. R. Group

(Special to The Star.)

O'NEILL, Neb., Aug. 1.—Soldiers of Simonson post of the American Legion relieved General O'Neill post of the G. A. R. of the last of its active duties at the funeral of William Clevish, of O'Neill, Civil war veteran, recently.

The once strong post now has dwindled to but two living members, one of whom is ill and bed-ridden. The other survivor, Charles Wrede of O'Neill, is 84 years old. He was crippled when struck by an automobile several years ago, but still is able to be about. Mr. Wrede as long as he is able, will attend all soldier funerals with the American Legion, bearing the colors of the once strong General O'Neill post of the Grand Army of the Republic. When he is gone it is his wish that the Legion post assume custody of the colors. The photograph shows the flag covered casket of Mr. Clevish about to be consigned to the grave Beside it stands the guard of honor, a soldier of the world war, a soldier of the Civil war, a soldier of the Spanish-American war and a sailor of the World war. CHAMP FROWNS ON WILLS BOUT

Dempsey Has No Intention to Mix With Negro, Although Kearns Plotting To Put Jack In Hole.

BY COPELAND C. BURG.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—In all probability, Dempsey will never fight again. This was the opinion expressed tonight by Jimmy DeForrest, former trainer of the heavyweight champion, after rushing across the continent from New York to spend a week here in conference with Dempsey.

"If Dempsey does not box Gene Tunney this fall, I don't think he will ever again enter the ring," declared DeForrest. "I do not think Dempsey will ever fight Wills. There is too much public sentiment against a bout between Dempsey and the negro and there is no promoter who wants to take the financial risk involved in a Dempsey-Wills match.

Protests Would Stop It.

"At the last moment, after thousands had been spent in planning the contest, it probably would be stopped because of nationwide protests.

"Wills is a great fighter and would give the champion a real battle. Certainly if Dempsey does not box this fall, and there is no Wills bout in 1926, he never will fight again.

"On July 4, 1926, it will be three full years since Jack has been in the ring. Muscles of the human body are like elastic. The 'rubber' in them dries up when the muscles are not used and there is no way to bring them back into proper shape. That is what is happening to Dempsey today. Too long an idle period will ruin his muscles."

DeForrest expressed surprise, however, at Dempsey's present condition.

Champion In Good Shape.

"He is in very good shape, considering his long layoff, and I believe his training could be rushed to get him in condition for a bout this fall," declared the veteran trainer, who prepared Dempsey for the Willard fight in 1919.

DeForrest said Dempsey had asked him to again become his trainer but that he had no intention of accepting.

"I am associated in the promotion of boxing in New York and naturally I will not step down to the position of trainer," he said

"Dempsey and Kearns are breaking up for all time, I am convinced, and after they have settled their affairs I have promised to again talk to Jack about going with him, but I do not think anything will come out of our conference."

Kearns to Play Trumps.

NEW WYORK, Aug. 1.—(United Press.)—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will be signed officially to an agreement here next week to fight Harry Wills for the title, it was learned today from a reliable source.

Jack Kearns, who handled all Dempsey's business until they had a recent disagreement, is on his way to New York, it was learned, and as a protective measure he is prepared to appear before the New York boxing commission and sign Dempsey's name to an acceptance of the negro's challenge.

There is on file now with the commission a copy of a contract between Dempsey and Kearns which specifies that Kearns has the authority to handle all the champion's professional affairs until September 1, 1926, and Kearns insists that he will force Dempsey to live up to the terms of the contract.

Claims Exclusive Rights.

Dempsey said when he returned from Europe that he had severed business relations with Kearns and that he was going to handle his own affairs in the future, but friends of Kearns said that the champion could not sign any kind of article for a fight without his permission.

LINING UP FOR RACQUET FEST

Compet On Lincoln Courts To Pull Best Talent In the State.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The 1925 Nebraska state tennis tournament, which will be played on the University courts August 10-15, promises to be the largest in Cornhusker annals and also the most representative.

The recquet sport throughout the state is enjoying a big boom and interest in tennis in Nebraska, according to reports, is the greatest since the war period. The vanguard of entries points to the presence of competitors from all sections of the state, with the question of title favorite up in the air.

Southwest Nebraska champions enrolled for the 1925 meet include H. W. Snyder of Hastings, southwest singles champion; Clarence Davis and Harry Ellis of Holdrege, southwest Nebraska doubles title-holders. The names of Davis and Ellis are almost a household word in Nebraska tennis circles, the pair having won three Nebraska team titles and annexed a long string of southwest crowns.

Southwest Well Represented.

Other ranking players from the southwest include the well-known doubles team of Finch Emmett and George Proud, Charles Patterson, veteran player, Don Patterson, runnerup to Snyder in the recent southwest tournament; Dwight Thomas, Newman, Stiner, Waggoner of Hastings, Curry, Magee, Miller and J. Patterson.

Eugene Staley of Hastings, two-time Nebraska college champion, is also expected to represent his section and figure in the running, while the college championship team of Lape and Rice of Grand Island college also may be in the race.

The veterans Charles Mathewson, and Paul Langenberg of Walthill will lead the northeast Nebraska delegation, which may also include Leo McMurphy, Wayne Normal summer champ. The Walthill players are an experienced combination that has always gone over strong in state tournaments, Mathewson being runner-up in 1923.

Fremont also promises to send a good representation, with probable contenders including Lester Monke, former college champion

York Sending Delegation.

The York group, always a factor in the settlement of championship honors, will include the veteran John Calvert, his son, Alfred, Rev. M. C. Young and Bob Russell. Young's playing featured the early rounds of the 1925 tourney, while Russell was paired with Don Elliott in the 1923 championship team. The Calverts have been playing a strong game of doubles this summer.

Seward, as usual, will be well represented. "Scotty" McKillip, of the famous McKillip-Geeson combination, will lead the Seward bunch, along with Ed Vail, Leonard Geeson, Paul Bek and Moritz

Other outstate players will include those from Cambridge, Beatrice, Nebraska City, Chadron, North Bend, Bennington and Fairbury.

Omaha In Running.

Omaha representation this year promises to be good-sized, as the Omaha Tennis club has organized the sport in Omaha. The list will include Ray Phelps, Gordon Diesing, Ben Stilphen, J. D Ringwalt, Swenson and probably Ralph Powell David Davis, Art Scribner and John Brotherton.

Powell and Davis will enter the Nebraska tourney if they can spare the time from business duties.

Lincoln's entry list will include Paul Mahood, present state singles

Diller Shooter Defends Trophy

DILLER, Neb., Aug. 1. — At a shoot of the Diller Gun club here Friday, fifteen local prizes were awarded and the title to the diamond trophy of eastern Nebraska was again successfully defended by Waggoner of Diller. Waggoner, who is a hardware merchant of Diller, has been a crack shot in all shoots for the past several years. The day was windy, making choppy targets, and high scores were impossible. Waggoner turned in the high individual score with a count of 93 in 100. W. T. Voss, also of Diller, won second with a score of 80. C. L. Green of Lincoln took third with a score of 8?

The diamond trophy, which must be defended every thirty days, in order to hold it until the state shoot next May, will next be defended at the Prairie Zone shoot at Hastings, August 9. The dates for the shoot are August 9, 10 and 11.

PIRATES PULLED FROM TOP PLACE

Corsairs Take Tumble When Phils Win Both Ends Of Doubleheader.

GIANTS IN FIRST PLACE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Pittsburgh was nosed out of first place in the National league pennant race today when the lowly Philadelphia Phillies won a doubleheader from the Pirates. The Giants, with Zeeke Barnes on the slab, downed the St. Louis Cardinals and moved up into the lead with the narrow margin of two points.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 1. — The once lowly Phillies surprised the league leading Pirates this afternoon by downing them twice in a doubleheader and sending the pennant race into a virtual deadlock betwee the Pirates and the Giants.

After Decatur had stopped them in the first game, 3 to 2, Ring pitched a five-hit game and the Pirates lost again, 4 to 2, Meadows, who worked for the Pirates in the second game, yielded only seven hits, but four Pirate errors wasted his efforts. The scores.

Cubs Easy Picking For Brooklyn Club

CHICAGO, Aug. 1—The Dodgers had little trouble in downing the Cubs, 5 to 1, today in the opener of the series Grimes allowed only seven hits, while the visitors got 17. Cox's homer with a man on in the second would have been enough to win, but to make it more certain they put over five runs in the eighth which included Brown's homer. The score.

CHAMP FROWNS ON WILLS BOUT

BY COPELAND C. BURG.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—In all probability, Dempsey will never fight again. This was the opinion expressed tonight by Jimmy DeForrest, former trainer of the heavyweight champion, after rushing across the continent from New York to spend a week here in conference with Dempsey.

"If Dempsey does not box Gene Tunney this fall, I don't think he will ever again enter the ring," declared DeForrest. "I do not think Dempsey will ever fight Wills. There is too much public sentiment against a bout between Dempsey and the negro and there is no promoter who wants to take the financial risk involved in a Dempsey-Wills match.

Protests Would Stop It.

"At the last moment, after thousands had been spent in planning the contest, it probably would be stopped because of nationwide protests.

"Wills is a great fighter and would give the champion a real battle. Certainly if Dempsey does not box this fall, and there is no Wills bout in 1926, he never will fight again.

"On July 4, 1926, it will be three full years since Jack has been in the ring. Muscles of the human body are like elastic. The 'rubber' in them dries up when the muscles are not used and there is no way to bring them back into proper shape. That is what is happening to Dempsey today. Too long an idle period will ruin his muscles."

DeForrest expressed surprise, however, at Dempsey's present condition.

Champion In Good Shape.

"He is in very good shape, considering his long layoff, and I believe his training could be rushed to get him in condition for a bout this fall," declared the veteran trainer, who prepared Dempsey for the Willard fight in 1919.

DeForrest said Dempsey had asked him to again become his trainer but that he had no intention of accepting.

"I am associated in the promotion of boxing in New York and naturally I will not step down to the position of trainer," he said.

"Dempsey and Kearns are breaking up for all time, I am convinced, and after they have settled their affairs I have promised to again talk to Jack about going with him, but I do not think anything will come out of our conference."

Kearns to Play Trumps.

NE WYORK, Aug. 1.—(United Press.) — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will be signed officially to an agreement here next week to fight Harry Wills for the title, it was learned today from a reliable source.

Jack Kearns, who handled all Dempsey's business until they had a recent disagreement, is on his way to New York, it was learned, and as a protective measure he is prepared to appear before the New York boxing commission and sign Dempsey's name to an acceptance of the negro's challenge.

There is on file now with the commission a copy of a contract between Dempsey and Kearns which specifies that Kearns has the authority to handle all the champion's professional affairs until September 1, 1926, and Kearns insists that he will force Dempsey to live up to the terms of the contract.

Claims Exclusive Rights.

Dempsey said when he returned from Europe that he had severed business relations with Kearns and that he was going to handle his own affairs in the future, but friends of Kearns said that the champion could not sign any kind of article for a fight without his permission.

LINING UP FOR RACQUET FEST

Compet On Lincoln Courts To Pull Best Talent In the State.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The 1925 Nebraska state tennis tournament, which will be played on the University courts August 10-15, promises to be the largest in Cornhusker annals and also the most representative.

The recquet sport throughout the state is enjoying a big boom and interest in tennis in Nebraska, according to reports, is the greatest since the war period. The vanguard of entries points to the presence of competitors from all sections of the state, with the question of title favorite up in the air.

Southwest Nebraska champions enrolled for the 1925 meet include H. W. Snyder of Hastings, southwest singles champion; Clarence Davis and Harry Ellis of Holdrege, southwest Nebraska doubles title-holders. The names of Davis and Ellis are almost a household word in Nebraska tennis circles, the pair having won three Nebraska team titles and annexed a long string of southwest crowns.

Southwest Well Represented.

Other ranking players from the southwest include the well-known doubles team of Finch Emmett and George Proud, Charles Patterson, veteran player, Don Patterson, runnerup to Snyder in the recent southwest tournament; Dwight Thomas, Newman, Stiner, Waggoner of Hastings, Curry, Magee, Miller and J. Patterson.

Eugene Staley of Hastings, two-time Nebraska college champion, is also expected to represent his section and figure in the running, while the college championship team of Lape and Rice of Grand Island college also may be in the race.

The veterans Charles Mathewson, and Paul Langenberg of Walthill will lead the northeast Nebraska delegation, which may also include Leo McMurphy, Wayne Normal summer champ. The Walthill players are an experienced combination that has always gone over strong in state tournaments, Mathewson being runner-up in 1923.

Fremont also promises to send a good representation, with probable contenders including Lester Monke, former college champion.

York Sending Delegation.

The York group, always a factor in the settlement of championship honors, will include the veteran John Calvert, his son, Alfred, Rev. M. C. Young and Bob Russell. Young's playing featured the early rounds of the 1925 tourney, while Russell was paired with Don Elliott in the 1923 championship team. The Calverts have been playing a strong game of doubles this summer.

Seward, as usual, will be well represented. "Scotty" McKillip, of the famous McKillip-Geeson combination, will lead the Seward bunch, along with Ed Vail, Leonard Geeson, Paul Bek and Moritz.

Other outstate players will include those from Cambridge, Beatrice, Nebraska City, Chadron, North Bend, Bennington and Fairbury.

Omaha In Running.

Omaha represetation this year promises to be good-sized, as the Omaha Tennis club has organized the sport in Omaha. The list will include Ray Phelps, Gordon Dieging, Ben Stilphen, J. D. Ringwalt, Swenson and probably Ralph Fowell David Davis, Art Scribner and John Brotherton.

Powell and Davis will enter the Nebraska tourney if they can spare the time from business duties.

Diller Shooter Defends Trophy

DILLER, Neb., Aug. 1. — At a shoot of the Diller Gun club here Friday, fifteen local prizes were awarded and the title to the diamond trophy of eastern Nebraska was again successfully defended by Waggoner of Diller. Waggoner, who is a hardware merchant of Diller, has been a crack shot in all shoots for the past several years. The day was windy, making choppy targets, and high scores were impossible. Waggoner turned in the high individual score with a count of 93 in 100. W. T. Voss, also of Diller, won second with a score of 80. C. L. Green of Lincoln took third with a score of 89.

The diamond trophy, which must be defended every thirty days, in order to hold it until the state shoot next May, will next be defended at the Prairie Zone shoot at Hastings, August 9. The dates for the shoot are August 9, 10 and 11.

GIANTS IN FIRST PLACE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Pittsburgh was nosed out of first place in the National league pennant race today when the lowly Philadelphia Phillies won a doubleheader from the Pirates. The Giants, with Zeeke Barnes on the slab, downed the St. Louis Cardinals and moved up into the lead with the narrow margin of two points.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 1. — The once lowly Phillies surprised the league leading Pirates this afternoon by downing them twice in a double-header and sending the pennant race into a virtual deadlock betwee the Pirates and the Giants.

After Decatur had stopped them in the first game, 3 to 2, Ring pitched a five-hit game and the Pirates lost again, 4 to 2, Meadows, who worked for the Pirates in the second game, yielded only seven hits, but four Pirate errors wasted his efforts. The scores:

The BULL'S EYE

EVOLUTION

THIS is the second issue of the Bull's Eye dealing with that question which everybody is interested in, Evolution. Last week we showed the Mayflower descendants originated from the Ape. This week we will take those who didn't claim to come from Mayflower Descendants. (There won't be many in this bunch.)

Some people certainly are making a fight against the Ape. It seems the truth kinder hurts. Now, if a man didn't act like a Monkey, he wouldn't have to be proving that he didn't come from one. Personally I like Monkeys. If we were half as original as they are, we would never be suspected of coming from something else. They never accuse Monkeys of coming from anybody else. They are unique and original—that's why. You never saw a Monkey have to have a Factory roll his Cigarette, did you? No, Sir. You give a Monkey a Sack of "Bull" Durham and the Papers and you will see registered in his face real satisfaction. I have seen them scheme all day to get ahold of a sack of "Bull" Durham.

New York commission that he was denied a license to act as the second for Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion in the recent fight he had against Harry Greb, the middleweight champion.

Kearns not only was refused a second's license but he was denied admission to the park and he had to listen in on the radio account of the fight from a supper club in the "Roaring Forties."

Kearns, while the fight with the commission was under way, was advised by his friends to sign the heavyweight champion to an agreement to fight Wills and clear himself, but he refused to do it. He said he feared that Dempsey would refuse to live up to the agreement and that the commission would have no alternative but to hand the title to Wills by default.

Dempsey has been given until Tuesday by the New York commission to announce what plans he has made definitely about the acceptance of the Wills challenge. In an exclusive interview over the long distance telephone, Dempsey told the writer that he was going to appear at the meeting and that Tex Rickard, New York promoter, had the power of attorney to represent him

Commish Ready to Act.

The story which the United Press carried last Tuesday that the commission was out of patience with Dempsey and that they would declare the title vacant at its meeting next Tuesday has not been denied officially.

It was learned then that the commission would recommend that Wills and Gene Tunney would meet this fall and that the winner would be recognized as the world's champion.

This report was confirmed rather substantially when Rickard admitted that he had reached a tentative agreement with the managers of Wills and Tunney to meet in the Yankee stadium this fall.

Rickard's office today said that he was in the market for any good heavyweight fight this fall and that he had been given reason to believe that Dempsey would not engage in a big fight this year.

woman player in Europe, displayed keen strategy in her game against Miss Wills, but it was admitted that the soggy condition of a court that had been soaked by an all-night rain upset the game of the young champion.

The English girl discarded her shoes after the first game of the match and went to victory in her stocking feet. She seemed to find the soft going of the turf exactly to her liking and she chose a stroke attack that forced the hard hitting young champion into error after error.

Miss Ryan's strokes had such little rebound that Miss Wills could not reach them from the base line and when she did attempt a return they landed continuously in the net.

Tilden to New York.

Several prominent officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association and William T. Tilden, the national champion, left for New York at the conclusion of the program, where Tilden is to answer charges tonight that he has violated the amateur rule in allowing himself to be interviewed by his syndicate on the play in a recent tournament at St. Louis in which he was competing.

Tilden said he felt sure he could convince the executive committee of the association that he had not been malicious in any attempt to evade the Amateur rule. He said that he had been interviewed about only one tournament and that he had done nothing to antagonize the association after he had learned that he was in bad standing with the officials.

Juniors Clash In Tennis Test On Uni. Courts

The city junior tennis tournament is due to get under way Monday at the state university courts. The entrants this year will be divided into two classes—the "kids," which will include all those under the age of 14, and the "juniors," al those under the age of 18

There were over fifty boys who signed up for play last year, while up to date there have been only thirty signatures placed on the dotted line for this year's tourney. Although there will be no doubles played this year, the number of entrants should exceed that of last year.

Of the thirty entrants, seven are "kids" and the remaining twenty-three are "juniors." All these have signed up at the Y. M. C. A., where Mr. Warrington checks on their akes and advises them as to the group they must enter. All boys who expect to play should be registered by 10 o'clock Monday morning.

The BULL'S EYE

EVOLUTION

THIS is the second issue of the Bull's Eye dealing with that question which everybody is interested in, Evolution. Last week we showed the Mayflower descendants originated from the Ape. This week we will take those who didn't claim to come from Mayflower Descendants. (There won't be many in this bunch.)

Some people certainly are making a fight against the Ape. It seems the truth kinder hurts. Now, if a man didn't act like a Monkey, he wouldn't have to be proving that he didn't come from one. Personally I like Monkeys. If we were half as original as they are, we would never be suspected of coming from something else. They never accuse Monkeys of coming from anybody else. They are unique and original—that's why. You never saw a Monkey have to have a Factory roll his Cigarette, did you? No, Sir. You give a Monkey a Sack of "Bull" Durham and the Papers and you will see registered in his face real satisfaction. I have seen them scheme all day to get ahold of a sack of "Bull" Durham.

Will Rogers

P. S. There is going to be another piece in this paper soon. Watch for it.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS AGO!

In 1860 a blend of tobaccowasborn-"Bull" Durham. On quality alone it has won recognition wherever tobacco is known. It still offers the public this — more flavor, more enjoyment and a lot more money left at the end of a week's smoking.

New York commission that he was denied a license to act as the second for Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion, in the recent fight he had against Harry Greb, the middleweight champion.

Kearns not only was refused a second's license but he was denied admission to the park and he had to listen in on the radio account of the fight from a supper club in the "Roaring Forties."

Kearns, while the fight with the commission was under way, was advised by his friends to sign the heavyweight champion to an agreement to fight Wills and clear himself, but he refused to do it. He said he feared that Dempsey would refuse to live up to the agreement and that the commission would have no alternative but to hand the title to Wills by default.

Dempsey has been given until Tuesday by the New York commission to announce what plans he has made definitely about the acceptance of the Wills challenge. In an exclusive interview over the long distance telephone, Dempsey told the writer that he was going to appear at the meeting and that Tex Rickard, New York promoter, had the power of attorney to represent him.

Commish Ready to Act.

The story which the United Press carried last Tuesday that the commission was out of patience with Dempsey and that they would declare the title vacant at its meeting next Tuesday has not been denied officially.

It was learned then that the commission would recommend that Wills and Gene Tunney would meet this fall and that the winner would be recognized as the world's champion.

This report was confirmed rather substantially when Rickard admitted that he had reached a tentative agreement with the managers of Wills and Tunney to meet in the Yankee stadium this fall.

Rickard's office today said that he was in the market for any good heavyweight fight this fall and that he had been given reason to believe that Dempsey would not engage in a big fight this year.

OLYMPIC CHAMP HUMBLES ANZAC

woman player in Europe, displayed keen strategy in her game against Miss Wills, but it was admitted that the soggy condition of a court that had been soaked by an all-night rain upset the game of the young champion.

The English girl discarded her shoes after the first game of the match and went to a victory in her stocking feet. She seemed to find the soft going of the turf exactly to her liking and she chose a stroke attack that forced the hard hitting young champion into error after error.

Miss Ryan's strokes had such little rebound that Miss Wills could not reach them from the base line and when she did attempt a return they landed continuously in the net.

Tilden to New York.

Several prominent officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association and William T. Tilden, the national champion, left for New York at the conclusion of the program, where Tilden is to answer charges tonight that he has violated the amateur rule in allowing himself to be interviewed by his syndicate on the play in a recent tournament at St. Louis in which he was competing.

Tilden said he felt sure he could convince the executive committee of the association that he had not been malicious in any attempt to evade the Amateur rule. He said that he had been interviewed about only one tournament and that he had done nothing to antagonize the association after he had learned that he was in bad standing with the officials.

They Form Reds' Hurling Staff.

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

Back in the "old days" the veterans like to talk about, ball clubs ambled along through the campaign with three good pitchers. Then more stringent pitching rules, modern ideas of handling teams—and modern ideas of how much a pitcher ought to work, changed things. Pitching staffs were enlarged to meet conditions.

Old-time hurlers won from 40 to 50 games a season. This number dwindled. Nowadays pitchers strive to win 25 games and are rated as great pitchers of the year if they equal that mark.

All of which is sort of preliminary to calling attention to the herculean efforts being made by three members of the Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff to carry that team to victory in a red-hot race in the National league.

These three men are Adolfo Luque, Pete Donohue and Eppa Rixey. Recent average show that this trio has won all but a scant half dozen or so of the games grabbed by the Reds to date. If one wants to point out the cause for the failure of the Reds to soar higher in the race one need only cite the failure of Carl Mays, Jakie May and Rube Benton to support the three stars named. Had one of these latter three hit a winning stride at any time during the campaign the National league club standings might appear much different. Had any one of these won as many as Luque, Donohue or Rixey, or had all three contributed a dozen victories the Reds would now be in first place—fighting off the Giants and Pirates.

Right now Luque is pitching the best game of his career. In shutting out the Phillies one day recently Luque not only boosted the winning streak of his team to four games but ran his total of strikeout victims to eighteen in two games.

Donohue is living up to expectations. Benton is coming through as the Red bosses hoped he would last year. In the 1924 campaign much was expected of him, but he won only seven games and lost nine. He passed the seven-victory mark some time ago this season and is still going strong.

Mays had only a fair year last season and his poor work this season probably spells the end of the submarine hurler's big league career. Jakie May, Coast star, failed to get going last year. Won three games and lost the same number. Much was expected of the tiny one this season. He has not rounded into form to date, however.

So, unless the unexpected happens, Luque, Benton and Donohue will have twirled in vain.

INGLESIDE TO BE MUCH IMPROVED

Crops At Institution In Fine Condition and Flocks Flourishing.

(Special to The Star)

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 1.—The state hospital for insane at Ingleside will increase the size of its purebred Holstein dairy herd by 20 cows, erect a new horse barn to take the place of the one destroyed by lightning, and start digging a new well ready for the installation of complete pumping equipment to supplement its present water system this fall, Superintendent Fast announced today.

The hospital's dairy herd is considered one of the finest in the middle west. During the summer careful tests have been made to determine which animals were paying best in the herd and which might come under the head of "boarders." The latter have all been weeded out and their places are to be filled by the best cattle obtainable.

The new horse barn, which is to be erected on the same site where two previous structures have been destroyed by lightning, will require more than a carload of lumber. It will be equipped with lightning rods at the suggestion of L. C. Oberlies, chairman of the board of control, as a precaution against further losses there. There will probably be a sprinkling system, also, Dr. Fast said.

The new well and pumping equipment is to be installed at the plant to protect the hospital in case of emergency such as the temporary break in one of the other pumps, or a bad fire.

The year has been unusually favorable for the hospital farm. Crops have seldom looked better. Corn is uninjured by the hot dry weather that left many fields in the county yellow and sick-looking. Sixty-five acres of potatoes give promise of supplying a sufficient quantity to last the institution through the winter.

That means about 6,000 bushels.

In the farm flocks, there are 4,000 young chickens of fry age and more than a thousand ducks hatched this spring.

Farms Big Tract Without Horses

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., August 1.—That tractor farming can be made a success has been demonstrated by A. O. Hollinbrink near Torrington, where crop from a farm containing 300 acres of wheat, 100 acres of corn and sixty-five acres of potatoes, is just now being harvested by machinery. The grain is running 29 bushels to the acre and the corn will probably yield 80 bushels to the acre. While the potatoes are giving 125 sacks to the acre, and there has not been a horse on the place all season. The plowing, harrowing, planting and tending was all done by motor machinery, and the harvesting will be done in like manner.

Cadillac Announces V-Eight Models

NEW CLEVELAND SIX ON DISPLAY

Have Improvements to Give Greater Convenience and Serviceability.

"In keeping with the tendency of the average automobile buyer's demand for greater convenience each year in motor cars, the Cleveland Automobile company, in introducing its 1926 line of automobiles, has incorporated improvements which tend not only to promote greater convenience for the owner, but to increase the car's serviceability," states the Card-Adams Co., local distributors for the Cleveland six.

"The new Cleveland six line comprises two distinct types of cars on two different chasses, the special and standard six series. Three closed models and three open type bodies constitute the Special six models; a sedan and touring car are included in the Standard six series, making eight body styles in the two lines.

"Throughout the body designs there is a touch of Europe characterized by long, low lines and smart appearance. As a whole, the new presentation of cars is pleasingly conspicuous because of the striking array of blue, green and gray body shades

"Both Cleveland six series incorporate what has proved a big boon to motorists—'one shot' automatic chassis lubrication The first company to adopt as standard equipment a centralized system of automatic lubrication for the chassis, the Cleveland Automobile company, is continuing its use on new 1926 models

"The 'one shot' system banishes lubrication worries. All the driver of a Cleveland six has to do is to step on the plunger of the 'one shot' reservoir and clean, fresh oil is forced under pressure to twenty-three points of the chassis, to every part that needs lubrication.

Two Seconds to Oil.

"There is no need to worry about each part getting the right amount of oil. That is automatically regulated by small meters. Whether moving at a high speed or standing still, the chassis can be oiled in two seconds by pressing the plunger Grease gun and oil can are absolute with this system

"Rapid strides are being made by motor car companies in the adoption of automatic chassis lubrication systems. Several of the more expensive cars have already fallen into line within the last few months by using chassis oiling systems which are automatic, but the Cleveland six is the only car with the 'one shot' method of lubricating the entire car.

"After every 500 miles of driving, the owner of a 1926 Cleveland will not have to put on his overalls and get under the car to drain the oil from the motor. It is only necessary to lift the hood and turn a conveniently located 'oil drain handle. An oil filler is equally accessible The Cleveland six was the first car to specify an oil drain of this type, but now many of the higher priced cars are using a similar device

"To facilitate steering and to balance properly the handling of the car with balloon tires over all road conditions, there is a special design of steering mechanism. It permits the car to be turned in a small radius and is an advantage in parking in congested districts.

Abuse of the Car.

Many owners misuse a car through ignorance of what is good for it and what is bad for it and misuse therefore is not always intentional The modern car has been so simplified that there is hardly any reason to plead ignorance to the proper care. The principal abuse arises in the handling of the car, for many will drive along for miles with several cylinders missing, disregarding entirely the stress which it places on the working parts of the engine. Others will disengage the clutch at the top of a hill as they start the descent, putting the weight of the car, its momentum, and the increase in speed on the brakes when stopping suddenly at the bottom of the hill Is it any wonder brakes become defective and fail when most needed? Brakes are intended to retard the momentum of the car.

Stops your car Quicker!

"I stopped my car in 28 feet going 20 miles an hour!"

"I HAVE made a test," says Joe M. Woods, of 1514 Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill., "and I find that I can stop my Oldsmobile, equipped with two-wheel brakes, lined with Rusco Brake Lining, in 28 feet, going 20 miles per hour."

That's how safe Rusco-lined, properly adjusted two-wheel brakes will make your car. A lining will pass police inspection if it will stop in 35 feet going 20 miles per hour. Rusco stops 7 feet quicker! With death or a costly crash just ahead, 7 feet leeway is a godsend.

Wet weather makes no difference

RUSCO is an all-weather lining. It will grip and hold just as well in wet weather as in dry. Water makes no difference to Rusco's stopping ability. It is treated with a special compound that makes it resist water, oil, dirt and wear. It will not burn.

Your repair man pays more for Rusco than for other brands of lining but he doesn't charge you more.

IN GIVING you Rusco—the finest quality brake lining it is possible for the repair man to obtain—he accepts a less profit than if he sold you any other brand. When your brakes need relining, be sure to get the benefit of Rusco superiority and the conscientious service of a repair man who is willing to take less profit in order to give you a better job. Have your brakes inspected and relined at any of the garages listed below. They are brake lining experts, using special electrical equipment for counter-sinking rivets in lining and riveting lining to brake band.

Farms Big Tract Without Horses

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., August 1.—That tratcor farming can be made a success has been demonstrated by A. O. Hollinbrink near Torrington, where crop from a farm containing 300 acres of wheat, 100 acres of corn and sixty-five acres of potatoes, is just now being harvested by machinery. The grain is running 20 bushels to the acre and the corn will probably yield 80 bushels to the acre. While the potatoes are giving 125 sacks to the acre, and there has not been a horse on the place all season. The plowing, harrowing, planting and tending was all done by motor machinery, and the harvesting will be done in like manner.

NEW CLEVELAND SIX ON DISPLAY

Have Improvements to Give Greater Convenience and Serviceability.

"In keeping with the tendency of the average automobile buyer's demand for greater convenience each year is motor cars, the Cleveland Automobile company, in introducing its 1926 line of automobiles, has incorporated improvements which tend not only to promote greater convenience for the owner, but to increase the car's serviceability," states the Card-Adams Co., local distributors for the Cleveland six.

"The new Cleveland six line comprises two distinct types of cars on two different chasses, the special and standard six series. Three closed models and three open type bodies constitute the Special six models; a sedan and touring car are included in the Standard six series, making eight body styles in the two lines.

"Throughout the body designs there is a touch of Europe characterized by long, low lines and smart appearance. As a whole, the new presentation of cars is pleasingly conspicuous because of the striking array of blue, green and gray body shades.

"Both Cleveland six series incorporate what has proved a big boon to motorists—'one shot' automatic chassis lubrication. The first company to adopt as standard equipment a centralized system of automatic lubrication for the chassis, the Cleveland Automobile company, is continuing its use on new 1926 models.

"The 'one shot' system banishes lubrication worries. All the driver of a Cleveland six has to do is to step on the plunger of the 'one shot' reservoir and clean, fresh oil is forced under pressure to twenty-three points of the chassis, to every part that needs lubrication.

Two Seconds to Oil.

"There is no need to worry about each part getting the right amount of oil. That is automatically regulated by small meters. Whether moving at a high speed or standing still, the chassis can be oiled in two seconds by pressing the plunger. Grease gun and oil can are absolute with this system.

"Rapid strides are being made by motor car companies in the adoption of automatic chassis lubrication systems. Several of the more expensive cars have already fallen into line within the last few months by using chassis oiling systems which are automatic, but the Cleveland six is the only car with the 'one shot' method of lubricating the entire car.

"After every 500 miles of driving, the owner of a 1926 Cleveland will not have to put on his overalls and get under the car to drain the oil from the motor. It is only necessary to lift the hood and turn a conveniently located oil drain handle. An oil filler is equally accessible. The Cleveland six was the first car to specify an oil drain of this type, but now many of the higher priced cars are using a similar device.

"To facilitate steering and to balance properly the handling of the car with balloon tires over all road conditions, there is a special design of steering mechanism. It permits the car to be turned in a small radius and is an advantage in parking in congested districts.

Abuse of the Car.

Many owners misuse a car through ignorance of what is good for it and what is bad for it and misuse therefore is not always intentional. The modern car has been so simplified that there is hardly any reason to plead ignorance to the proper care. The principal abuse arises in the handling of the car, for many will drive along for miles with several cylinders missing, disregarding entirely the stress which it places on the working parts of the engine. Others will disengage the clutch at the top of a hill as they start the descent, putting the weight of the car, its momentum, and the increase in speed on the brakes when stopping suddenly at the bottom of the hill. Is it any wonder brakes become defective and fail when most needed? Brakes are intended to retard the momentum of the car.

Stops your car Quicker!
"I stopped my car in 28 feet going 20 miles an hour!"

"I HAVE made a test," says Joe M. Woods, of 1514 Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill., "and I find that I can stop my Oldsmobile, equipped with two-wheel brakes, lined with Rusco Brake Lining, in 28 feet, going 20 miles per hour."

That's how safe Rusco-lined, properly adjusted two-wheel brakes will make your car. A lining will pass police inspection if it will stop in 35 feet going 20 miles per hour. Rusco stops 7 feet quicker! With death or a costly crash just ahead, 7 feet leeway is a godsend.

Wet weather makes no difference

RUSCO is an all-weather lining. It will grip and hold just as well in wet weather as in dry. Water makes no difference to Rusco's stopping ability. It is treated with a special compound that makes it resist water, oil, dirt and wear. It will not burn.

Your repair man pays more for Rusco than for other brands of lining but he doesn't charge you more.

IN GIVING you Rusco—the finest quality brake lining it is possible for the repair man to obtain—he accepts a less profit than if he sold you any other brand. When your brakes need relining, be sure to get the benefit of Rusco superiority and the conscientious service of a repair man who is willing to take less profit in order to give you a better job. Have your brakes inspected and relined at any of the garages listed below. They are brake lining experts, using special electrical equipment for counter-sinking rivets in lining and riveting lining to brake band.

PREDICTIONS OF GREAT SHOWS IN FALL HABIT NOW

BY BRETT PAGE

NEW YORK CITY Aug 1— While the legitimate theater simmers through this portion of the summer the prospectuses of various managers bristle with preliminary announcements of good things which will come into being with the fall

Perhaps the first bulletin that I ought to issue to my readers is the far from uninteresting one that the ever active Shuberts have really pulled a totally unsuspected surprise—a surprise unless I am grievously wrong that is going to intrigue every woman in the country not to mention flappers subflappers and innumerable grandmas

This bombshell is nothing less than a musical comedy version of The Sheik by Edith M Hull which has already seer the calcium light in the movies and the number of whose enthralled readers is quite beyond my comprehension

On the screen this discreetly sizzling romance of hot sands hot hearts and hot heads was visualized by Rudolph Valentino and Agnes Ayres as the noble wild man and his quarry On the stage so rumor now goes Hope Hampton will figure as the pursued and the adoring beauty while Walter Woolf is to be cast as the dusky object of her devotions Miss Hampton has had a brief but very lively career Originally a picture star of considerable good looks she was announced to sing the title role in the foreign operetta Madame Pompadour but a last minute switch in casting threw her out and threw in Wilda Bennet

Miss Hampton a Drawing Card

Miss Hampton who is a statuesque blonde with features of classic regularity recently turned down an offer to appear in Riquette another exotic importation which might be explained on the score of the Pompadour episode She has a large following in the cinema and her selection if it be authentic for the new piece indicates a clever sense of the box office on the Shuberts part

Mr Woolf whose last metropolitan appearance was in the late Victor Herberts The Dream Girl founded on that whimsical romance The Road to Yesterday is one of the ablest baritones in musical comedy He has a suave stage presence is romantically brunette and can be counted on to awe many (oh many) ladies in the audience

There are a good many other musical productions pending and not a few in rehearsal A L Erlanger is early in the field with Lady Liberty written by the prolific Anne Caldwell and John V Hazzard and set to tunes by Raymond Hubbell

Meanwhile very little is stirring as regards comedies without music in New York and the name of tragedy is as forgotten as though Mrs Siddons had never lived Now and then a new play bobs up the latest warm weather specimen being What Women Do Zealous as I am to recommend anything that can be recommended to incoming visitors I must in all due intellectual humility state that What Women Do is not improper not novel, and not at all thrilling If you look to garner your laughs by seeing unfortunate actors cast for sad roles that evoke titters this should suit you

Musical Comedy Smiles Through

Better things can be expected of "The Morning After scheduled to open at the Hudson on Monday next. Len Hollister and Leona Stephens are co authors of the piece which has a notable cast This includes Donald Foster a rising young juvenile who has scored individual hits in Connie Goes Home, Cock o the Walk and in a recent London production the lovely Kay Johnson heroine of "Beggar on Horseback A H Van Buren, who portrayed the Earl of Warwick in Bernard Shaws "Saint Joan" so admirably Arthur Aylsworth the comic of Chicken Feed the reliable Gypsy O Brien Emma Wise who enacted the colored servant in Minick with true artistry and Anne Morrison author of The Wild Westcotts and co author of Pigs Nor I all is known about The Morning After except that it has been tried out briefly on the road The title is any rate promising

In the meantime musical news distinctly has the call along the "White Way It survives lustily when other admirable but tuneless attractions have withered in the fiery breath of mid summer The motion pictures too find their public reinforced in such days as these

The most eagerly awaited event in the silent drama is Raoul Walsh's production of The Wanderer made from the stage play which Cornstock and Gest scheduled early presented It will be seen this time at the Criterion and I shall have something to say about it later

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—For some time I have had in mind the writing of a moving picture play but have never gotten around to it

I have in mind a mystery play dealing with the sea Would you care to look over a plot dealing with this subject?

Do you know, I am getting disgusted with the movies or a lot of them

So many of the stories are adapted from some of the good books but are overdrawn to such an extent that one has a good reason for tiring of the present day interpretation of them

To illustrate I have just returned from a movie in which the picture was "Forty Winks Now when it started there was a very good plot but at the last there were all sorts of improbable situations brought in

The very idea of having a picture when the rescue has been made of very valuable papers gets one's goat

When a perfectly good story is hashed up like that can you wonder that one gets riled?

I would have shown where the papers were restored to the young man who was responsible for them his restoration to the good graces of his superior officer the punishment of the guilty parties and the reward of him who spent much time to run down the guilty ones

Why can't the movie directors see that they will not gain anything by such tactics

One other thing I have seen three pictures imitating the picture Go Get 'Em Man Why imitate when there are a lot of original stories to be picturized?

Well as I have ranted enough for this time I'll close.—DRAMO Fairbury Neb

Do you know if I were you and had a good plot for a sea story I would try the magazines first You would be much more apt to have your script accepted by a motion picture company if it had first been published in story form

So many of the studios have their own scenario staffs to prepare material for the screen that it is almost impossible for an outsider to break in with a scenario unless it is decidedly unusual in plot

Most of the stories that are accepted from the general public by the studios are by some authors or persons prominent in the literary world because of the advertising value it gives the picture

It is true that the novels filmed are often so slaughtered the author could hardly recognize his own brain child I agree with you that many of the picture plots are trite and weak In the past the producers have paid more attention to the stars in the picture than they have to the story but they are beginning to realize their folly and are paying enormous sums for the screen rights of the good stories with unusual features

In the picture Forty Winks the ending may have been a little abrupt but on the whole don't you think it was well enough to leave the rest to our imagination The conclusion you drew for the ending would be the natural conclusion under the circumstances Had there been anything different or out of the ordinary in the ending they surely would have pictured it

All good box office pictures produced by one company are usually imitated by the other companies They figure that if the picture of that type brought in the shekels for the company that made it it will do the same for them That's the reason when we see one good costume picture we are apt to have costume pictures forced upon us in innumerable quantities for a season When Normal Talmadge made such a hit in Secrets by going from youth to old age in the picture Colleen Moore Mae Murray and a dozen or so others did the same thing Norma herself even tried it again

Something new something unusual something catchy and above all something with a touch of comedy is what the producers are looking for and if you think you have the goods it would surely do no harm to try to peddle them

Dear Movie Editor—Would you please send me the addresses of the following stars? I am making a collection of picture of my favorites and I would be glad if you would send me their addresses Ramon Novarro Conway Tearle Frank Mayo Ronald Colman Thomas Meighan Norma Talmadge Corinne Griffith Richard Dix Gloria Swanson Jack Gilbert Milton Sills and Kenneth arlan

How old are Ronald Colman and Ramon Novarro? Has Jack Gilbert married again?

Please tell me the life story of Norma Talmadge Kindly answer this leter as soon as it is convenien

Thanking you very much I remain Yours truly MARY Seward Neb

Ramon Novarfro has a letter box at the Metro-Goldwin Mayer lot Culver City Calif Jack Gilbert could be found there also

Conway Tearle is with First National Pictures United Studios Hollywood Calif Frank Mayo works for Dallas M Fitz productions United Studios Hollywood Calif Corinne Griffith has the same address as Conway Norma Talmadge and Ronald Colman also work at United Studios Hollywood Calif The street address is 5843 Melrose avenue Just at present Kenneth Harlan is also working there Thomas Meghan is with Famous Players Lasky New York City and Gloria Swanson and Richard Dix are also with that company, but they are at the Hollywood studio 1520 Vine street. Milton Sills is with First National Productions, Biograph Studio New York City

Ramon Novarro is quite young for the honors he carries He was born in 1899 Ronad Colman is at the interesting age of 32

Neither Jack nor Leatrice have remarried

Norma Talmadge was born in Niagara Falls N Y in 891 and received her education at Brooklyn When she was just a mite of a girl the first thing she did after school was rush to the basement of their home dress herself up as a stage heroine in the old dresses her mother kept stored away in her trunk there Norma was a great reader and everytime she read a book she wanted to dramatize it.

When Norma was 14 she announced she wanted to act in pictures Her parents had no objections so she applied for a position at Vitagraph and was given a small part She has risen rapidly by hard work and study and is now the head of her own production company

Of course her wealthy husband Joseph Schenck may have had a little to do with the producing company but Norma herself is responsible for her title of one of the foremost emotional actresses of the day Because of her ability to excel in every branch of her art, she has been called The Queen of Versatility

Sells-Floto Circus Coming To Lincoln

The Sells Floto circus again this year presents among its hundreds of all star acts the Famous Flying Wards two troupes and 18 people Above are shown the Ward girls who have spread the fame of the troupes from the Atlantic to the Pacific—in fact throughout the entire country

Sells Floto will positively be in Lincoln for two performances on Monday, Aug 10 with more than 400 arenic stars hundreds of animals a regiment of clowns including all the former stars of chalk and paint and a spectacle that surpasses all efforts of this description

In the spectacle The Bride and the Beasts there are more than 1 000 performers a ballet of several hundred young women hundreds of horses and animals bands vocalists of note—all gorgeously attired making the spectacle a sea of color It is barbaric lyrical gorgeous—words fail when it comes to a description

Thousands of dollars have been spent in additions of feature acts to the circus this year as well as for augmentations to the already great wild animal menagerie

Valentino Driven Back To Sheik Role; More of "Charley's Aunt" And "Sea Drama" Type Coming

Rudy was the boy with an ambition He wished to improve the public taste in films but the flappers wouldn't let im They want their sheik and they will have their sheik and they don't want Rudy unless he be a sheik As Rudy has felt himself slipping and his purse growing thin he's heeded the flapperish fans and is making The Untamed which will come forth as The Black Eagle In it he is a romantic Russian who goes about smashing the ladies hearts and he hopes to make his untamed soul's romantic as were the roles of his Latin and Oriental lovers

All the ladyes faire of Hollywood have been entertaining for Mable Normand, who goes east in the near future to charm Broadway for Al Woods Mable has had to leave her new home behind but she's taking the good wishes of the Hollywood colony with her

The cameras at the Christie studios have started to turn on Madame Lucy the French farce in which Julian Eltinge is featured in skirts as a sister to Charley's Aunt With the production of this story Christie completes the third of an international trio of feature length laugh films of which the Aunt was the first. This company has also acquired the rights to Seven Days taken from Mary Roberts Rinehart's When a Man Marries and The Nervous Wreck by Owen Davis It is said Christie gave $40 000 for the right to the last named Seven Days will be released in September Madame Madame Lucy in the fall and The Nervous Wreck will probably be held over until spring

Overdoing It

Speaking of Madame Lucy it does seem that ladylike gentlemen or the gentlemanly ladies are about to be overdone Charley's Aunt was an excellent comedy although it didn't have a laugh to every 20 feet as some experts deem necessary Then Syd plunged into The Man on the Box in which he impersonates a young and flippant maid Now along comes Julian and Madame Lucy which will probably strike us after Syd Chaplin's offering By that time we may be glad to see the film sheiks sticking to their own ballons

Maybe it is summer that causes it and maybe it is only the turn of a cycle but the good old sea dramamers have come back Ralph Ince is planning The Sea Wolf with Lionel Barrymore Jawn Barrymore is filming The Sea Beast and being the perfect lover for Dolores Costello The Ancient Mariner is now under way at the Fox studios with Henry Otto directing Dawn Productions a new organization has finished one sea jam of a series of six scheduled for production this year Famous Players Lasky and Universal are planning the making of stories of the briny and the most pretentious of them all will probably be the Ernes Williamson production of Jules Verne's The Mysterious Island which Metro will present entirely in color

First the costume numbers then the sex pictures which developed into the jazzy numbers and now the deep blue sea has its inning and it'll be heave ho my hearties for a year to come Then shall we go back to Hiawa ha and slip in Purple Passion and Flapper Fancies once again?

If you saw the jazzed life Kenneth Harlan led in The Marriage Whirl you'll be surprised to learn that he has lost an appendix That mad whirl of life he portrayed on the screen would cause almost any one to lose something

Katherine Returns

Katherine MacDonald is another luminary who just can't stay put in the kitchen when she has a place on the screen waiting for her She has never starred with great finality that this was positively her last appearance but her failure to reappear has caused many to take it for granted that Katherine has forsaken the Kleigs How ever she's returning in the Lion and Woman more beautiful and stately than ever

The new generation is forging ahead and Chuck Reisner the gifted song writing actor and lot of other things is wondering just how long he will remain in the spotlight with his youngster Dinky Dan making such splendid headway with Charlie Chaplin and other comedians Chuck will soon be known as Dinky Dean's dad and then farewell to father's name and hail the new generation

Greer who has just returned from Europe to create more fashions for Paramount has been in Paris perfecting himself on the latest French models

Beads are embellishing all gowns for evening wear All that is necessary to be really chic is to take a yard of chiffon or crepe have it literally covered with iridescent beads put on in a new design and there you are The neck line remains the same but the length is a mere whisper it is so small a thing

FITZ LUCKIEST OF FISTIC KNIGHTS

"Ruby Robert" Always Had The Fates Working In His Favor.

BY FRANK G MENKE

(Copyright 1925 by King Features Syndicate Inc)

The freckled Bob Fitzsimmons was one of the greatest fighters that ever lived—and at the same time one of the luckiest

Again and again throughout his picturesque career Fitz was saved from seeming defeat and eventually emerged a victor because of flukes or ring miracles

He won the world's championship in 1897 because Jim Corbett spurned the opportunity to finish him along in the sixth round—and so enabled Fitz to shoot home the lucky solar plexus punch

Corbett's father who never had seen Jim in action was at the Carson City ringside that day Jim had promised his dad that he was going to cut Fitz to pieces to avenge the Corbett family for all the sneers and jeers Fitz had hurled at it in his challenging days

Kicked Away His Chance

In the sixth when Corbett flattened Fitz Jim could have rushed him when he arose and undoubtedly driven home the punches that would have won for him on a knockout then and there But Jim wanted a prolonged revenge He aimed to cut Fitz down to a point of utter exhaustion hoping to force Fitz into the ignominy of quitting

But Fitz always possessed of amazing recuperative powers came back fairly strong in the seventh fought cautiously—and then in the fourteenth delivered a pile driver blow to Corbett's body

Corbett went down He was not physically hurt The punch had landed in a spot where it knocked the wind out of him He couldn't catch his breath and there he writhed on one knee trying to pull air back into his lungs As ten sounded over him the breath came back Corbett leaped to his feet—as strong and full of fight as he had been at the start

But he was one second too late A world's championship had passed from him

Knocked Cold by Maher

Soon after the opening gong banged Maher picked up his powerful right hand from somewhere in the region of his ankles and let loose The blow caught Fitzsimmons on the temple and lifted him from almost the center of the ring over the ropes

There Fitz hung—A pitiful figure His arms were outside the strands his toes were off the floor If accident or fate, hadn't tossed his arms over the top of the rope there would have been no support for his limp body and he would have crumpled to the floor and been counted out

The Marquis of Queensbury rules state that when a fighter's toes are off the floor while hanging on the ropes he must be reckoned as a person helpless—and that the referee then should begin his count

Saved by Green Referee

But on that particular night the ring official was Johnny Duffy refereeing the first important bout of his career The sight of the helpless Fitzsimmons amazed him as much as it did the audience Duffy instead of counting over Fitz simply stood off and looked at him in utter astonishment

Maher noticing the referee wasn't counting decided to step over to finish Fitz But Billy Madden his manager ran around the ring to the point nearest to where Maher was standing and yelled frantically

Don't hit him Peter— don't hit him! Madden realized that Fitz was helpless and that if Maher struck anothre blow it might mean his disqualification

There has always been some argument as to how long Fitz hung on the hempen strands Some authorities insist that it was 28 seconds while others scale the time up to 40 seconds But it's certain that Fitz was helpless for at least 28 seconds during which time Maher never struck another blow and the referee never started a count

Staggered From Ropes

At last a little strength and life came back to the muscles of Fitzsimmons He put his toes to the floor braced himself pulled his arms from outside the ropes and began a half stagger away from his earlier perilous position

Maher rushed forward with the idea of finishing him There was at least 30 seconds—perhaps 50—left in that round But again fate was kind to Fitzsimmons for at that very moment the cane of the timekeeper was accidentally bumped against the bell and when the sound was heard the fighters construed it to mean that the round was over and returned to their corners

Fitzsimmons recuperated and eventually scored a technical knockout over Maher in the twelfth

Fitz was saved by a fluke in Boston on June 1" 1894 The story is told by Joe Choynski

Choyski Tells Story

Soon after the opening of the third round I caught Fitz on the chin with a right swing Fitz hit the floor He was completely out as any man in prize ring history Captain Bill Daly was refereeing that bout The minute that Fitz went down Daly became so excited that he began running around in circles He forgot his job He did not start to count—seemed too bewildered Finally I yelled at him to toll off the seconds Daly paid no heed to me Then the crowd which already had been on its feet cheering wilding for me howled at Daly start that count Then—and only then—did Daly get busy

But instead of counting with the passing of each second Daly permitted many seconds to elapse between each of Fitz new count seemed to give him pain After he reached five he made a new count only every ten seconds All the while Fitz lay dead on the floor

Round Was Cut Short

I know that the round was shortened by at least a full minute because I had my own timekeeper at that fight and he checked up all the time The club timekeeper gave me the worst of it right afterward by letting nearly two minutes elapse before he called us together for the fourth round

Fitz was quick in recuperation and when the fourth round began he came out in a fighting condition I sent after him determined to put him to sleep for a half hour—but Fitz was canny He clinched and stalled along all through the fourth and I couldn't reach him with a vital blow

"But I got after him again in the fifth balked him in his stalling efforts and was beating him around the ring I had him at a point where he was sure to go down with a few more blows

I was the police jumped into the ring and stopped the fight and the referee to the amazement of the crowd declared the contest a draw

Old Abe Shows Up Fallacy of Golfing Idea

The necessity for follow through is stressed to the absolute limit by teachers of driving in the game of golf They insist that you'll be a dub all your lifetime—and even in Heaven if you don't cultivate the follow through

But now cometh Abe Mitchell rated as one of the greatest long distance hitters of all time who declines the follow through something that's merely blah—and who opines as follows

The difference between my driving and that of most of the other fellows is that they are too intent upon the follow through My driving power is at its zenith at the very fraction of the second when club meets ball The average golfer who thinks all the time about the follow through usually gets his mind so focused on following through that he doesn't arrive at the full power of his swing until after he has hit the ball

Therefore there isn't enough initial velocity in the ordinary drive Most golfers swing in such a way as to have the greatest power in their drive after they hit rather than at the very second the ball is hit By timing my stroke so that the greatest power is in force when I hit the ball farther than the man whose swing meets the ball when the swing is not quite as its fullest

American Girl Off Monday On Channel Swim

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS

CAPE GRIS NEZ France Aug 1 —Ready for the test that may establish her as the first woman ever to swim the English channel Gertrude Ederle concluded her training tonight while her trainer Captain Jabez Wolfe anxiously studied the weather forecasts for the next forty-eight hours

Unless some unforseen condition arises Miss Ederle will slip into the cold waters of La Manche about six o'clock Monday morning and commence the long battle with the tide across to the English shore

Take Practice Plunge

As the American girl swimmer limbered up in the smooth waters of the little bay here this morning a host of admirers on shore praised her smooth stroke her powerful albeit graceful form and the quiet unspoken grit she displays in every move

Iron weather reports Captain Wolfe expects that some rough weather may be encountered in mid channel Monday but he feels Miss Ederle is fit for whatever the waters have in store for her

Odds of 7 to 1 and slightly better continued to prevail against a successful crossing

Kerr Returns To White Sox Fold

ST LOUIS, Mo., Aug 1—(I N S) — Dick Kerr, St. Louis hurler, formerly with the Chicago White Sox, today received a contract from the Chicago club with instructions to report to Manager Collins at Philadelphia Monday Kerr announced he had signed and was leaving tonight for Philadelphia He did not divulge the money involved

Kerr was recently told by Judge Landis that he would be eligible to return to organized baseball on August 4 He retired voluntarily as a holdout in 1923

BRITISH BOXERS VICTIMS OF JINX

Fighters From Tight Little Island Unable to Show Goods in U. S. A.

A jinx has balked the efforts of almost every great English fighter to achieve either a championship or a fortune on American soil

And yet that same fate that frowns upon the comers from England casts a smile upon most of the other gladiators who come here from other foreign climes

Georges Carpentier drifted in from France busted Battling Levinsky for a round trip during his first jaunt in these parts collected about $150 000 in addition to a world's title went home came back and grabbed about $250 000 more and then made a third trip that netted him around $175 000

So Georges you see is awfully glad that Chris Columbus did embark upon the hazardous voyage and discover us for otherwise Georges would be minus more than $500 000

Firpo Made His Pile

Then there was Luis the ex Wild Bull Forpo slithered in from the Argentine unheralded unsung with one extra dollar of the celluloid variety no extra suits of shoes—and an ambition In due course of time Firpo collected about $ 0 000 and some Argentine moving picture rights and went right home where he put his money in the bank and added to the total by selling the pictures

He came back He was greeted by an enthusiastic crowd of Americans which included Tex Rickard who paid Luis about $175 000 for enduring less than four minutes of the companionship of one Jack Dempsey

Luis Cleaned Up Fortune

Once more Luis sailed back for his native heath about $200 000 richer than when he had most recently arrived Having duly banked the money and passed the time of day with the home folks Luis like Georges breezed back for the third outing in quest of American gold

So he fought Harry Wills or rather he spent 48 minutes in the company of Wills was paid about $100 000 for that and then collected about $25 000 more for letting Charlie Weinert try out some of his new punches After which Luis mailed his money to the Argentine bank and sailed to Europe

Fitz Jackson and Slavin

Bob Fitzsimmons came from Australia and won two world's championships on these shores Peter Jackson earned a fortune here after leaving Australia and Frank Slavin gained more money here in two or three fights than he had made in his whole fighting lifetime in Australia

But the story is radically different as it concerns men who have come from England

Corbett Stopped Mitchell

He was fairly successful in getting money for a while but eventually business became slack and it became infinitely slacker when he met Jim Corbett and was knocked out in three rounds which defeat practically ended his career

Pedlar Palmer was regarded as one of the greatest bantams that England ever produced He came here and fought Terry McGovern for a world's championship Terry knocked him out in a punch Joe Bowker and Digger Stanley were great ones in the British Isles—but were swept into oblivion here And the same thing goes for Billy Plimmer Jack Harrison and Joey Thomas

Driscoll Won No Title

Jim Driscoll was a wonder of wonders in England He came here hoping to win a world's championship But he failed So did Johnny Summers Pat O Keefe Matt Wells and others of lesser fame in the world of whirling mittens

Owen Morgan whipped every great bantam feather and light weight in the British Isles and in his early outings here beat Battling Nelson and Abe Attell But when he received his shot at the title the old hoodoo caught him—or maybe it was one of Ad Wolgast's gloves At any rate Wolgast knocked Morgan to sleep in 1911

Palzer Flattened Wells

No finer looking heavyweight ever came to these shores than Bombardier Wells He seemed to have everything of which champions are made He mingled with Al Palzer in his first fight here— just for a workout I know Wells nearly butchered Palzer in the first round A few minutes later Al let loose a wild swing and knocked Wells dead to the world

Jimmy Wilde arrived here—a world's champion He met Pancho Villa and was almost pulverized sudffering then the most terrible beating he ever has taken in his ring lifetime Since then no fighters of any merit in England have had the real courage to come across the sea and try conclusions with an American battler and a jinx—in the same ring

Of all the English warriors that ever came to these parts Ted (Kid) Lewis did become the welter champion by outpointing Jack Britton—and he did make some money But the jinx caught him in the end for Britton knocked him loose from his moorings one night. Lewis ceased to be a drawing card ceased to be a money maker and went back home dethroned.

MYSTERY VEILS BIRTH OF TENNIS

Racquet Sport Was Played 700 Years Ago; France Made It Popular.

Tennis is a form of athletic combat that slithers back into the middle ages for its birth date—with a lot of mystery veiling its exact birthplace

The sport has existed for more than 700 years but until ten seasons or so ago nobody did much claiming as to being its originator But since then quite a few nations of that charming old Europe insist that tennis got its start on their fair terra firma

Although there is much dispute now as to where the game had its origin there is no argument over the fact that France developed the game and that its popularity spread from French portals beyond the frontiers and into the whole world

Once Sport of Kings

Tennis was a game indulged in by royalty in the earliest days in France After a time the natives having heard much of its delights began to do a bit of tennising too This made King Charles V very wrathy and he made several efforts to halt the common people from playing tennis Charlie was foiled—and the game became popular with all classes in France

Very soon England took up the game It flourished there for many years But eventually it became professionalized Terrific gambling was done on the outcome of the stellar clashes Crookedness resulted scandal ran amuck—and the sport went into a state of coma for several generations not to be revived in a definite way until about 50 years ago

Nation Took to Tennis

And then it came back with a cyclonic rush The whole nation went mad about it In that era as in all the years before tennis was played indoors Naturally with countless thousands raving about the game and wildly eager to play there was a scarcity of courts

To provide for the legions who could not play indoors for lack of room an outdoor experiment was made in 1874 An English nobleman gave a big house party and as one of the features of it staged a tennis game on an outdoor course especially constructed for the occasion The crowd went into raptures about the open air game So did the players

Became Outdoor Sport

And so it was that tennis became an outdoor game played on grass or clay courts while the indoor game of other centuries was changed in name from tennis to squash

English army officers were the real tennis missionaries They learned the game at home, then carried it to India, Australia Canada the Orient and into various parts of Europe Everywhere that tennis was introduced it became popular especially among the wealthy and aristocratic classes

Uncle Sam Supreme

The United States adopted tennis only a few generations ago For quite a number of years it was played only by the wealthy set either on their own estates or at the various country clubs But about 20 years ago it caught the public's fancy municipal courts were built everybody who could afford it built a court of his own or joined a club where tennis was played

And as a result America has more tennis players than any nation in the world—and it has the greatest It has ruled the tennis realms for many seasons and it seems destined to remain supreme for several more years

YOU NEED NOT SELL AT A LOSS

Many owners find that when they try to sell the business that has proven itself a profitable enterprise they are unable to find anyone who will pay them the price they know to be reasonable This may mean in some cases that they have overestimated the net worth, but the trouble usually lies in their inability to locate an interested party who can pay them what they ask

PREDICTIONS OF GREAT SHOWS IN FALL HABIT NOW

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 1.—While the legitimate theater simmers through this portion of the summer, the prospectuses of various managers bristle with preliminary announcements of good things which will come into being with the fall.

Perhaps the first bulletin that I ought to issue to my readers is the far from uninteresting one that the ever active Shuberts have really pulled a totally unsuspected surprise—a surprise, unless I am grievously wrong, that is going to intrigue every woman in the country, not to mention flappers, subflappers and innumerable grandmas.

This bombshell is nothing less than a musical comedy version of "The Sheik," by Edith M. Hull, which has already seen the calcium light in the movies, and the number of whose enthralled readers is quite beyond my comprehension.

On the screen this discreetly sizzling romance of hot sands, hot hearts and hot heads was visualized by Rudolph Valentino and Agnes Ayres as the noble wild man and his quarry. On the stage, so rumor now goes, Hope Hampton will figure as the pursued and the adoring beauty, while Walter Woolf is is to be cast as the dusky object of her devotions. Miss Hampton has had a brief, but very lively, career. Originally a picture star of considerable good looks, she was announced to sing the title role in the foreign operetta, "Madame Pompadour," but a last minute switch in casting threw her out and threw in Wilda Bennet.

Miss Hampton a Drawing Card.

Miss Hampton, who is a statuesque blonde with features of classic regularity, recently turned down an offer to appear in "Riquette," another exotic importation, which might be explained on the score of the "Pompadoure" episode. She has a large following in the cinema, and her selection, if it be authentic, for the new piece indicates a clever sense of the box-office on the Shuberts' part.

Mr. Woolf, whose last metropolitan appearance was in the late Victor Herbert's "The Dream Girl," founded on that whimsical romance, "The Road to Yesterday," is one of the ablest baritones in musical comedy. He has a suave stage presence; is romatically brunette and can be counted on to awe many (oh, many!) ladies in the audience.

There are a good many other musical productions pending and not a few in rehearsal. A. L. Erlanger is early in the field with "Lady Liberty," written by the prolific Anne Caldwell and John N. Hazzard and set to tunes by Raymond Hubbell.

Meanwhile, very little is stirring as regards comedies without music in New York, and the name of tragedy is as forgotten as though Mrs. Siddons had never lived. Now and then a new play bobs up, the latest warm weather specimen being "What Women Do." Zealous as I am to recommend anything than can be recommended to incoming visitors, I must in all due intellectual humility state that "What Women Do" is not improper; not novel, and not at all thrilling. If you look to garner your laughs by seeing unfortunate actors cast for sad roles that evoke titters, this should suit you.

Musical Comedy Smiles Through.

Better things can be expected of "The Morning After," scheduled to open at the Hudson on Monday next. Len Hollister and Leona Stephens are co-authors of the piece, which has a notable cast. This includes: Donald Foster, a rising young juvenile who has scored individual hits in "Connie Goes Home," "Cock o' the Walk," and in a recent London production; the lovely Kay Johnson, heroine of "Beggar on Horseback;" A. H. Van Buren, who portrayed the Earl of Warwick in Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," so admirably; Arthur Aylsworth, the comic of "Chicken Feed;" the reliable Gypsy O'Brien; Emma Wise, who enacted the colored servant in "Minick" with true artistry, and Anne Morrison, author of "The Wild Wescotts" and co-author of "Pigs." Not much is known about "The Morning After," except that it has been tried out briefly on the road. The title is, at any rate, promising.

In the meantime, musical comedy distinctly has the call along the "White Way. It survives lustily when other admirable, but tuneless, attractions have withered in the fiery breath of mid-summer. The motion pictures, too, find their public reinforced in such days as these.

The most eagerly awaited event in the silent drama is Raoul Walsh's production of "The Wanderer," made from the stage play which Comstock and Gest so elaborately presented. It will be put on this time at the Criterion, and I shall have something to say about it later.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—For some time I have had in mind the writing of a moving picture play, but have never gotten around to it.

I have in mind a mystery play, dealing with the sea. Would you care to look over a plot dealing with this subject?

Do you know, I am getting disgusted with the movies, or a lot of them.

So many of the stories are adapted from some of the good books, but are overdrawn to such an extent that one has a good reason for tiring of the present day interpretation of them.

To illustrate, I have just returned from a movie in which the picture was "Forty Winks." Now when it started there was a very good plot but at the last there were all sorts of improbable situations brought in.

The very idea of closing a picture, when the rescue has been made of very "valuable navy papers" gets one's "goat."

When a perfectly good story is hashed up like that, can you wonder that one gets "riled?"

I would have shown where the papers were restored to the young man, who was responsible for them, his restoration to the good graces of his supeerior officer, the punishment of the guilty parties, and the reward of him who spent much time to run down the guilty ones.

Why can't the movie directors see that they will not gain anything by such tactics?

One other thing, I have seen three pictures imitating the picture, "Go Get Your Man." Why imitate when there are a lot of original stories to be picturized?

Well as I have ranted enough for this time, I'll close.—DRAMO, Fairbury, Neb.

Do you know, if I were you and had a good plot for a sea story, I would try the magazines first. You would be much more apt to have your script accepted by a motion picture company, if it had first been published in story form.

So many of the studios have their own scenario staffs to prepare material for the screen that it is almost impossible for an outsider to break in with a scenario unless it is decidedly unusual in plot.

Most of the stories that are accepted from the general public by the studios, are by some authors or persons prominent in the literary world, because of the advertising value it gives the picture.

It is true that the novels filmed are often so slaughtered the author could hardly recognize his own brain child. I agree with you that many of the picture plots are trite and weak. In the past the producers have paid more attention to the stars in the picture than they have to the story, but they are beginning to realize their folly, and are paying enormous sums for the screen rights of the good stories with unusual features.

In the picture, "Forty Winks," the ending may have been a little abrupt, but on the whole, don't you think it was well enough to leave the rest to our imagination. The conclusion you drew for the ending would be the natural conclusion under the circumstances. Had there been anything different or out of the ordinary in the ending, they surely would have pictured it.

All good box office pictures produced by one company, are usually imitated by the other companies. They figure that if the picture of that type brought in the shekels for the company that made it, it will do the same for them. That's the reason when we see one good costume picture, we are apt to have costume pictures forced upon us in innumerable quantities for a season. When Normal Talmadge made such a "hit" in "Secrets" by going from youth to old age in the picture, Colleen Moore, May McAvoy and a dozen or so others did the same thing. Norma, herself, even tried it again.

Something new, something unusual, something catchy and above all something with a touch of comedy is what the producers are looking for, and if you think you have the goods, it would surely do no harm to try to peddle them.

Dear Movie Editor—Would you please send me the addresses of the following stars? I am making a collection of picture of my favorites, and I would be glad if you would send me their addresses, Ramon Novarro, Conway Tearle, Frank Mayo, Ronald Colman, Thomas Meighan, Norma Talmadge, Corinne Griffith, Richard Dix, Gloria Swanson, Jack Gilbert, Milton Sills and Kenneth arlan.

Please tell me the life story of Norma Talmadge. Kindly answer this leter as soon as it is convenient.

Thanking you very much, I remain, Yours truly, MARY, Seward, Neb.

Ramon Novarfro has a leter boxx at the Metro-Goldwin-Mayer lot, Culver City, Calif. Jack Gilbert could be found there also.

Conway Tearle is with First National Pictures United Studios, Hollywood, Calif. Frank Mayo works for Dallas M. Fitz productions, United Studios, Hollywood, Calif. Corinne Griffith has the same address as Conway. Norma Talmadge and Ronald Colman also work at United Studios, Hollywood, Calif. The street address is 5843 Melrose avenue. Just at present Kenneth Harlan is also working there. Thomas Meighan is with Famous Players-Lasky, New York City, and Gloria Swanson and Richard Dix are also with that company, but they are at the Hollywood studio, 1520 Vine street. Milton Sills is with First National Productions, Biograph Studio, New York City.

Ramon Novarro is quite young for the honors he carries. He was born in 1899. Ronad Colman is at the interesting age of 32.

Neither Jack nor Leatrice have re-married.

Norma Talmadge was born in Niagara Falls, N. Y., in 891 and received her education at Brooklyn. When she was just a mite of a girl, the first thing she did after school was rush to the basement of their home, dress herself up as a stage heroine in the old dresses her mother kept stored away in her trunk there. Norma was a great reader and everytime she read a book, she wanted to dramatize it.

When Norma was 14, she announced she wanted to act in pictures. Her parents had no objections, so she applied for a position at Vitagraph and was given a small part. She has risen rapidly by hard work and study and is now the head of her own production company.

Of course her wealthy husband, Joseph Schenck, may have had a little to do with the producing company, but Norma herself is responsible for her title of "one of the foremost emotional actresses of the day." Because of her ability to excel in every branch of her art, she has been called "The Queen of Versatility."

Sells-Floto Circus Coming To Lincoln

The Sells-Floto circus again this year presents among its hundreds of all star acts the Famous Flying Wards, two troupes and 18 people. Above are shown the Ward girls who have spread the fame of the troupes from the Atlantic to the Pacific—in fact throughout the entire country.

Sells-Floto will positively be in Lincoln for two performances on Monday, Aug. 10, with more than 400 arenic stars, hundreds of animals, a regiment of clowns including all the former stars of chalk and paint, and a spectacle that surpasses all efforts of this description.

In the spectacle, "The Bride and the Beasts," there are more than 1,000 performers, a ballet of several hundred young women, hundreds of horses and animals, bands, vocalists of note—all gorgeously attired, making the spectacle a sea of color. It is barbaric, lyrical, gorgeous—words fail when it comes to a description.

Thousands of dallars have been spent in additions of feature acts to the circus this year as well as for augmentations to the already great wild animal menagerie.

Valentino Driven Back To Sheik Role; More of "Charley's Aunt" And "Sea Drama" Type Coming

Rudy was the boy with an ambition. He wished to improve the public taste in films, but the flappers wouldn't let 'im. They want their sheik, and they will have their sheik, and they don't want Rudy unless he be a sheik. As Rudy has felt himself slipping and his purse growing thin, he's heeded the flapperish fans and is making "The Untamed," which will come forth as "The Black Eagle." In it he is a romantic Russian, who goes about smashing the ladies' hearts and he hopes to make his untamed soul as romantic as were the roles of his Latin and Oriental lovers.

All the ladyes faire of Hollywood have been entertaining for Mable Normand, who goes east in the near future to charm Broadway for Al Woods. Mable has had to leave her new home behind, but she's taking the good wishes of the Hollywood colony with her.

The cameras at the Christie studios have started to turn on "Madame Lucy," the French farce in which Julian Eltinge is featured in skirts as "a sister to Charley's Aunt." With the production of this story Christie completes the third of an international trio of feature length laugh films of which the "Aunt" was the first. This company has also acquired the rights to "Seven Days," taken from Mary Roberts Rinehart's "When a Man Marries,' and "The Nervous Wreck,' by Owen Davis. It is said Christie gave $40,000 for the right to the last named. "Seven Days" will be released in September, "Madame "Madame Lucy" in the fall and "The Nervous Wreck" will probably be held over until spring.

Overdoing It.

Speaking of "Madame Lucy," it does seem that ladylike gentlemen or the gentlemanly ladies are about to be overdone. "Charley's Aunt" was an excellent comedy, although it didn't have a laugh to every 20 feet, as some experts deem necessary. Then Syd plunged into "The Man on the Box," in which he impersonates a young and flippant maid. Now along comes Julian and "Madame Lucy," which will probably strike us after Syd Chaplin's offering. By that time we may be glad to see the film sheiks sticking to their own ballons.

Maybe it is summer that causes it, and maybe it is only the turn of a cycle, but the good old sea dramers have come back. Ralph Ince is planning "The Sea Wolf," with Lionel Barrymore. Jawn Barrymore is filming "The Sea Beast," a nd being the perfect lover for Dolores Costello. "The Ancient Mariner" is now under way at the Fox studios, with Henry Otto directing. Dawn Productions, a new organization, has finished one sea yarn of a series of six scheduled for production this year. Famous Players-Lasky and Universal are planning the making of stories of the briny and the most pretentious of them all will probably be the Ernest Williamson production of Jules Verne's "The Mysterious Island," which Metro will present entirely in color.

First the costume numbers, then the sex pictures which developed into the jazzy numbers, and now the deep blue sea has its inning, and it'll be 'heave ho, my hearties' for a year to come. Then shall we go back to "Hiawatha" and slip in "Purple Passion" and "Flapper Fancies" once again?

A New School.

The new Paramount school for future luminaries has opened at the Astoria, L. I. studio, with eighteen charter members, but no college yells or class flowers, as yet. This is a school for labor, my dears, and the lucky ones have a stiff course before them. Nine, three girls and six boys, from New York City, a girl and a boy from Hollywood, a boy from Culver City, a girl from Atlanta, Ga., a girl from Massachusetts, another from Roxbury, Mass., and a third from Lawrence, Mass., a boy from our own parts, Olathe, Kas., compose the freshmen class.

Tom Terriss, a well known director, will be principal of the school and the other members of the faculty will be George Currie, pantomine, H. M. K. Smith, modern attire, Hal Clarendon, period costume and makeup, Morgia Lytton, period costumes, Virginal Terhune Van de Water, etiquette, John G. Toomey, physical training, Leo Tover, photographer, and Randolph Rogers, business manager.

Figure this one out if you can. Harlan Knight, playing in Milton Sills' second starring picture, "The Knockout," was an iron worker singing in a saloon when a phonograph company discovered him and offered him a contract, which subsequently led to his movie career.

If you saw the jazzed life Kenneth Harlan led in "The Marriage Whirl," you'll be surprised to learn that he has lost an appendix. That mad whirl of life he portrayed on the screen would cause almost anyone to lose something

Katherine Returns.

Katherine MacDonald is another ex-luminary who just can't stay put in the kitchen when she has a place on the screen waiting for her. She has never started with great finality that this was positively her last appearance, but her failure to reappear has caused many to take it for granted that Katherine has forsaken the Kleigs. However, she's returning in the "Unnamed Woman," more beautiful and stately than ever.

The new generation is forging ahead and "Chuck" Reisner, the gag man, song writer, actor, and lot of other things, is wondering just how long he will remain in the spotlight with his youngster, "Dinky Dan" making such splendid headway with Charlie Chaplin and other comedians. "Chuck" will soon be known as "Dinky Dean's dad," and then farewell to father's name, and hail the new generation.

"The woman who prides herself on being well dressed would just as soon go to an evening function nowadays in a barrel as in a gown which was not beaded," he says.

Greer, who has just returned from Europe to create more fashions for Paramount, has been in Paris perfecting himself on the latest French models.

"Beads are embellishing all gowns for evening wear. All that is necessary to be really chic is to take a yard of chiffon or crepe, have it literally covered with iridescent beads, put on in a new design, and there you are. The neck line remains the same but the length is a mere whisper, it is so small a thing."

WHITE MORE POPULAR.

Black continues to lead, but is being closely pressed by white, which has risen from fourth place. Peach has come up from fifth to third place, followed by toast, which was in second place last week. French nude and grain show about the same popularity. Zinc has gone ahead of harvest, while piping rock remains in tenth place, followed by cinnamon, which was not one of the 12 leading shades in last week's report.

"Ruby Robert" Always Had The Fates Working In His Favor.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

Copyright, 1925, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Again and again throughout his picturesque career, Fitz was saved from seeming defeat and eventually emerged a victor because of flukes or ring miracles.

He won a world's championship in 1897 because Jim Corbett spurned the opportunity to finish him along in the sixth round—and so enabled Fitz to shoot home the lucky solar plexus punch.

Corbett's father, who never had seen Jim in action, was at the Carson City ringside that day. Jim had promised his dad that he was going to "cut Fitz to pieces" to avenge the Corbett family for all the sneers and jeers Fitz had hurled at it in his challenging days.

Kicked Away His Chance.

In the sixth, when Corbett flattened Fitz, Jim could have rushed him when he arose and undoubtedly driven home the punches that would have won for him on a knockout then and there. But Jim wanted a prolonged revenge. He aimed to cut Fitz down to a point of utter exhaustion, hoping to force Fitz into the ignominy of quitting.

But Fitz, always possessed of amazing recuperative powers, came back fairly strong in the seventh, fought cautiously—and then, in the fourteenth, delivered a pile driver blow to Corbett's body.

Corbett went down. He was not physically hurt. The punch had landed in a spot where it knocked the wind out of him. He couldn't catch his breath and there he writhed, on one knee, trying to pull air back into his lungs. As "ten" sounded over him, the breath came back, Corbett leaped to his feet—as strong and full of fight as he had been at the start.

But he was one second too late. A world's championship had passed from him.

Knocked Cold by Maher.

Soon after the opening gong banged, Maher picked up his powerful right hand from somewhere in the region of his ankles and let loose. The blow caught Fitzsimmons on the temple nad lifted him from almost the center of the ring over the ropes.

There Fitz hung—Apitiful figure. His arms were outside the strands, his toes were off the floor. If accident, or fate, hadn't tossed his arms over the top of the rope, there would have been no support for his limp body and he would have crumpled to the floor and been counted out.

The Marquis of Queensbury rules state that when a fighter's toes are off the floor, while hanging on the ropes, he must be reckoned as a person helpless—and that the referee then should begin his count.

Saved by Green Referee.

But on that particular night the ring official was Johnny Duffy, refereeing the first important bout of his career. The sight of the helpless Fitzsimmons amazed him as much as it did the audience. Duffy, instead of counting over Fitz, simply stood off and looked at him in utter astonishment.

Maher, noticing the referee wasn't counting, decided to step over to finish Fitz. But Billy Madden, his manager, ran around the ring to the point nearest to where Maher was standing and yelled frantically: "Don't hit him, Peter— don't hit him!" Madden realized that Fitz was helpless and that if Maher struck anothre blow it might mean his disqualification.

There has always been some argument as to how long Fitz hung on the hempen strands. Some authorities insist that it was 28 seconds, while others scale the time up to 40 seconds. But it's certain that Fitz was helpless for at least 28 seconds, during which time Maher never struck another blow and the referee never started a count.

Staggered From Ropes.

At last a little strength and life came back to the muscles of Fitzsimmons. He put his toes to the floor, braced himself, pulled his arms from outside the ropes and began a half-stagger away from his earlier perilous position.

Maher rushed forward with the idea of finishing him. There was at least 30 seconds—perhaps 50—left in that round. But again fate was kind to Fitzsimmons for at that very moment the cane of the timekeeper was accidentally bumped against the bell and, when the sound was heard, the fighters construed it to mean that the round was over and returned to their corners.

Choyski Tells Story.

"Soon after the opening of the third round I caught Fitz on the chin with a right swing. Fitz hit the floor. He was completely out as any man in prize ring history. Captain Bill Daly was refereeing that bout. The minute that Fitz went down, Daly became so excited that he began running around in circles. He forgot his job. He did not start to count—seemed too bewildered. Finally I yelled at him to toll off the seconds. Daly paid no heed to me. Then the crowd, which already had been on its feet cheering wilding for me, howled at Daly 'start that count.' Then—and only thne—did Daly get busy.

"But, instead of counting with the passing of each second, Daly permitted many seconds to elapse between each toll. Every new count seemed to give him pain. After he reached five he made a new count only every ten seconds. All the while Fitz lay dead on the floor.

Round Was Cut Short.

"I know that the round was shortened by at least a full minute because I had my own timekeeper at that fight and he checked up all the time. The club timekeeper gave me the worst of it right afterward by letting nearly two minutes elapse before he called us together for the fourth round.

"Fitz was quick in recuperation and when the fourth round began he came out in fair fighting condition. I went after him determined to put him to sleep for a half hour—but Fitz was canny. He clinched and stalled along all through the fourth and I couldn't reach him with a vital blow.

"But I got after him again in the fifth, balked him in his stalling efforts and was beating him around the ring. I had him at a point where he was sure to go down with a few more blows.

"Then the police jumped into the ring and stopped the fight and, the referee, to the amazement of the crowd, declared the contest a draw."

Kerr Returns To White Sox Fold

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.) — Dick Kerr, St. Louis hurler, formerly with the Chicago White Sox, today received acontract from the Chicago club with instructions to report to Manager Collins at Philadelphia Monday. Kerr announced he had signed and was leaving tonight for Philadelphia. He did not divulge the money involved.

Kerr was recently told by Judge Landis that he would be eligible to return to organized baseball on August 4. He retired voluntarily as a holdout in 1923.

Old Abe Shows Up Fallacy of Golfing Idea

The necessity for "follow through" is stressed to the absolute limit by teachers of driving in the game of golf. They insist that you'll be a dub all your lifetime—and even in Heaven if you don't cultivate the "follow through."

But now cometh Abe Mitchell, rated as one of the greatest long distance hitters of all time, who declares the "follow through" something that's merely blah—and who opines as follows:

"The difference between my driving and that of most of the other fellows, is that they are too intent upon the follow through. My driving power is at its zenith at the very fraction of the second when club meets ball. The average golfer, who thinks all the time about the 'follow through,' usually gets his mind so focused on following through that he doesn't arrive at the full power of his swing until after he has hit the ball.

"Therefore, there isn't enough initial velocity in the ordinary drive. Most golfers swing in such a way as to have the greatest power in their drive after they hit rather than at the very second the ball is hit. By timing my stroke so that the greatest power is in force when I hit the ball farther than the man whose swing meets the ball when the swing is not quite as its fullest."

American Girl Off Monday On Channel Swim

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS.

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Aug. 1.—Ready for the test that may establish her as the first woman ever to swim the English channel, Gertrude Ederle concluded her training tonight, while her trainer, Captain Jabez Wolfe, anxiously studied the weather forecasts for the next forty-eight hours.

Unless some unforseen condition arises, Miss Ederle will slip into the cold waters of "La Manche" about six o'clock Monday morning and commence the long battle with the tide across to the English shore.

Take Practice Plunge.

As the American girl swimmer limbered up in the smooth waters of the little bay here this morning, a host of admirers on shore praised her smooth stroke, her powerful albeit graceful form and the quiet, unspoken grit she displays in every move.

From weather reports, Captain Wolfe expects that some rough weather may be encountered in mid-channel Monday, but he feels Miss Ederle is fit for whatever the waters have in store for her.

Odds of 7 to 1 and slightly better continued to prevail against a successful crossing.

Tank Title Won By Illinois A. C.

SEATTLE, Aug. 1.—The Illinois Athletic club captured premier honors in the national swimming meet here this afternoon. The Illinois club scored 34 points to win first place, Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. finished in second place with twenty-five points and the Roman Baths team, Miami, Fla., was third.

Johnny Weismuller won another race taking first place in the 100-yard dash, finishing in front with an eight-yard lead. The rest of the entrants were closely bunched, at the finish. Weismuller's time was 52 seconds flat, a new world's record, if his Friday mark of 50.2 seconds, made in an exhibition, is disallowed by the A. A. U. His former record was 52.4.

Walter Laufer of Cincinnati was second and Smith of New Orleans third.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 1.—Cincinnati won its eighth straight victory today, 6 to 5 outlasting Boston in a desperate 13-inning game. Fierce rallies in he tenth gave the Browns three runs and apparently the game. Four successive red hot drives then tied it up and they fought along until the thirteenth. The score:

BRITISH BOXERS VICTIMS OF JINX

Fighters From Tight Little Island Unable to Show Goods in U. S. A.

A jinx has balked the efforts of almost every great English fighter to achieve either a championship or a fortune on American soil.

And yet that same fate that frowns upon the comers from England casts a smile upon most of the other gladiators who come here from other foreign climes.

Georges Carpentier drifted in from France, busted Battling Levinsky for a round trip during his first jaunt in these parts, collected about $150,000 in addition to a world's title, went home, came back and grabbed about $250,000 more and then made a third trip that netted him around $175,000.

So Georges, y'see, is awfully glad that Chris Columbus did embark upon the hazardous voyage and discover us, for otherwise Georges would be minus more than $500,000.

Firpo Made His Pile.

Then there was Luis, the ex-Wild Bull. Forpo slithered in from the Argentine, unheralded, unsung, with one extra dollar of the celluloid variety, no extra suits of shoes—and an ambition. In due course of time Firpo collected about $75,000 and some Argentine moving picture rights and went right home, where he put his money in the bank and added to the total by selling the pictures.

He came back. He was greeted by an enthusiastic crowd of Americans, which included Tex Rickard, who paid Luis about $175,000 for enduring less than four minutes of the companionship of one Jack Dempsey.

Luis Cleaned Up Fortune.

Once more Luis sailed back for his native heath, about $250,000 richer than when he had most recently arrived. Having duly banked the money and passed the time of day with the home folks, Luis, like Georges, breezed back for the third outing in quest of American gold.

So he fought Harry Wills, or rather, he spent 48 minutes in the company of Wills, was paid about $100,000 for that and then collected about $25,000 more for letting Charlie Weinert try out some of his new punches. After which Luis mailed his money to the Argentine bank and sailed to Europe.

Fitz, Jackson and Slavin.

Bob Fitzsimmons came from Australia and won two world's championships on these shores; Peter Jackson earned a fortune here, after leaving Australia, and Frank Slavin gained more money here in two or three fights than he had made in his whole fighting lifetime in Australia.

But the story is radically different as it concerns men who have come from England.

Corbett Stopped Mitchell.

He was fairly successful in getting money for a while, but eventually business became slack and it became infinitely slacker when he met Jim Corbett and was knocked out in three rounds, which defeat practically ended his career.

Pedlar Palmer was regarded as one of the greatest bantams that England ever produced. He came here and fought Terry McGovern for a world's championship. Terry knocked him out in a punch. Joe Bowker and Digger Stanley were great ones in the British Isles—but were swept into oblivion here. And the same thing goes for Billy Plimmer, Jack Harrison and Joey Thomas.

Driscoll Won No Title.

Jim Driscoll was a wonder of wonders in England. He came here hoping to win a world's championship. But he failed. So did Johnny Summers, Pat O'Keefe, Matt Wells and others of lesser fame in the world of whirling mittens.

Owen Morgan whipped every great bantam, feather and lightweight in the British Isles and, in his early outings here, beat Battling Nelson and Abe Attell. But when he received his shot at the title, the old hoodoo caught him—or maybe it was one of Ad Wolgast's gloves. At any rate Wolgast knocked Morgan to sleep in 1911.

Palzer Flattened Wells.

No finer looking heavyweight ever came to these shores than Bombardier Wells. He seemed to have everything of which champions are made. He mingled with Al Palzer in his first fight here—"just for a workout, y'know." Wells nearly butchered Palzer in the first round. A few minutes later Al let loose a wild swing and knocked Wells dead to the world.

Jimmy Wilde arrived here—a world's champion. He met Pancho Villa and was almost pulverized, sudffering then the most terrible beating he ever has taken in his ring lifetime. Since then no fighters of any merit in England have had the real courage to come across the sea and try conclusions with an American battler and a jinx—in the same ring.

Of all the English warriors that ever came to these parts Ted ("Kid") Lewis did become the welter champion by outpointing Jack Britton—and he did make some money. But the jinz caught him in the end, for Britton knocked him loose from his moorings one night. Lewis ceased to be a drawing card, ceased to be a money-maker and went back home dethroned.

MYSTERY VEILS BIRTH OF TENNIS

Racquet Sport Was Played 700 Years Ago; France Made It Popular.

Tennis is a form of athletic combat that slithers back into the middle ages for its birth date—with a lot of mystery veiling its exact birthplace.

The sport has existed for more than 700 years, but until ten seasons or so ago nobody did much claiming as to being its originator. But since then quite a few nations of that charming old Europe insist that tennis got its start on their fair terra firma.

Although there is much dispute now as to where the game had its origin, there is no argument over the fact that France developed the game and that its popularity spread from French portals beyond the frontiers and into the whole world.

Once Sport of Kings.

Tennis was a game indulged in by royalty in the earliest days in France. After a time the natives, having heard much of its delights, began to do a bit of tennising, too. This made King Charles V very wrathy and he made several efforts to halt the common people from playing tennis. Charlie was foiled—and the game became popular with all classes in France.

Very soon England took up the game. It flourished there for many years. But eventually it became professionalized. Terrific gambling was done on the outcome of the stellar clashes. Crookedness resulted, scandal ran amuck—and the sport went into a state of coma for several generations, not to be revived, in a definite way, until about 75 years ago.

Nation Took to Tennis.

And then it came back with a cyclonic rush. The whole nation went mad about it. In that era, as in all the years before, tennis was played indoors. Naturally, with countless thousands raving about the game and wildly eager to play, there was a scarcity of courts.

To provide for the legions who could not play indoors for lack of room, an outdoor experiment was made in 1874. An English nobleman gave a big house party and, as one of the features of it, staged a tennis game on an outdoor course especially constructed for the occasion. The crowd went into raptures about the open air game. So did the players.

Became Outdoor Sport.

And so it was that tennis became an outdoor game, played on grass or clay courts, while the indoor game of other centuries was changed in name from tennis to squash.

English army officers were the real tennis missionaries. They learned the game at home, then carried it to India, Australia, Canada, the Orient and into various parts of Europe. Everywhere that tennis was introduced it became popular, especially among the wealthy and aristocratic classes.

Uncle Sam Supreme.

The United States adopted tennis only a few generations ago. For quite a number of years it was played only by the wealthy set, either on their own estates or at the various country clubs. But about 20 years ago it caught the public's fancy, municipal courts were built, everybody who could afford it built a court of his own or joined a club where tennis was played.

And, as a result, America has more tennis players than any nation in the world—and it has the greatest. It has ruled the tennis realms for many seasons and it seems destined to remain supreme for several more years.

NO END IN SIGHT AT COAL PARLEY

President Lewis Charges Mine Operators Are Causing Delays.

ATLANTIC CITY N J Aug 1—(U P)—The anthracite coal wage parley goes into the fourth week Tuesday, when the miners operators committees are due to reconvene

With expiration of the present working agreement less than a month away and a strike of the 158 000 anthracite miners threatened in the event no agreement is reached it is expected the committee will strive with renewed vigor to break the technical deadlock which has existed for three weeks

John L Lewis international president of the United Mine Workers has announced his intention of attending the conference beginning Tuesday While he has demanded that Samuel D Warriner head of the operators join in the parley Warrner has indicated he will leave negotiations in the hands of the appointed committee representing his side of the argument

No Compromise in Sight

During the past three weeks the committee has considered every one of the twelve demands presented by the miners

Those already discussed include the question of a 10 per cent wage increase for miners an increase of $1 a day for those employed outside the mines the question of working conditions and the question of refusing compensation

On none of the seven points has any sort of an agreement been reached, and there has been no indication of even a possible compromise on any of these demands

President Lewis has placed the blame for the procrastination upon the operator leaders who he claims sent underlings to the conference here instead of coming in person

POWERS AFFIRM ARMS PROMISES

Expected to Agree to Carrying Out of Pledges Made at Washington.

WASHINGTON Aug 1—(I N S)—The government will be informed next week that the powers have given favorable replies to the American communication inviting them to carry out the pledges made at the Washington conference it was reported here today

Using the wide discretionary power granted by their respective governments the Peking diplomatic corps it was stated has been able to patch up the major differences between the various powers so that a sort of unanimity at least will be shown when the communication is transmitted to the chief foreign offices

Great Britain has been the stumbling block in the pathway of those striving to keep the pledges

Despite the optimism of the state department there is little likelihood of an extra territoriality conference at an early date

The communication from the powers to China will cover three major problems which comprise the backbone of Chinese unrest

The problems are

1 Shanghai riots It was the killing and wounding of large numbers of Chinese students in that vicinity recently that brought about the foreign demands for fear the disturbances might grow beyond control

A customs conference The Washington treaty of 1921 provided for the calling of a conference to revise Chinese customs revenue upward to a basic net of 5 per cent At present under British administration revenues received by the Peking government fall short by two per cent of this figure Britain retains a percentage to meet moneys owed by China

3 Extra territoriality control by foreign powers of legal jurisdiction over their subjects in China This is maintained by China at present.

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR EVOLUTION

CHICAGO Aug 1—(U P)—The anti evolution campaign in the legislatures of eight states announced shortly before his death by William Jennings Bryan is to be matched with a campaign of light by Clarence Darrow and his followers the Chicago attorney announced today upon his arrival from Tennessee

The action of the defense in the recent Scopes trial declined to elaborate on his plans because they are still in the formative stage

Darrow had a broad grin for the members of his reception committee who insisted on addressing him as colonel the title given him by Judge Raulston who presided in the Scopes trial

Satisfied With Verdict

CHICAGO Aug 1—(I N S)—Tennessee and its environs may get over the visit of Colonel Clarence Darrow and his regiment of ardent evolutionists but it will never be the same

Take it from the colonel himself a little bestowed upon him in Tennessee Darrow returned to Chicago today following a brief sojourn in the Tennessee mountains where he went to rest after the famous Scopes trial at Dayton

All of us wanted the verdict that was returned he said It was the only way we could carry on the fight to have the anti evolution law under which John Thomas Scopes was convicted brought before the higher court

Yes I think the trial accomplished a great deal in spreading scientific knowledge in that territory They may get over it down there after a while but they will never be the same

There has been a seed planted that may upset some of their traditions but will make for a great deal of more intelligent thought The fight to have the law declared unconstitutional will be carried before the Tennessee Supreme court at the September term If we fail there we will continue on to the United States Supreme court Of course the big battle in the meantime will be to have anti evolution laws knocked out in the other states

AN ANTI-FOREIGN OUTBREAK LOOMS

British - Chinese Clash At Nanking Leaves Fear of Another Uprising.

PEKING Aug 1—(U P)—That China's nearly dormant anti-foreign agitation may revive fed on the news of a new British Chinese clash at Nanking was the fear here tonight

Consular advices claimed one Britisher and four Chinese had been killed several Chinese wounded and one British subject captured

Subsequently British legation advices denied a Britisher was killed saying one man named Clarke had been killed one Chinese killed and several wounded

Taken with the recent killing of the American Morgan Palmer by bandits in Manchuria and the kidnaping of Dr Harvey Howard the new incident caused some concern here for the future

Shanghai reports said J C Clarke Britisher had been attacked on the street at Nanking and dragged to the students headquarters where he was beaten into unconsciousness He was reported to be in a serious condition in a hospital Chinese troops aided British marines in establishing order at Nanking

Dakota's State Gasoline Stations Do a Big Business

MITCHEL S D Aug 1—(U P)—South Dakota today took her vast motoring population under a wing of the state government and promised them protection against the so called gasoline gouge

Announcement that the state had gone to the mat on behalf of South Dakota auto drivers brought thousands of motorists flocking to the first three state owned filling stations here and at Watertown and Huron

For the present the state will sell gasoline to consumers at 1 cent under the price of privately owned oil companies or 22 cents a gallon

Governor Gunderson and the office of the attorney general announced they were ready to go into the courts if necessary to break the back of the so called gasoline trust

'GOOD OLD DAYS' OF FISTIC SPORT

Those good old days of prize ring warfare are gone—and it's just as well for posterity and such For in that era it not only was a case of survival of the fittest battler but also survival of the fittest of the well armed cash customers

In that period of ringdom which preceded the twentieth century the folks who became spectators at ring [illegible] arrive home afoot or via the civic morgue

About 30 years ago George Siler most famous of referees was hired to officiate at a ring encounter which was typical of that era The rivals were Pat Killen and Bob Ferguson the battle was staged in secret just outside the Chicago city limits two ring gloves were used—and to a finish was the order of the event

Revolvers and Knives

The spectators were made up almost entirely of gangmen split 50 50 in their sympathy Pitched a revolver several carried knives and each was insistent that this particular fighter must get a square deal or some body takes the consequences

Killen punched and pounded Ferguson all around the ring in the first round and as the second opened his fast and vicious bombardment put Ferguson in a terrible way It looked as if Ferguson could not weather the round when suddenly the cowardly time was heard—and the warriors thinking the official timekeeper had called the time of the round stopped fighting and went toward their corners

Trick By Ferguson Gang

Siler was quick to realize that the call had not come from anyone else except a number of the Ferguson gang who used the ruse to create a little resting spell for Ferguson So he ordered both fighters to resume the warfare Ferguson bewildered got up but did not put up his hands and when Siler again yelled Go on and fight Killen waited no longer He lashed out with a wicked right for the body Ferguson was tottering—and then the bell rang

Foul—foul howled the Ferguson supporters at Siler The Killen crowd fearful that Siler might be influenced by the cries of the Fergusonites and give the fight to Ferguson on a foul thus losing them their heavy wagers believed at the Ferguson people Youse a lot of liars—liars

Then a Free For All

A free for all battle was raging within ten seconds One of Ferguson's seconds grabbed the fighter's chair swung it out of the ring and smashed a Killen supporter on the head Several of the hoodlums whipped out revolvers and cracked heads with the butts Frank Ware chief second for Ferguson rushed over at Siler and threatened to kill him Siler cool and collected told Ware Go right ahead and never backed away an inch A half dozen Fergusonites jumped into the ring to menace Siler and just as many Killenites jumped in and clubbed or kicked them out of it

In spite of the mad tumult and the frenzied battling in and around the ring Siler ordered that time be called for the third round By some magic power he brought the fighters to scratch cleared out the mob and—started Killen and Ferguson into glove action

Weapons Ready For Use

During the rest of the fight every man possessed of a gun or knife was around the ring which was stretched on the turf holding the weapons in readiness for instant use Curses were flung at Siler—threats volleyed through the air One fellow with a knife ten inches long clung closely to the ropes and pricked Siler's back whenever he got the chance hissing as he did so If Ferguson loses I'll ram this through you

Killen knocked out Ferguson in the sixth As Siler declared Killen the winner Ferguson's supporters threatened to kill Siler and swirled toward the ring runs drawn knives flashing And then Siler gave an exhibition of courage that ever rarely equalled

Siler Showed His Nerve.

Scorning to jump out of the ring from a neutral corner he walked across to Ferguson's corner and elbowed his way through the infuriated Ferguson crowd Although a dozen men tried to halt him with guns and knives Siler never deviated from his courses

When Siler had cleared the crowd and was on his way to the station a shot was fired at him Others followed but Siler never turned back to look nor did he run to cover More shots followed But none hit Siler Having arrived at the train Siler instead of getting into the car with the Killen followers climbed into the Ferguson car and remained there during the entire trip to Chicago

President Lewis Charges Mine Operators Are Causing Delays.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 1.—(U. P.)—The anthracite coal wage parley goes into the fourth week Tuesday, when the miners-operators committees are due to reconvene.

With expiration of the present working agreement less than a month away, and a strike of the 158,000 anthracite miners threatened in the event no agreement is reached, it is expected the committee will strive with renewed vigor to break the technical deadlock which has existed for three weeks.

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, has announced his intention of attending the conference beginnig Tuesday. While he has demanded that Samuel D. Warriner, head of the operators, join in the parley, Warrner has indicated he will leave negotiations in the hands of the appointed committee representing his side of the argument.

No Compromise in Sight.

During the past three weeks, the committee has considered seven of the twelve demands presented by the minors.

Those already discussed include the question of a 10 per cent wage increase for miners on increase of $1 a day for those employed outside the mines; the question of working conditions and the question of refusing compensation.

On none of the seven points has any sort of an agreement been reached, and there has been no indication of even a possible compromise on any of these demands.

President Lewis has placed the blame for the procrastination upon the operator leaders, who he claims sent underlings to the conference here instead of coming in person.

BATTLE OF AGES ON IN MOROCCO

French Combatting Cruel Riffians With Most Modern Devices.

FEZ, Morocco, Aug. 1. — (U. P.)—Perhaps the most oddly matched battle in history is being waged along a front of 160 miles where the French, employing the most modern equipment and tactics of warfare, are matching their strength against the wily Riffian tribesmen.

It is a veritable battle of the centuries, as though the present age were demonstrating its highly developed forms of cruelty against the crude but cunning barbarity of the past.

The Riffians are masters of Apache warfare. Not infrequently in the French encampments, soldiers are knifed as they sleep. The tribesman, their flowing robes shed, their bodies smeared with sheep fat and rolled in brown clay, go silently throng, the moonless night to the center of a French post. There they plunge their daggers into the hearts and throats of their sleeping enemies, take cartriges and rifle belts and steal away.

Stenographer, 25, Of Wyoming, Wins $12,000 Judgment

SHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Lena McCutcheon, pretty 25-year old stenographer, tonight won a $12,000 verdict in Laramie county court in her $30,000 suit for damage against David W. Brice, 65-year old Wheatland, Wyo., banker.

Mrs. McCutcheon charged that Brice criminally assaulted her in the Wheatland State bank on the night of August 13, 1923. She alleged that the assault took place when she called at the bank after closing hours to see Brice about a loan. As a result of the experience, she testified, she had since been a "nervous wreck and felt like an outcast."

The case has attracted wide attention for more than a year and was tried in Laramie county on a charge of venue because of alleged prejudice against the women in Platte county, where Wheatland is located. Attorneys for Brice filed a motion for a new trial.

Coolidge Ends 2 Years In Office; Peaceful Regime

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Tonight marked the close of the second year of President coolidge's occupancy of the white house. It was just two years ago tomorrow that president Harding died. Only a few hours later that year, up in the Vermont hills, Calvin Coolidge, a virtual unknown stood under the Wavering light of an oil lamp in the presence only of his wife and his father and swore to the oath that elevated him to the nation's highest office.

In the two years that have followed President Coolidge has made history. Building up a platform of conservation and economy, he went into the national convention, swept aside all opposition and emerged victor.

Within the period of his white house incumbency a great slash in the nation's tax bill has been accomplished, but not as much as he would have liked, but material in the eyes of the public.

Business generally is prospering, there is little unemployment and confidence is being displayed in the government.

No industrial crisis thus far has materialized.

To the continuance of this condition of national prosperity President Coolidge is committing himself, and on it he is staking his own political career, according to his friends.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS CAUSE CONFUSION

Muny Court Collections For July Drop Below Figures For June.

Temporary confusion in the automobile traffic at Eleventh and P streets resulted Saturday night about 8 o'clock from a mechanical defect in the automatic signal light. Both red and green lights shone simultaneously in all four directions. They were repaired by the police department electricians.

A. R. Manley's touring car was bumped from the rear while waiting for the green light at Fifteenth and O streets Saturday afternoon. A Ford coupe, failed to stop soon enough and damaged the rear fenders on the touring car.

Municipal court records for July show a total of 347 cases during the month, divided into 160 civil suits, 65 criminal and 122 police court cases. Costs collected on civil suits totalled $374.45; on state criminal, $222.95, and on police court, $384.40. Costs collected were $981.80. Fines collected from state criminal cases amounted to $920, police court, $1,178, making a total of $2,098 for the school fund. Total of all collections was $3,079.80 against $4,037 in June. The total number of cases was 347 as against 461 in June.

POWERS AFFIRM ARMS PROMISES

Expected to Agree to Carrying Out of Pledges Made at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—The government will be informed next week that the powers have given favorable replies to the American communication inviting them to carry out the pledges made at the Washington conference, it was reported here today.

Using the wide discretionary power granted by their respective governments, the Peking diplomatic corps, it was stated, has been able to patch up the major diferences between the various powers so that a sort of unanimity, at least, will be shown when the communication is transmitted to the chief foreign offices.

Great Britain has been the stumbling block in the pathway of those striving to keep the pledges.

Despite the optimism of the state department, there is little likelihood of an extra territoriality conference at an early date.

The communication from the powers to China will cover three major problems which comprise the backbone of Chinese unrest.

The problems are:

1. Shanghai riots. It was the killing and wounding of large numbers of Chinese students in that vicinity recently that brought about the foreign demands for fear the disturbances might grow beyond control.

2. A customs conference. The Washington treaty of 1921 provided for the calling of a conference to revise Chinese customs revenue upward to a basic net of 7 per cent. At present, under British administration, revenues received by the Peking government fall short by two per cent of this figure. Britain retains a percentage to meet moneys owed by China.

3. Extra territoriality. Control by foreign powers of legal jurisdiction over their subjects in China. This is maintained by China at present.

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR EVOLUTION

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(U .P.) — The anti-evolution campaign in the legislatures of eight states, announced shortly before his death by William Jennings Bryan, is to be matched with a "campaign of light" by Clarence Darrow and his followers, the Chicago attorney announced today upon his arrival from Tennessee.

The "lion of the defense" in the recent Scopes trial declined to elaborate on his plans "because they are still in the formative stage."

Darrow had a broad grin for the members of his reception committee who insted on addressing him as "colonel," the title given him by Judge Raulston, who presided in the Scopes trial.

Satisfied With Verdict.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(I. N. S.)—Tennessee and its environs may get over the visit of "Colonel" Clarence Darrow and his regiment of ardent evolutionists, but it will never be the same.

Take it from the colonel himself, a title bestowed upon him in Tennessee. Darrow returned to Chicago today following a brief sojourn in the Tennessee mountains where he went to rest after the famous Scopes trial at Dayton.

"All of us wanted the verdict that was returned," he said. "It was the only way we could carry on the fight to have the anti-evolution law, under which John Thomas Scopes was convicted, brought before the higher court.

"Yes, I think the trial accomplished a great deal in spreading scientific knowledge in that territory. They may get over it down there after a while, but they will never be the same.

"There has been a seed planted that may upset some of their traditions, but will make for a great deal of more intelligent thought. The fight to have the law declared unconstitutional will be carried before the Tennessee Supreme court at the September term. If we fail trere, we will continue on to the United States Supreme court. Of course the big battle in the meantime will be to have anti-evolution laws knocked out in the other states."

AN ANTI-FOREIGN OUTBREAK LOOMS

British - Chinese Clash At Nanking Leaves Fear of Another Uprising.

PEKING, Aug. 1. — (U. P.) — That China's nearly dormant anti-foreign agitation may revive, fed on the news of a new British-Chinese clash at Nanking, was the fear here tonight.

Consular advices claimed one Britisher and four Chinese had been killed, several Chinese wounded and one British subject captured.

Subsequently British legation advices denied a Britisher was killed, saying one man named Clarke had been killed, one Chinese killed and several wounded.

Taken with the recent killing of the American, Morgan Palmer, by bandits in Manchuria, and the kidnaping of Dr. Harvey Howard, the new incident caused some concern here for the future.

Shanghai reports said J. C. Clarke, Britisher, had been attacked on the street at Nanking and dragged to the students' headquarters where he was beaten into unconsciousness. He was reported to be in a serious condition in a hospital. Chinese troops aided British marines in establishing order at Nanking.

MITCHEL, S. D., Aug. 1.—(U.P.)—South Dakota today took her vast motoring population under a wing of the state government and promised them protection against the so-called "gasoline gouge".

Announcement that the state had gone to the mat on behalf of South Dakota, auto drivers, brought thousands of motorists flocking to the first three state-owned filling stations here and at Watertown and Huron.

For the present the state will sell gasoline to consumers at 1 cent under the price of privately owned oil companies, or 22 cents a gallon.

Governor Gunderson and the office of the attorney general announced they were ready to go into the courts if necessary to "break the back" of the so-called "gasoline trust."

'GOOD OLD DAYS' OF FISTIC SPORT

Those "good old days" of prize ring warfare are gone—and it's just as well for posterity and such. For in that era it not only was a case of survival of the fittest battler but also survival of the fittest of the well armed cash customers.

In that period of ringdom which preceded the twentieth century, the folks who became spectators at ring battles never were sure whether they'd arrive home afoot or via the civic morgue.

About 35 years ago George Siler, most famous of referees, was hired to officiate at a ring encounter which was typical of that era. The rivals were Pat Killen and Bob Ferguson, the battle was staged in secret just outside the Chicago city limits, two once gloves were used—and "to a finish" was the order of the event.

Revolvers and Knives.

The spectators were made up almost entirely of gangmen, split 50-50 in their sympathy. Each carried a revolver, several carried knives and each was insistent that this particular fighter must get a "square deal" or somebody takes the consequences."

Killen punched and pounded Ferguson all around the ring in the first round and as the second opened, his fast and vicious bombardment put Ferguson in a terrible way. It looked as if Ferguson could not weather the round when suddenly the coy of "time" was heard—and the warriors, thinking the official timekeeper had called the time of the round, stopped fighting and went toward their corners.

Trick By Ferguson Gang.

Siler was quick to realize that the call had not come from anyone else except a number of the Ferguson gang who used the ruse to create a little resting spell for Ferguson. So he ordered both fighters to resume the warfare. Ferguson, bewildered got up, but did not put up his hands and when Siler again yelled "Go on and fight," Killen waited no longer. He lashed out with a wicked right for the body. Ferguson was tottering—and then the bell rang.

"Foul—foul," howled the Ferguson supporters at Siler. The Killen crowd, fearful that Siler might be influenced by the cries of the Fergusonites and give the fight to Ferguson on a foul, thus losing them their heavy wagers, believed at the Ferguson people "You're a lot of liars—liars."

Then a Free-For-All.

A free-for-all battle was raging within ten seconds. One of Ferguson's seconds grabbed the fighter's chair, swung it out of the ring and smashed a Killen supporter on the head. Several of the hoodlums whipped out revolvers and cracked heads with the butts. Frank Ware, chief second for Ferguson, rushed over at Siler and threatened to kill him. Siler, cool and collected, told Ware, "Go right ahead," and never backed away an inch. A half dozen Fergusonites jumped into the ring to menace Siler and just as many Killenites jumped in and clubbed or kicked them out of it.

In spite of the mad tumult and the frenzied battling in and around the ring, Siler ordered that "time" be called for the third round. By some magic power he brought the fighters to scratch, cleared out the mob and—started Killen and Ferguson into glove action.

Weapons Ready For Use.

During the rest of the fight every man possessed of a gun or knife was around the ring, which was stretched on the turf, holding the weapons in readiness for instant use. Curses were flung at Siler—threats volleyed through the air. One fellow with a knife ten inches long, clung closely to the ropes and pricked Siler's back whenever he got the chance, hissing as he did so "If Ferguson loses I'll ram this through you."

Killen knocked out Ferguson in the sixth. As Siler declared Killen the winner, Ferguson's supporters threatened to kill Siler and swirled toward the ring runs, drawn, knives flashing. And then Siler gave an exhibition of courage that ever rarely equalled.

Siler Showed His Nerve.

Scorning to jump out of the ring from a neutral corner, he walked across to Ferguson's corner and elbowed his way through the infuriated Ferguson crowd. Although a dozen men tried to halt him with guns and knives, Siler never deviated from his courses.

When Siler had cleared the crowd and was on his way to the station, a shot was fired at him. Others followed, but Siler never turned back to look, nor did he run to cover. More shots followed. But none hit Siler. Having arrived at the train, Siler, instead of getting into the car with the Killen followers, climbed into the Ferguson car and remained there during the entire trip to Chicago.

The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the Association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

Errors in advertisement should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. Cash rate per line per day. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion.

Advertisements That Speak Everybody's Language

The big ad about the $10 000 limousine isn't talking to the same people who are interested in the one about the correspondence course in bookkeeping

And the housewife who reads about canned goods probably won't understand the ad about investement securities

Put the Star's A-B-C Classified Ads speak everybody's language—because everybody can find just the ads they want to read

The Classifications are in 1 2 3" order Everybody knows what they means The little ad at sea on A B-C arrangement Everybody knows what that means And the first word of every ad tells what the ad is about

Here's advertising service that is so simple and so helpful that everyone finds in it the thing he or she wants—at a glance

Advertisements That Speak Everybody's Language

The big ad about the $10,000 limousine isn't talking to the same people who are interested in the one about the correspondence course in bookkeeping.

And the housewife who reads about canned goods probably won't understand the ad about investement securities.

But the Star's A-B-C Classified Ads speak everybody's language—because everybody can find just the ads they want to read!

The Classifications are in "1-2-3" order. Everybody knows what they means. The little ads are listed in "A-B-C" arrangement. Everybody knows what that means. And the first word of every ad tells what the ad is about!

Here's advertising service that is so simple and so helpful that everyone finds in it the thing he or she wants—at a glance!

SAYS AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS IS GOOD

Rickenbacker Says June Shipments This Year Four Times Those of 1924.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 1—"That the motor car business generally and Rickenbacker Motor company in particular is in a flourishing condition is shown by the fact that our shipments in June this year were more than four times the number of cars we shipped in the same month of 1924," Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales, said today.

"June is looked upon as the turning point in each season's demand," "Shipments in the spring months Captain Rickenbacker continued. may mean anything or nothing.

"Seldom are all the cars shipped from the factories actually absorbed by users during the months of February, March and April. If demand is heavy in those months we know that dealers are optimistic and so are storing up a stock to meet an expected demand later on.

"In May on the other hand, more cars are absorbed by users than are produced in the plants.

"There is always an over demand in May—it draws from the production of the previous months which, in retail sales are always below par.

Euilibrium in June.

"June generally stands on its own feet. In that month supply and demand reach a level in normal seasons.

"If the end of June shows a demand still unsupplied, then we know that business will continue to boom.

"Now, looking at last year's figures, we see that early in May came a warning that business was going to be less than normal.

"In 1924 retail demand broke off short before the end of May. And we had a condition which had occurred only once or twice before in the history of the industry—an over production in May and cars actually left over in June—when the reverse should have been the case.

"Why, in June 1923, we actually delivered less than half as many as in 1923—which month had shown a 20 per cent increase over that of 1922.

"This year has not only shown a normal gain of ground and the increase we hoped for, but a tremendous over-demand. Orders already in show that July will eclipse June—which is to say it will be the biggest month in our history."

Causes of Faulty Brakes.

Faulty brakes are caused by rust on the brake conections, dirt on the brake drums, expansion or contraction of the rods, changed position of the pins, lack of lubrication or a change in the alignment of the brake assembly due to uneven road surfaces, inflation of tires or additional weight in the back seat.

Warns Batteries Easily Overheated In Summer Months

Hot weather, just like extremely cold weather, is a danger period in the life of any storage battery unless the proper care is given it. So warns Mr. J. Lawson Robb, local Willard service station dealer.

"Summer weather is probably the most dangerous time the battery must pass through because the automobile is used more during this period. This is the time when overheating a battery is liable to happen," says Mr. Robb.

"Motorists are prone to forget or neglect to keep the battery filled with pure distilled water in hot weather. Evaporation of the water in the battery solution during hot weather is rapid. If the level of the water is permitted to reach a point below the tops of the plates, the upper portion is left exposed and useless. The covered portion of the plates is then obliged to assume the extra burden of the useless portion. This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but which results in considerable expense later.

"A doctor will always recommend plenty of pure water. Apply this same advice to a battery and it will do its work properly.

"Overheating of a battery may result from an undercharged condition continuing for some time. This starved condition may be due to the inexpensive or lack of knowledge on the part of the driver, who does not use judgment in operating his lights, or who uses the starter oftener than necessary.

"When undercharged for some time, plates become hardened and offer greater resistance to the charging current. If, therefore, a car with a starved battery is taken on a long run, the normal charging rate will produce intense heat in the battery to such an extent that the plates will buckle. If the battery were in a normal healthy condition this would not occur.

"Periodical inspection of your battery's condition during hot summer weather by a battery service station is about the best sort of trouble insurance you can carry," concludes Mr. Robb.

Eases Shocks of Road.

When going over rough spots in the road it will ease the shock to feed gas with the hand control while gently applying the brakes. The idea is that under this arrangement the car pulls when going into the holes and when drawing out of them, yet without coasting into them with a jolt. By keeping the speed of the car constant the jolts are reduced to a minimum.

OVERLAND CUTS SEDAN SIX PRICE

Peak Production at Willys-Overland Plant Makes Slash Possible.

Figures for the first half of 1923 showed an exceptional increase in production of Willys-Overland company over its peaf half year, and consequently a reduction in price of the Overland six DeLuxe sedan has been made, it is announced in figures just released by the company. The new price of the model is $1,095.

Since the introduction of Willys-Overland's complete two lines of fours and sixes at the New York show last spring the firm has focused its attention on the new line of six cylinder Overland closed cars which made such a decided impression at their original showing. The price cut on the overland six DeLuxe sedan follows closely on the heels of the price reduction announced on the Overland six Standard sedan which was recently slashed to $895 f. o. b. Toledo.

Sales figures at the factory show the Overland six DeLuxe sedan to be one of the most popular models ever produced by the company. Following its introduction to the automobile world at the eastern automobile shows, orders were taken so quickly for this model that the company's production schedule for this and other models for 1925 was jumped until the first six months of 1925 proved to be the biggest production record of any similar period in the history of Willys-Overland.

The Overland six DeLuxe sedan is a four-door-six-cylinder type of car, finished in a deep blue with the popular two tone color scheme, above the beading. The story of the production of this car records a long period of thorough experimentation and trial until Willys-Overland had proven to its own satisfaction the ability of the car to stand up under the hands of thousands of owners and drivers. The introduction of the Overland six marked, in addition, the culmination of months of intensive study by trained engineers to produce the unusual in six cylinder cars of this type and class.

SAYS USED CARS SELLING RAPIDLY

J. C. Higgins of Lord Auto Co. Says Good Market Now for Trades.

Possibly the most severe test of motor car activity and prosperity is in the market for used cars, says J. C. Higgins of the Lord Auto Co. Observers often notice that, at seasons when the new cars are enjoying their greatest activity the used ones are in slow demand—and that is one indication to men who knew that all is not well.

The present season, however, is unique in that the public is buying good used cars at an unprecedented rate, according to Mr. Higgins, who is in touch with hundreds of sales every month. The Hudson-Essex new car business is breaking records every month, Mr. Higgins says, and he reports an equal activity in his used car department.

"Never have used cars sold as readily as during the present season," he continued. "Right now we could use a good number of high-grade used cars, and in fact would like to make some trades on Hudson and Essex used cars.

"We are really as proud of the success of this part of our business as in the record we have made selling new cars. Anyone could sell Hudson and Essex automobiles this year while used cars for years have been the bane of dealers everywhere. We handle used car a bit differently here. In the first place, we buy only certain kinds which we know from experience will stand up.

"Each car is given a thorough inspection when it first comes in. Sometimes we decide to thoroughly overhaul it—always in case of a Hudson or Essex. Again we feel that the expense of a complete repair job would not justified, and then only the most necessary repairs are made. Often some mechanically minded man likes to pick up a car like this at a low price and do the needed work himself.

"When needed we put in a new battery or replace other parts, including tires. We can buy these things much cheaper than the driver, and thus save him a little money. His satisfaction is worth the extra effort required.

AUTO NOTES

Care of Balloon Tires.

To preserve the proper degree of inflation of balloon tires, it is recommended that the pressure be tested at least once a week with a low-pressure gauge. Keep the combination valve cap and dust cap firmly screwed down, using the hand, not pliers.

The inexperience and thoughtlessness of some passengers who distract the driver's attention by singing, talking and by requesting him to look at scenery along the route, are declared responsible for many accidents.

When a bolt becomes loose, fit a larger one in its place and use lock washers to keep the bolt tight.

Turn over to the right as far as possible when making a quick stop on a busy thoroughfare. This will give the driver behind a chance to swing safely to the left.

When the clutch is used frequently for gear shifting on hills, it often becomes heated and the play in the clutch is shortened. Should the pedal rest against the floor board, the clutch will slip and burn out plates very quickly if not properly adjusted.

New 1926 Cleveland Sets Record Sales

"One-Shot" Lubrication System

Cleveland has pioneered automatic chassis lubrication—and Cleveland alone offers the "One-Shot" System. More than 25,000 Clevelands with the "One-Shot" System are now in use. You simply press a plunger under your heel—that's all—and every part of the chassis is flushed with fresh, clean lubricant under pressure. Good-bye grease guns! Good-bye oil cans!

SAYS AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS IS GOOD

Rickenbacker Says June Shipments This Year Four Times Those of 1924.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 1.—"That the motor car business generally and Rickenbacker Motor company in particular is in a flourishing condition is shown by the fact that our shipments in June this year were more than four times the number of cars we shipped in the same month of 1924," Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales, said today.

"June is looked upon as the turning point in each season's demand," "Shipments in the spring months Captain Rickenbacker continued. may mean anything or nothing.

"Seldom are all the cars shipped from the factories actually absorbed by users during the months of February, March and April. If demand is heavy in those months we know that dealers are optimistic and so are storing up a stock to meet an expected demand later on.

"In May on the other hand, more cars are absorbed by users than are produced in the plants.

"There is always an over demand in May—it draws from the production of the previous months which, in retail sales are always below par.

Euilibrium in June.

"June generally stands on its own feet. In that month supply and demand reach a level in normal seasons.

"If the end of June shows a demand still unsupplied, then we know that business will continue to boom.

"Now, looking at last year's figures, we see that early in May came a warning that business was going to be less than normal.

"In 1924 retail demand broke off short before the end of May. And we had a condition which had occurred only once or twice before in the history of the industry—an over production in May and cars actually left over in June—when the reverse should have been the case.

"Why, in June 1923, we actually delivered less than half as many as in 1923—which month had shown a 20 per cent increase over that of 1922.

"This year has not only shown a normal gain of ground and the increase we hoped for, but a tremendous over-demand. Orders already in show that July will eclipse June—which is to say it will be the biggest month in our history."

Causes of Faulty Brakes.

Faulty brakes are caused by rust on the brake conections, dirt on the brake drums, expansion or contraction of the rods, changed position of the pins, lack of lubrication or a change in the alignment of the brake assembly due to uneven road surfaces, inflation of tires or additional weight in the back seat.

Warns Batteries Easily Overheated In Summer Months

Hot weather, just like extremely cold weather, is a danger period in the life of any storage battery unless the proper care is given it. So warns Mr. J. Lawson Robb, local Willard service station dealer.

"Summer weather is probably the most dangerous time the battery must pass through because the automobile is used more during this period. This is the time when overheating a battery is liable to happen," says Mr. Robb.

"Motorists are prone to forget or neglect to keep the battery filled with pure distilled water in hot weather. Evaporation of the water in the battery solution during hot weather is rapid. If the level of the water is permitted to reach a point below the tops of the plates, the upper portion is left exposed and useless. The covered portion of the plates is then obliged to assume the extra burden of the useless portion. This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but which results in considerable expense later.

"A doctor will always recommend plenty of pure water. Apply this same advice to a battery and it will do its work properly.

"Overheating of a battery may result from an undercharged condition continuing for some time. This starved condition may be due to the inexpensive or lack of knowledge on the part of the driver, who does not use judgment in operating his lights, or who uses the starter oftener than necessary.

"When undercharged for some time, plates become hardened and offer greater resistance to the charging current. If, therefore, a car with a starved battery is taken on a long run, the normal charging rate will produce intense heat in the battery to such an extent that the plates will buckle. If the battery were in a normal healthy condition this would not occur.

"Periodical inspection of your battery's condition during hot summer weather by a battery service station is about the best sort of trouble insurance you can carry," concludes Mr. Robb.

Eases Shocks of Road.

When going over rough spots in the road it will ease the shock to feed gas with the hand control while gently applying the brakes. The idea is that under this arrangement the car pulls when going into the holes and when drawing out of them, yet without coasting into them with a jolt. By keeping the speed of the car constant the jolts are reduced to a minimum.

OVERLAND CUTS SEDAN SIX PRICE

Peak Production at Willys-Overland Plant Makes Slash Possible.

Figures for the first half of 1923 showed an exceptional increase in production of Willys-Overland company over its peaf half year, and consequently a reduction in price of the Overland six DeLuxe sedan has been made, it is announced in figures just released by the company. The new price of the model is $1,095.

Since the introduction of Willys-Overland's complete two lines of fours and sixes at the New York show last spring the firm has focused its attention on the new line of six cylinder Overland closed cars which made such a decided impression at their original showing. The price cut on the overland six DeLuxe sedan follows closely on the heels of the price reduction announced on the Overland six Standard sedan which was recently slashed to $895 f. o. b. Toledo.

Sales figures at the factory show the Overland six DeLuxe sedan to be one of the most popular models ever produced by the company. Following its introduction to the automobile world at the eastern automobile shows, orders were taken so quickly for this model that the company's production schedule for this and other models for 1925 was jumped until the first six months of 1925 proved to be the biggest production record of any similar period in the history of Willys-Overland.

The Overland six DeLuxe sedan is a four-door-six-cylinder type of car, finished in a deep blue with the popular two tone color scheme above the beading. The story of the production of this car records a long period of thorough experimentation and trial until Willys-Overland had proven to its own satisfaction the ability of the car to stand up under the hands of thousands of owners and drivers. The introduction of the Overland six marked, in addition, the culmination of months of intensive study by trained engineers to produce the unusual in six cylinder cars of this type and class.

SAYS USED CARS SELLING RAPIDLY

Possibly the most severe test of motor car activity and prosperity is in the market for used cars, says J. C. Higgins of the Lord Auto Co. Observers often notice that, at seasons when the new cars are enjoying their greatest activity the used ones are in slow demand—and that is one indication to men who knew that all is not well.

The present season, however, is unique in that the public is buying good used cars at an unprecedented rate, according to Mr. Higgins, who is in touch with hundreds of sales every month. The Hudson-Essex new car business is breaking records every month, Mr. Higgins says, and he reports an equal activity in his used car department.

"Never have used cars sold as readily as during the present season," he continued. "Right now we could use a good number of high-grade used cars, and in fact would like to make some trades on Hudson and Essex used cars.

"We are really as proud of the success of this part of our business as in the record we have made selling new cars. Anyone could sell Hudson and Essex automobiles this year while used cars for years have been the bane of dealers everywhere. We handle used car a bit differently here. In the first place, we buy only certain kinds which we know from experience will stand up.

"Each car is given a thorough inspection when it first comes in. Sometimes we decide to thoroughly overhaul it—always in case of a Hudson or Essex. Again we feel that the expense of a complete repair job would not justified, and then only the most necessary repairs are made. Often some mechanically minded man likes to pick up a car like this at a low price and do the needed work himself.

"When needed we put in a new battery or replace other parts, including tires. We can buy these things much cheaper than the driver, and thus save him a little money. His satisfaction is worth the extra effort required.

AUTO NOTES

Care of Balloon Tires.

To preserve the proper degree of inflation of balloon tires, it is recommended that the pressure be tested at least once a week with a low-pressure gauge. Keep the combination valve cap and dust cap firmly screwed down, using the hand, not pliers.

The inexperience and thoughtlessness of some passengers who distract the driver's attention by singing, talking and by requesting him to look at scenery along the route, are declared responsible for many accidents.

When a bolt becomes loose, fit a larger one in its place and use lock washers to keep the bolt tight.

Turn over to the right as far as possible when making a quick stop on a busy thoroughfare. This will give the driver behind a chance to swing safely to the left.

When the clutch is used frequently for gear shifting on hills, it often becomes heated and the play in the clutch is shortened. Should the pedal rest against the floor board, the clutch will slip and burn out plates very quickly if not properly adjusted.

VIEW OF THE BIRD GARDEN.

On the map it is listed as St. Edward.

But it might be named Birdville

All the little tourist birds and all the little transient birds and all the many, many little hobo birds go there

They may pass right over the brand new capitol building and never give it a look. They may wing above the new hotels and churches and store buildings without the most cursory glance, but they never pass St. Edward by

From the moment they see the first slender green leaf of Nebraska corn and begin to observe its aerial speed laws, they think only of St. Edward.

It's a long, long way to St. Edward, but their hearts are right there.

St. Edward is only St Edward to the rest of Boone county and the state, but it's Birdville to the feathery world.

Just how the good word got about nobody knows, but it's a mighty young and unsophisticated birdlet that doesn't know St. Edward and all it means to him and his flying friends.

Birdville must be self-advertised, for neither bulletins nor booklets sent the good news from Boone to Boston and back to Bozeman

Birds' Mecca.

And at that, it isn't all of St Edward that is so attractive to the birds. It isn't different in the main from many other little Nebraska towns, with the bank on the corner and the garage up the street and the drug store across the way.

It is just a portion of the little village that sends its magnetic appeal across the state and draws in the birds, as no hundred spiders could tempt the most daring fly,—only a part of the village that is the mecca for all the summer bird pilgrimages

It's a slumberous, stilly garden that makes St. Edward Birdville A garden with a smooth, soft lawn for birds to hop about, with wide sunny spaces where a bird may sun himself on a cool November day, and with big old shrubs, hiding deep, cool shadows, where a little bird may be cool and rest in comfort in a Nebraska July.

This garden is a lovely, flowery place, but little birds cannot live on beauty, and this garden is all for them. Thoughtful hands have placed food and water there for them and the supply is never exhausted. In this one place, possibly unique in the state, at least on so extensive a scale, birds and bird life are placed before all other considerations, and they never want.

Feed Always Out.

The snow is never too deep in this St. Edward garden for someone to make his way to the feeders, where choice bits for birds are placed. The sun is never too hot for someone to go out and fill the bird baths or to put the sprinkler on the lawn.

Dana Anderson, the owner and originator of this bird garden, once devoted himself to his merchant tailor business in Indianapolis, Ind., with summer trips to St. Edward for pleasure.

But the bird garden has changed all that.

Mr. Anderson has others to care for his Indianapolis business, and he devotes himself to the care and improvement of his bird garden at St Edward.

Mr Anderson scarcely knows the way in which he first became so deeply interested in birds and bird gardens

Possibly one day, when the Indian summer wind was tipped with ice and the lilac and bridal wreath bushes drooped and showered brown leaves, and the garden was very empty he looked upward and thought, with a poet,

"O swallow, sister, O fair swift swallow!
Why wilt thou fly after spring to the south?"

And then he decided that he could bring the offerings of spring to his garden birds and they, or some of them, might stay to chirp and twitter in the bleak brownness of the winter garden

Now, he has so enlarged his idea, that he wants every home to have its bird garden, city parks and farms their song bird reserves; and every quiet cemetery its bird sanctuary.

Expert on Birds.

A chickadee was probably the cause of the garden, did that roving chickadee but know it. Some years ago, one of these little birds attracted Mr. Anderson's attention as it played about the yard, and, almost unconsciously, he began to observe its habits and actions, becoming more interested day by day.

As great fashions from little fads grow, so out of one bird, or two, has come the lovely St. Edward bird garden of Mr. Anderson's.

Before his first interest, he wasn't an ornithologist, amateur or professional, except that he knew and appreciated the value of birds. Shade trees and fruit trees, shrubs and flowers in yards and parks lovely flower gardens and the more practical, and sometimes equally artistic vegetable gardens all seem more or less tremendous in comparison to birds, and yet it is the bird that serves as traffic cops, always putting out the 'stop' signs for insects and bugs, subduing them with capital punishment in case of depredation.

Minute attention to bird life has increased Mr. Anderson's ornithological knowledge, until he is quite an expert in bird habits, food, nesting material, and housing. Not book knowledge this, but knowledge gained from intensive study in fields and forests. Mr. Anderson pursued the wildest ones into their haunts along the highways and in the timber and carefully watched the tamer ones as they tripped into his yard

Chickadees First.

The chickadee was the first bird in the garden, but it is but one of two dozen and a half varieties today that frequents his garden in season or has taken rooms there for the year. Mr. Anderson really expected he would have only a summer resort, in spite of his hopes, but he finds that he is a hotel keeper the year around.

Today he has in his garden the cickadee, nuthatch, junco—familiar is known as the black 'snow birds' of winter—flicker, downy woodpecker, hairy woodpecker, red head, house wren, two kinds of thrush, brown thrasher, mourning dove, grosbeak, catbird, towhee or chewink, humming bird, Baltimore oriole, orchard oriole, gold finch—the wild canary—blue jay, western goldfinch, brown reeperu, vireo, purple martin, screech owl, cardinal and "robins, robins, robins," he says. The chickadees, downey and hairy woodpeckers, flickers, nut hatches, brown creepers, screech owls, and cardinals are the yearly residents.

Nor is this garden an indiscriminate affair, planned haphazardly with trust in some providence that the birds would like it and stop. Mr. Anderson has studied his garden as carefully as he has studied its residents. He says of his garden:

"I found that the first things necessary to my grounds were food and water

"I placed a number of ground baths there and as many of the pedestal type. All the baths are shallow, being twelve inches at the deepest part and the water is changed each day."

Baths In Sunshine.

The placing of the baths is an art in itself. The amateur would put them in shade, but not Mr. Anderson. They are placed in the open stretches, far from the shrubs and plants, so that birds flying over the garden are attracted by the reflection of the sun, in the water, and stop to refresh themselves

And stopping once, they are little tourist and transient and hobo birds no more. They have found a sympathetic and understanding person, with plentiful food and drink, and no wise bird passes on.

"In dry hot weather," Mr. Anderson continues, birds go for miles to reach shallow pools to bathe and drink. When open water is not obtainable, insectivorous birds eat cherries and strawberries in an effort to quench their thirst."

That's a thought—a bird bath to save the cherry crop!

Mr. Anderson is a regular chef when it comes to feeding his feathered boarders. They may not demand variety, but they do demand quantity. And they'll not put up with makeshifts. If they can't have what they like, they'll move on, and like any landlord, Mr. Anderson would find that a great tragedy.

In speaking of feeding the birds, Mr. Anderson says:

"The tree feeders, feeding boxes of special types fixed to trees for different varieties of birds, are most effective in attracting birds. These are kept filled, the one type with nut meats and the other with suet I have nine of each of these in the garden.

Winter Protection.

"Many birds perish at this season, so it is well to use this precaution My garden also has a large, glass sided, open at the bottom winter feeder, containing various food hoppers, suet holders, sun flowers and squash seed traps. For the protection of the birds in the cold blizzardy weather, I have a large winter shelter, roofed and closed on three sides, open on the south, containing food and water

"For the summer birds I use several ground feeders, filled with bread crumbs, sun flower seeds, and cracked corn, in addition to the regular tree feeders."

Expert on Birds.

A chickadee was probably the cause of the garden, did that roving chickadee but know it. Some years ago, one of these little birds attracted Mr. Anderson's attention as it played about the yard, and, almost unconsciously, he began to observe its habits and actions, becoming more interested day by day.

As great fashions from little fads grow, so out of one bird, or two, has come the lovely St. Edward bird garden of Mr. Anderson's.

Before his first interest, he wasn't an ornithologist, amateur or professional, except that he knew and appreciated the value of birds. Shade trees and fruit trees, shrubs and flowers in yards and parks, lovely flower gardens and the more practical, and sometimes equally artistic vegetable gardens all seem more or less tremendous in comparison to birds, and yet it is the bird that serves as traffic cops, alway putting out the 'stop' signs for insects and bugs, subduing them with capital punishment in case of depredation.

Minute attention to bird life has increased Mr. Anderson's ornithological knowledge, until he is quite an expert in bird habits, food, nesting material, and housing. Not book knowledge this, but knowledge gained from intensive study in fields and forests. Mr. Anderson pursued the wildest ones into their haunts along the highways and in the timber and carefully watched the tamer ones as they tripped into his yard.

Chickadees First.

The chickadee was the first bird in the garden, but it is but one of two dozen and a half varieties today that frequents his garden in season or has taken rooms there for the year. Mr. Anderson really expected he would have only a summer resort, in spite of his hopes, but he finds that he is a hotel keeper the year around.

Today he has in his garden the ickadee, nuthatch, junco—familiarly known as the black 'snow birds' of winter—flicker, downy woodpecker, hairy woodpecker, red head, house wren, two kinds of thrush, brown thrasher, mourning dove, grosbeak, catbird, towhee or chewink, humming bird, Baltimore oriole, orchard oriole, gold finch—the wild canary—blue jay, western goldfinch, brown reeperu, vireo, purple martin, screech owl, cardinal and "robins, robins, robins," he says. The chickadees, downey and hairy woodpeckers, flickers, nut hashes, brown creepers, screech owls, and cardinals are the yearly residents.

Nor is this garden an indiscriminate affair, planned haphazardly with trust in some providence that the birds would like it and stop. Mr. Anderson has studied his garden as carefully as he has studied its residents. He says of his garden:

"I found that the first things necessary to my grounds were food and water.

"I placed a number of ground baths there and as many of the pedestal type. All the baths are shallow, being twelve inches at the deepest part and the water is changed each day."

Baths In Sunshine.

The placing of the baths is an art in itself. The amateur would put them in shade, but not Mr. Anderson. They are placed in the open stretches, far from the shrubs and plants, so that birds flying over the garden are attracted by the reflection of the sun in the water, and stop to refresh themselves.

And stopping once, they are little tourist and transient and hobo birds no more. They have found a sympathetic and understanding person, with plentiful food and drink, and no wise bird passes on.

"In dry hot weather," Mr. Anderson continues, birds go for miles to reach shallow pools to bathe and drink. When open water is not obtainable, insectiverious birds eat cherries and strawberries in an effort to quench their thirst."

That's a thought—a bird bath to save the cherry crop!

Mr. Anderson is a regular chef when it comes to feeding his feathered boarders. They may not demand variety, but they do demand quantity. And they'll not put up with makeshifts. If they can't have what they like, they'll move on, and like any landlord, Mr. Anderson would find that a great tragedy.

In speaking of feeding the birds, Mr. Anderson says:

"The tree feeders, feeding boxes of special types fixed to trees for different varieties of birds, are most effective in attracting birds. These are kept filled, the one type with nut meats and the other with suet. I have nine of each of these in the garden.

Winter Protection.

"Many birds perish at this season, so it is well to use this precaution. My garden also has a large, glass sided, open at the bottom winter feeder, containing various food hoppers, suet holders, sun flowers and squash seed traps. For the protection of the birds in the cold, blizzardy weather, I have a large winter shelter, roofed and closed on three sides, open on the south, containing food and water.

"For the summer birds I use several ground feeders, filled with bread crumbs, sun flower seeds, and cracked corn, in addition to the regular tree feeders."

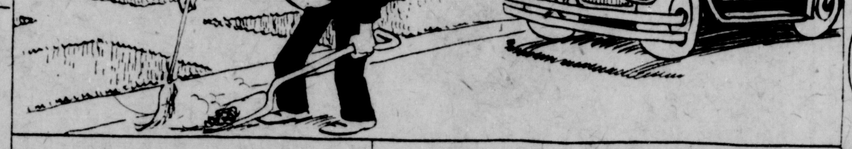
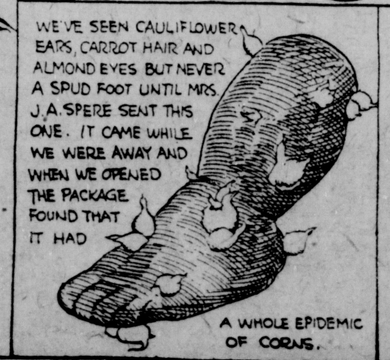
VOLUME 5. THE LINCOLN SUNDAY STAR - AUGUST 2, 1925 NUMBER 23





Reminiscences of Great Commoner---Memories Of Human Qualities of William Jennings Bryan---Recounted by Many Lincoln Friends

The great Commoner is dead, but he will live on through the memories of those who knew him best and who stood with him in his days of triumph and his days of defeat.

They have buried him, but his soul, like that of another crusader, shall go marching on.

They have placed the vulnerable man of dust beneath the marble tomb, but the deeds and the personality of the man shall transcend the weight of marble and shall rise above the mortality of human clay.

Those who were his friends and supporters have been remembering so much since last Sunday night when wires swayed beneath thir burden of words of his death and radios and telephones carried the message to a stupefied world.

There is so much that they cannot remember. Only the years will reveal the fullness of memory. Surprise and shock have locked the gates of reminiscent thoughts and but an incident here and a word there can be recalled.

Many Personal Memories.

Yet, the little is very much, for the Commoner held a unique position in America for thirty years. Each one has some little personal memory of the man who held so many enthralled in the delicate web of his words—little human incidents that made him, not the man of the political world, but the man of his friends.

Some of the memories show the innate friendliness of William Jennings Bryan. Some bring a bit of laughter. Smoe are beautiful. Others show his thoughtfulness and care.

One windy, rainy night, when even the shelter of a dripping tent was welcome, about 150 men from the Third Nebraska volunteers were being invalided home from service in the Spanish-American war and Bryan performed a little service.

It was at Jacksonville, Fla., and the train had been drawn into the station so that the men might be placed in the cars wih a minimum of pain. It was a wild, stormy night and only two officers, in addition to Dr. A. P. Fitzsimmons, who was in charge, were present. One of them was Bryan, the colonel of the Third Nebraska, who supervised the moving of the men and saw that they were as comfortable as possible for the long journey.

Called O'Brian.

The Star carried a story the other night that some genealogist had traced the Bryan ancestry back to William O'Brian, a captain in King James Irish army. Although Bryan did not know that the family name had one time been O'Brian, he felt it might have been, and one ardent chairman of a meeting must have been certain of the name, for he changed it to Bryan's lasting amusement.

In 1888, a year after he had come to Nebraska and when he was still a young and struggling lawyer, Charles Pool, now secretary of state, was running for the legislature and his friend, W. J. Bryan, went down to speak for him at a Johnson county meeting. At that time, the chairman introduced Mr. Bryan as "Mr. O'Brian," and he was jokingly called the new name for some time.

Dr. Fitzsimmons tells another incident of the war. Bryan was in charge of the officers' mess, a job generally delegated to some junior officer, but which he attended to himself. Milk was purchased from an old colored man and one day Bryan inquired where he watered the cows. On being told that any convenient spot, generally a swamp was used, Bryan insisted that the cows have pure well water.

The cows were given well water, but the next sale of milk was doubled in price.

Prayed Before Bed.

Bryan died fighting for his cause, his support of the Bible before the world was a little incident in a small Nebraska town.

He was always given the best room in the hotel, and after a speech a large crowd of men generally assembled there to talk politics for hours. This particular night the usual crowd of twenty-five or thirty were in his room. Bryan's tours were always strenuous affairs, and night found him weary.

"Gentlemen," he said, "don't go and talk as long as you care to but I must be excused to go to bed. I am very tired."

After preparing for bed, he arranged the covers, while the men smoked and talked and planned and speculated.

With the politicall gossip going on, with the blue smoke wreathing

And the room was suddenly very silent and men thought, for a minute, thoughts they had not for many years.

Arising, Mr. Bryan retired and continued his friendly conversation until he slept.

Helped Young Authors.

Although mentally and physically fatigued when returning from a trip in which he had made four or five speeches each day, J. R. Ferris recalls that time after time Bryan sat up two-thirds of the night reading manuscripts young authors had sent to him for approval. His mail was often crowded with the manuscripts, for authors felt some good fortune lay in his remarks. The next morning he would dictate letter after letter, discussing the plot, the weakness and strength of the story offering help ad encouragement, giving advice on certain definite portions of the story, showing that he had read each manuscript with sufficient care to enable him to advise on it.

Ordinarily not an impetuous man, Mr. Bryan permitted himself one unconsidered act, which he never regretted.

Mrs. Bryan was not well and Mr. Bryan set forth in the family buggy to secure a maid—hired girl in those days.

Driving down the street he saw a young woman who appealed to him as just the person for his household. He jumped out of the buggy, approached her, asking if she were looking for work.

She was. She went to the Bryan home at 1625 D street. She remained there for ten years, until her marriage took her away.

According to Mr Pool, when Bryan was making his first speeches in Nebraska he was a splendid appearing young fellow, six feet tall, with extremely black hair, and an attractive smile. He did not wear his hair as long then as in later days

Ordinarily he wore a black alpaca coat, and although always neat, he took little interest in clothes for every day However, when he appeared on the platform he was the acme of fashion and the glass of style, and the young men out in the state didn't care for it. They wanted him to appear in his workday clothes, for then he seemed so much more one of them

Crawl Over Bridge.

One night in the campaign of 1911, Bryan, Clarence Harman, who was associated with him politically for many years, and three judges who were running for positions on the state supreme bench went from Blair to Papillion and thence to the bridge and motors picked them up on the other side, but the process of getting from motor to motor was the party's own

The flooring of the bridge was missing, but the stringers were in place. The entire assemblage, including Bryan, crossed on their hands and knees, Bryan being the most agile of all, making the crossing with greatest ease, and remarking jokingly that "anyone who couldn't cross that bridge should drown." The crossing also entailed a climb down a ladder in the middle of the bridge, a crossing on a platform, and an upward climb of several feet.

At the trial at Dayton, Tenn., there were many remarks that Bryan had not sufficiently acquainted himself with the subject of evolution. In the opinion of one of his friends, that idea was most erroneous, as for the past seven or eight years Bryan had spent much time delving into the subject. He had read every modern book and ancient treatise on the topic and had studied them as a lawyer prepares for a case. He was not content with modern authority, but he went as far back and as deep into the subject as it was possible to go.

Saved a Panic.

People had an uncommon faith in Mr. Bryan, which was illustrated in the panic of 1907, when the people were withdrawing all their money and the banks were issuing script. Bankers had urged the people to be calm and proclamations and bulletins had been issued by the large eastern houses, entreating depositors to leave their money in the banks and to help stabilize conditions. All efforts had been nearly fruitless until someone suggested that Mr. Bryan make a statement on the condition of the banks. He did so and the panic of the people subsided suddenly and quiet and calm was restored.

During Mr. Bryan's trip around the world, he was feted and honored in all countries, but he was never too busy nor too hurried to visit the struggling little mission and church schools in countries where men and women were laboring to spread the gospel. For many years after his return to this country, Mr. Bryan maintained scholarships in many of these schools.

Several years later, when he became secretary of state in Wilson's cabinet, he found the maintenance of the scholarships and the cost of living in Washington a severe drain on his finances. He took a house of lower rent than his predecessor had and he enjoyed a simpler plan of living, but at best living was expensive and he refused to abandon the scholarships. To continue to maintain the scholarships and yet keep up a Washington residence is offered by his friends as a supposition for his going upon the chautauqua platform in his term of office, for which he was so [illegible] cised.

Wanted Radishes.

Many reasons have been offered for Mr. Bryan's change of residence from Nebraska to Florida, but possibly the main one was never known. According to Mr. Harman Mr. Bryan was a great lover of green vegetables and once told him that one reason he moved to Florida was that he might have radishes the entire year and that he was seldom able to get them in the north in the winter. After that, Mr. Harman sent radishes to the T. S. Allen home or the C. W. Bryan home when W. J. Bryan was coming to Lincoln.

He is gone, but the reminiscences of his life shall live on for long years.

Possibly, Mr. Harman sums up the life of the man as well as has been done, as well as the thousand little stories of his life can do.

"He was of the common people and had their best interest at heart more than any other great leader the country has ever had," he says.

"Mr. Bryan has stirred this nation more times with his strong advocacy of different issues than has any other American. He may not have been on the winning side of political battles at times, but he has sponsored more laws for the general public that will stand as a monument to him, than any of those who have won political victories.

"I feel deeply the death of Mr Bryan personally and to my mind this nation has lost its great champion of the masses. History will give him credit for his good works and he will have a prominent place in it as he has made so much of it in the last thirty years

The great Commoner is dead, but he will live on through the memories of those who knew him best and who stood with him in his days of triumph and his days of defeat.

They have buried him, but his soul, like that of another crusader, shall go marching on.

They have placed the vulnerable man of dust beneath the marble tomb, but the deeds and the personality of the man shall transcend the weight of marble and shall rise above the mortality of human clay.

Those who were his friends and supporters have been remembering so much since last Sunday night when wires swayed beneath thir burden of words of his death and radios and telephones carried the message to a stupefied world.

There is so much that they cannot remember. Only the years will reveal the fullness of memory. Surprise and shock have locked the gates of reminiscent thoughts and but an incident here and a word there can be recalled.

Many Personal Memories.

Yet, the little is very much, for the Commoner held a unique position in America for thirty years. Each one has some little personal memory of the man who held so many enthralled in the delicate web of his words—little human incidents that made him, not the man of the political world, but the man of his friends.

Some of the memories show the innate friendliness of William Jennings Bryan. Some bring a bit of laughter. Smoe are beautiful. Others show his thoughtfulness and care.

One windy, rainy night, when even the shelter of a dripping tent was welcome, about 150 men from the Third Nebraska volunteers were being invalided home from service in the Spanish-American war and Bryan performed a little service.

It was at Jacksonville, Fla., and the train had been drawn into the station so that the men might be placed in the cars wih a minimum of pain. One of them was Bryan, the colonel of the Third Nebraska, who supervised the moving of the men and saw that they were as comfortable as possible for the long journey.

Called O'Brian.

The Star carried a story the other night that some genealogist had traced the Bryan ancestry back to William O'Brian, a captain in King James Irish army. Although Bryan did not know that the family name had one time been O'Brian, he felt it might have been, and one ardent chairman of a meeting must have been certain of the name, for he changed it to Bryan's lasting amusement.

Dr. Fitzsimmons tells another incident of the war. Bryan was in charge of the officers' mess, a job generally delegated to some junior officer, but which he attended to himself. Milk was purchased from an old colored man and one day Bryan inquired where he watered the cows. On being told that any convenient spot, generally a swamp was used, Bryan insisted that the cows have pure well water.

The cows were given well water, but the next sale of milk was doubled in price.

Prayed Before Bed.

Bryan died fighting for his cause, his support of the Bible before the world was a little incident in a small Nebraska town.

He was always given the best room in the hotel, and after a speech a large crowd of men generally assembled there to talk politics for hours. This particular night the usual crowd of twenty-five or thirty were in his room. Bryan's tours were always strenuous affairs, and night found him weary.

"Gentlemen," he said, "don't go and talk as long as you care to but I must be excused to go to bed. I am very tired."

After preparing for bed, he arranged the covers, while the men smoked and talked and planned and speculated.

Helped Young Authors.

During Mr. Bryan's trip around the world, he was feted and honored in all countries, but he was never too busy nor too hurried to visit the struggling little mission and church schools in countries where men and women were laboring to spread the gospel. For many years after his return to this country, Mr. Bryan maintained scholarships in many of these schools.

Several years later, when he became secretary of state in Wilson's cabinet, he found the maintenance of the scholarships and the cost of living in Washington a severe drain on his finances. He took a house of lower rent than his predecessor had and he enjoyed a simpler plan of living, but at best living was expensive and he refused to abandon the scholarships. To continue to maintain the scholarships and yet keep up a Washington residence is offered by his friends as a supposition for his going upon the chautauqua platform in his term of office, for which he was so severely criticized.

Wanted Radishes.

Many reasons have been offered for Mr. Bryan's change of residence from Nebraska to Florida, but possibly the main one was never known. According to Mr. Harman Mr. Bryan was a great lover of green vegetables and once told him that one reason he moved to Florida was that he might have radishes the entire year and that he was seldom able to get them in the north in the winter. After that, Mr. Harman sent radishes to the T. S. Allen home or the C. W. Bryan home when W. J. Bryan was coming to Lincoln.

He is gone, but the reminiscences of his life shall live on for long years.

Possibly, Mr. Harman sums up the life of the man as well as has been done, as well as the thousand little stories of his life can do.

'He was of the common people and had their best interest at heart more than any other great leader the country has ever had," he says.

"Mr. Bryan has stirred this nation more times with his strong advocacy of different issues than has any other American. He may not have been on the winning side of political battles at times, but he has sponsored more laws for the general public that will stand as a monument to him, than any of those who have won political victories.

"I feel deeply the death of Mr Bryan personally and to my mind this nation has lost its great champion of the masses. History will give him credit for his good works and he will have a prominent place in it as he has made so much of it in the last thirty years.

HERE IS SOMETHING REAL
A New Discovery!
A Pleasant Reducing Chewing Gum

which safely takes off fat at the rate of several pounds a week. Nothing to take Internally — No Diets — Dangerous Drugs — Exercises.

Through a most marvelous recent discovery scientists have been able to incorporate the extract of sea plants known for years as wonderful reducers into a delicious, refreshing chewing gum called "Silph"—Doctors—medical authorities, and grateful users, who had been burdened with obesity for years, are amased at the quick and astonishing results produced by "Silph" in most obstinate cases where everything else seemed to have failed.

The above picture of Mrs. N. of Brooklyn shows you what Silph Reducing Gum has done for a woman who had been overburdened with fat for years and years. Today she is back to her normal weight. All she did was to chew Silph Reducing Gum for a few weeks and here is the result. You can do the same—already hundreds are reducing with Silph everyday.

The moment you start chewing Silph you feel a wonderful change in your system—stomach and intestinal troubles vanish—no more pains or aches—through the flow of saliva mixed with the gastric juices and these extract of sea plants, Silph eliminates from your system certain elements which causes for FAT and you will be amased how easily and quickly you can lose all excess weight.

Silph is not a drug, nor a laxative, but a pleasant reducer in candy form. What could be more pleasant than to chew two or three pieces of gum a day and know that your excess fat is gradually and surely going for good.

Silph not only appeals to people already overburdened with excess fat but to those who have a tendency to obesity. It is a wonderful way to prevent FAT to accumulate on the figure—it is harmless and recognized as a wonderful tonic—recommended to men, women and children, not only for reducing, but to do away with all worn out, tired feeling—Silph sells for 50 cents a box, enough for one week at all drug stores. BEWARE of imitations. "Silph" is the real thing!

"CHEW SILPH AND BE SYLPH-LIKE."

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

By Her Face You Will Know Her—The Girl Who Abandons All Restraint in Her Search for "Experience" and "Thrills" is Marked as Surely as by Some Ravaging Disease — Real Love Will Endure Though Separated by Miles and Months—A Letter on Evolution.

She Seeks Experience.

Dear Minerva: I am a modern bachelor girl and I would like to tell you some of my views of life.

When a very young girl I was forcibly struck by the injustice of the double standard for men and women. My father was a philanderer, yet he was a highly respected member of the community. My mother was a hard-working, virtuous woman, always taking the brunt of responsibilities, having few pleasures, seeing little of life's rosier hues, yet he had few friends and the town turned on her quickly enough when she finally chose to leave her husband, my father, and become a self respecting boarding housekeeper to living longer as the slave of a man who gave her no respect or love.

The other children resented this and went with father, but I stuck to mother.

Well, mother and father were later reunited and fought it out together. But that was a long time ago. I have been independent for many years. I live alone and I do as I please. Last summer I took a vacation trip with a man friend. We made no attempt to conceal our plans. We went to the same resort, played golf, swam, danced and dined together. That was all. If the world chose to think evil of us, I didn't care. The man is unhappily married and has few enough pleasures in life.

This summer I am going on my vacation to see a homestead ranch for sale, which I may buy and work myself. I feel the need of greater freedom. I want experience and experiences. I want to drink life to the depths.

My sympathies are all with the modern girl who is striving, even as I, to find real freedom.—HILDA.

A. We toss that word experience about like a ball; it's such a handy excuse. When we want to break the conventions, disobey a law, have our own way, we contend we must have "experience." Or else we talk glibly of "liberty." I hadn't heard so much of the "double standard" lately, but it used to be a good stock expression.

"Experience" in truth, is whatever we undergo in thinking, feeling, doing, living. But many moderns use the word as synonymous with "thrills." The person who talks loudly of "experience" is not apt to care a fig for the great experiences to be found in travel, reading, business, politics, religion, science, sports, but are greedy for reckless romance, the thrills of love.

When a girl demands equality in her rights for experiences with men, not infrequently what she claims for herself is full freedom to philander like a man.

Among these independent girls we have:

The petter, whose pretty mouth holds kisses for all who may seek them. She may be well-educated and carefully reared.

The daring nice girl whose hunger for thrill leads her to make friends with strange and fast young men and to go on reckless parties with them. Who loves to shock her neighbors. She calls them "tabbies."

The girl who like yourself, is independent financially and regards herself as independent morally too, and who plays with the fires of life without expecting to be burned.

Each girl learns by experience but each girl also loses by experience.

At first each girl is innocent, but after a while each uses her innocence quite consciously as a mask behind which to hide her precocious sex preception. She becomes a sophisticate. But she never sees herself as others see her. This venturesome girl always expects to remain good and simple and sweet in the eyes of others. She has intuition which enables her to pick out the "tough" girls from the others in a crowd. So have others.

In lines of character, hard lips, roving seeking eyes you will pay the price of careless experiences.

With typhoid you lose your hair; with smallpox you get a pitted complexion. Where is the girl who will deliberately risk losing her physical charms. Moral beauty needs safeguarding and care also.

Don't risk too much to gain your "experience."

Had Bette Wait.

Dear Minerva: I have met the most wonderful man and he wants me to marry him and he is leaving next month for Alaska where he has a government position and wants me to marry him and go with him. My parents say I have not known him long enough and will not consent. But Minerva I know I love him. I have thought I was in love before but never like this. Oh what shall I do? Isn't a girl justified in eloping in such a case?—JESSIE.

A. It may be quite as likely that you are infatuated as that you are in love. Your parents know more of your age (which I fancy is tender) and your disposition (which I surmise is spontaneous if not flighty) and I rather think their advice is all to the good.

It may be you are just as sure to meet your ideal, "one-and-only" a dozen times yet as that you know him now. If you marry this year, some new Prince Charming may come flopping along in a pair of 18-inch cuff pants to help convince you that you made a mistake and should have waited for him before you said "I love him so."

How old are you anyway? How about these other lovers of yours? Didn't you love them equally intensely for a while?

You had better listen to your parents and not leap into any such hasty marriage. Real love will endure a year or so even through the miles and the months between Nebraska and Alaska. But infatuation will die a quick death in the lone, far-away Alaska if you have mistaken that emotion for love. Better use discretion and wait a while.

More On Evolution.

Dear Minerva:: Have you the space for another letter on evolution. We are hearing so much about this subject these days in pulpit, platform and headline, and I enjoy hearing the views of your readers.

Genuine science and revelation do not disagree. The same hand that wrote through the medium of the storm, upon the rock, wrote through the channel of the prophet upon the parchment. Christian universities have given us the telescope the microscope, electric batteries and the best philosophical apparatus.

A Christian, Professor Morse, gave us magnetic telegraphy. The continents were cabled together with lightening, under the sea by another Christian, Cyrus W. Field. James Y. Simpson of Edinburgh, preaching the Gospel of Christ to the people on Sunday and lecturing in the university on the profoundest scientific subjects, upon week days, gave us the anaesthetic for surgery.

Science and revelation are the bass and soprano of the same tune. But between "science falsely called" and revelation there is uncompromising warfare.

T. De Witte Talmadge said "I put upon the witness stand living and dead, the leading evolutionists, Ernest Heckle, John Stuart Mill, Huxley Tyndall, Darwin and Spencer.

"On the witness stand, ye men of science, living and dead, answer these questions: Do you believe the Holy Scripture? Do you believe the Bible story of Adam and Eve, in the Garden of Eden? No. Do you believe the miracles of the old and new Testaments? No. Do you believe that Jesus Christ died to save the nations? No. Do you believe that human supplications directed heavenward makes any difference? No. Do you believe in the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost? No. And thus they answer all." Their writings all answer no as anyone can see by reading them.

"Now I put opposite them the Bible account, 'God said let us make man in our image,' 'male and female created he them.' 'He breathed into them the breath of life,' the whole story setting forth the idea that it was not a perfect kangaroo, nor a perfect orang outang, but a perfect man.

"The evolutionists account, away back in the ages there were four or five primal germs, or seminal spores from which all of the living creatures have been evolved. Go away back and there you will find a vegetable stuff that might be called a mushroom. The mushroom, by inate force developed a pollywog, the pollywog developed a fish, the fish developed a rep, the reptile developed into a quadruped, the quadruped developed into a baboon. The baboon developed into a man."

Read Darwin's Origin of Species to find out how this development was supposed to have taken place. Accept Darwin's Origin of Species, if you will, but acknowledge that you are an infidel. None of these so-called scientists were present at the creation; but God gave us the account through the hand of the prophet.

Agassiz, Hugh Miller, Farraday, Brewster, Dana, Dawson and hundreds of well-known scientists have rejected the evolution theory. Centuries ago, Lucretius in his poems extolled the doctrine of evolution. Instead of being a late discovery of science, it is an old heathen corpse, set up in a morgue. If this development at one time took place why did it stop with man. Why not take place at the present time? Every species remains distinct today and no species can be changed by breeding. They can be improved but not changed.

Evolution says "the horse came from the pliohippus, the pliohippus came from the protohippus, the protohippus came from the miohippus, the miohippus from the mesohipus, the mesohipus from the orohippus, and so on away back in the line, until we come to the moneron, and this Huxley says "is of so low a form of life that the probability is that it just made itself, or was the result of spontaneous generation." What a narrow escape from the necessity of having a God. I could write a volume upon this subject.—INTERESTED.

This summer I am going on my vacation to see a homestead ranch for sale, which I may buy and work myself. I feel the need of greater freedom. I want experience and experiences. I want to drink life to the depths.

My sympathies are all with the modern girl who is striving, even as I, to find real freedom.—HILDA.

A. We toss that word experience about like a ball; it's such a handy excuse. When we want to break the conventions, disobey a law, have our own way, we contend we must have "experience." Or else we talk glibly of "liberty." I hadn't heard so much of the "double standard" lately, but it used to be a good stock expression.

"Experience" in truth, is whatever we undergo in thinking, feeling, doing, living. But many moderns use the word as synonymous with "thrills." The person who talks loudly of "experience" is not apt to care a fig for the great experiences to be found in travel, reading, business, politics, religion, science, sports, but are greedy for reckless romance, the thrills of love.

When a girl demands equality in her rights for experiences with men, not infrequently what she claims for herself is full freedom to philander like a man.

Among these independent girls we have:

The petter, whose pretty mouth holds kisses for all who may seek them. She may be well-educated and carefully reared.

The daring nice girl whose hunger for thrill leads her to make friends with strange and fast young men and to go on reckless parties with them. Who loves to shock her neighbors. She calls them "tabbies."

The girl who like yourself, is independent financially and regards herself as independent morally too, and who plays with the fires of life without expecting to be burned.

Each girl learns by experience but each girl also loses by experience.

At first each girl is innocent, but after a while each uses her innocence quite consciously as a mask behind which to hide her precocious sex preception. She becomes a sophisticate. But she never sees herself as others see her. This venturesome girl always expects to remain good and simple and sweet in the eyes of others. She has intuition which enables her to pick out the "tough" girls from the others in a crowd. So have others.

In lines of character, hard lips, roving seeking eyes you will pay the price of careless experiences.

With typhoid you lose your hair; with smallpox you get a pitted complexion. Where is the girl who will deliberately risk losing her physical charms. Moral beauty needs safeguarding and care also.

Don't risk too much to gain your "experience."

Had Bette Wait.

Dear Minerva: I have met the most wonderful man and he wants me to marry him and he is leaving next month for Alaska where he has a government position and wants me to marry him and go with him. My parents say I have not known him long enough and will not consent. But Minerva I know I love him. I have thought I was in love before but never like this. Oh what shall I do? Isn't a girl justified in eloping in such a case?—JESSIE.

A. It may be quite as likely that you are infatuated as that you are in love. Your parents know more of your age (which I fancy is tender) and your disposition (which I surmise is spontaneous if not flighty) and I rather think their advice is all to the good.

It may be you are just as sure to meet your ideal, "one-and-only" a dozen times yet as that you know him now. If you marry this year, some new Prince Charming may come flapping along in a pair of 18-inch cuff pants to help convince you that you made a mistake and should have waited for him before you said "I love him so."

How old are you anyway? How about these other lovers of yours? Didn't you love them equally intensely for a while?

You had better listen to your parents and not leap into any such hasty marriage. Real love will endure a year or so even through the miles and the months between Nebraska and Alaska. But infatuation will die a quick death in the lone, far-away Alaska if you have mistaken that emotion for love. Better use discretion and wait a while.

More On Evolution.

Dear Minerva:: Have you the space for another letter on evolution. We are hearing so much about this subject these days in pulpit, platform and headline, and I enjoy hearing the views of your readers.

Genuine science and revelation do not disagree. The same hand that wrote through the medium of the storm, upon the rock, wrote through the channel of the prophet upon the parchment. Christian universities have given us the telescope the microscope, electric batteries and the best philosophical apparatus.

A Christian, Professor Morse, gave us magnetic telegraphy. The continents were cabled together with lightening, under the sea by another Christian, Cyrus W. Field. James Y. Simpson of Edinburgh, preaching the Gospel of Christ to the people on Sunday and lecturing in the university on the profoundest scientific subjects, upon week days, gave us the anaesthetic for surgery.

Science and revelation are the bass and soprano of the same tune. But between "science falsely called" and revelation there is uncompromising warfare.

T. De Witte Talmadge said "I put upon the witness stand living and dead, the leading evolutionists, Ernest Heckle, John Stuart Mill, Huxley Tyndall, Darwin and Spencer.

"On the witness stand, ye men of science, living and dead, answer these questions: Do you believe the Holy Scripture? Do you believe the Bible story of Adam and Eve, in the Garden of Eden? No. Do you believe the miracles of the old and new Testaments? No. Do you believe that Jesus Christ died to save the nations? No. Do you believe that human supplications directed heavenward makes any difference? No. Do you believe in the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost? No. And thus they answer all." Their writings all answer no as anyone can see by reading them.

"Now I put opposite them the Bible account, 'God said let us make man in our image,' 'male and female created he them.' 'He breathed into them the breath of life,' the whole story setting forth the idea that it was not a perfect kangaroo, nor a perfect orang outang, but a perfect man.

"The evolutionists account, away back in the ages there were four or five primal germs, or seminal spores from which all of the living creatures have been evolved. Go away back and there you will find a vegetable stuff that might be called a mushroom. The mushroom, by inate force developed a pollywog, the pollywog developed a fish, the fish developed a rep, the reptile developed into a quadruped, the quadruped developed into a baboon. The baboon developed into a man."

Read Darwin's Origin of Species to find out how this development was supposed to have taken place. Accept Darwin's Origin of Species, if you will, but acknowledge that you are an infidel. None of these so-called scientists were present at the creation; but God gave us the account through the hand of the prophet.

Agassiz, Hugh Miller, Farraday, Brewster, Dana, Dawson and hundreds of well-known scientists have rejected the evolution theory. Centuries ago, Lucretius in his poems extolled the doctrine of evolution. Instead of being a late discovery of science, it is an old heathen corpse, set up in a morgue. If this development at one time took place why did it stop with man. Why not take place at the present time? Every species remains distinct today and no species can be changed by breeding. They can be improved but not changed.

Evolution says "the horse came from the pliohippus, the pliohippus came from the protohippus, the protohippus came from the miohippus, the miohippus from the mesohinpus, the mesohipus from the orohippus, and so on away back in the line, until we come to the moneron, and this Huxley says "is of so low a form of life that the probability is that it just made itself, or was the result of spontaneous generation." What a narrow escape from the necessity of having a God. I could write a volume upon this subject.—INTERESTED.

THE "LAW'S" REFORMATION.

Chicago's latest crime outrage, resulting in the death of three men and the serious wounding of a fourth during a daring robbery of the fashionable Drake hotel, will not prove entirely in vain.

A shocked and sobered community began taking an inventory within a few hours after the spitting pistol fire had ceased.

Out of it has come a high resolve by the most prominent members of the legal profession in Chicago to cease lending their splendid talents to the freeing of habitual and notorious criminals. We are told in the news dispatches that the Chicago Bar association has decided to assist in cleansing the scrope largest city of this country of crime. To this end 400 lawyers, the flower of the legal profession of that community, have pledged themselves to aid the prosecution of those desperate bandit gangs, which have been making law a mockery.

Much has been written and much more has been spoken with reference to increasing crime in recent years. The American Bar association in the spirit of patriotism inaugurated special studies of the American constitution and sought to awaken the interest of the young men and the young women of this country in orderly processes. It did this because the records conclusively established the fact that present-day crime is largely traceable to immature young men and young women—that generation of boys and girls, who are just now coming into the bloom of manhood and of womanhood. In a thousand communities this national campaign for law and order was carried forward by the local members of the legal profession. It accomplished some good, but it did not strike at the heart of the crime problem in this country.

Law has fallen to low estate partially because of the practices of the legal profession. It is strange that the awakening to this fact should come in one of the largest cities of the world, whose citizens have become inured to that against which they have now rebelled.

The legal profession must make its choice.

Either criminal procedure must be greatly simplified by brushing aside its multitude of technicalities, which are the result of America's intense devotion to human freedom and individual rights, or the lawyers, who shape and mould the law of this country must impose certain restraints upon themselves.

A few weeks ago Clarence Darrow announced his retirement from criminal practice and in casual conversation told newspaper men he knew that he had secured the acquittal of men who he thought were guilty of crime, if not the specific offense charged. That was an amazing confession for Mr. Darrow to make. And yet most of the lawyers, who have enjoyed large and extensive practices, if entirely honest with themselves, would be forced to make a similar admission. They secured freedom for men charged with crime by taking advantage of the thick maze of legal defenses which have come with the development of law.

Too often the lawyer has forgotten his infinitely larger and greater responsibility which he owes the government in accepting the retainers of those accused of crime. He has seen only gold. And gradually there has developed in the legal profession the recognized belief that a lawyer should leave no stone unturned to free his client, no matter what facts are established by investigation. You hear reputable attorneys, at the head of their profession and occupying the places of pre-eminence in their communities, give voice to this sentiment. You hear them boldly and brazenly proclaim it. Law to them has become an abstract matter. If in criminal prosecutions, they are able to benefit through mistakes of the state's attorneys or to set traps themselves, they have been quick to take advantage of the opportunity. It is not a question of substantial justice. It is a battle of wits and brains—the one to fasten guilt upon the accused and the other to watch every possible loophole of escape.

The stakes of criminal operations have been enormously multiplied.

The riches to be secured through illegal and violent methods present a constant temptation to the young man of today. He has before him the grim philosophy that success is measured in dollars. It is the first evidence which greets his eyes in the morning. It is the last memory which he takes with him to his slumber.

And then he sees on every hand the evidence of the law's decay.

He finds the leading members of the legal profession putting forth herculean efforts to free desperate, lawless men. It is not surprising that so many young men are willing to take the chance.

The law's reformation must come from within. It must first take root among those who are closest to it. The legal profession of this country needs to take cognizance of that strange upheaval in Chicago It should take warning from the action of the Missouri State Bar association along similar lines. Civilization at best is only a thin veneer. The transition from the rule of the jungle to law and order, covering as it does several hundred bloody years of human progress, can be obliterated in the twinkling of an eye when faith is crushed. In some of the larger cities of this country crime is becoming so common that no sacrifice should be too great in order to restore reverence and love for law. The legal profession must take the lead even though it strikes at its pocketbook.

NEBRASKA'S "SURE CROP" BELT.

There appears to have been some inaccuracy in the recently published newspaper reports from Scottsbluff that a number of irrigation canals in that vicinity had had their supply of water cut off at the sources of intake along the North Platte river, just at the time when crops were most in need of moisture. In a letter to The Star from a resident of that place who appears to be well informed on the situation, assurance is given that the ditches there, which serve 350,000 acres of fine farming lands, are all carrying the normal amount of water and that crops are being taken care of in the usual way.

Although the amount of snowfall in the Wyoming mountain regions, where most of the water in the North Platte river comes from, was considerably below the average during the last winter season, and while the Pathfinder reservoir is not so full as it has been in past seasons, The Star's correspondent says there is sufficient water stored to mature all crops in the valley which are ordinarily dependent upon irrigation.

Furthermore, there have been some recent heavy rains which not only supplied moisture for the fields of grain, alfalfa and sugar beets, but also increased the flow of the river quite materially. It is predicted that crops in the whole region will be up to the usual standard in quantity and quality.

No one who has not visited the North Platte valley and seen for himself the wonderful system of irrigation ditches which cover the country on both sides of the river can realize the rich agricultural resources of that section. It is the one part of Nebraska which may truthfully be described as a "sure crop" territory. Whether rain comes or not, the farmers there do not have to worry. They know there will be water available for their fields when it is needed, and they can always depend on getting a bountiful harvest.

From ancient times the Nile valley in Egypt has been famous for its fertility because of the annual overflow of the stream which soaked the adjacent lands just before seeding time, and the crude pumps operated by human hands or by beasts which lifted water from the river during the dry season and sent it out over the thirsty soil. The North Platte valley in Nebraska has been made even more productive through the combination of good soil, abundant water supply, and plenty of sunshine.

Here in eastern Nebraska, where dry, hot weather sometimes deprives the farmers of the fruits of their toil, it is not difficult to realize the advantages of irrigation. The northwestern section of the state is to be congratulated on the more certain crop conditions prevailing there.

The twin cities of Scottsbluff and Gering enjoy a very favorable situation in the midst of the fine garden region along the North Platte river. They are making good growth as the country becomes more developed and settled, and it will not be many years until a large population center is established here, with a variety of industries to supplement the raising of crops.

ALONG OLD TRAILS.

Andrew Jensen, assistant historian of the Mormon church, is traveling from Nauvoo, Ill., to Salt Lake City. He is following a historic route—the same trail along which hundreds of followers of Brigham Young plodded slowly westward across a new country. Mr. Jensen is proceeding slowly and carefully across the country, tracing in the most exacting detail the exact route which the Mormons followed in their historic pilgrimage. He has been at it since early spring and it will require several more weeks before his work is finished. When he reaches Salt Lake City he will undertake the task of preparing an authentic history of the trail.

Mr. Jensen succeeded in locating the exact spot where Young and his associates crossed the Missouri river. It was at a bend in the stream, near the Sarpy nad Douglas county line, where the channel of the stream is comparatively narrow. Mandan park was located at the spot where they first set foot on Nebraska soil in 1846. The historian succeeded in locating the first camp of the Mormons and incidentally the first to be established in this state by Anglo-Saxons.

All of this trouble and effort and expense made appeal to many as an unnecessary waste. And yet there is something of importance to be gained from a contemplation of the facts which are brought to light. It affords a truer estimate of the courage and daring and hardihood of those who conquered the west. It gives those of us today a larger insight into the quality of manhood and womanhood which was represented in the pioneer bands. It furnishes a more accurate estimate of the progress of the years. Seventy-nine years have elapsed since the first camp was established in Nebraska. That is but slightly longer than the average lifetime. And yet in that time an unbroken waste has been peopled with more than a million contented men, women and children, flourishing cities have been built, thousands of farm homes have been established and all of the latest discoveries and inventions of science have been placed in the hands of thousands who live here. From the grey haze of the camp fires of Brigham Young to the present day is not a long stretch as years go. But what a transition it represents in the living conditions of men and women.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE'S REFUSAL.

Mrs. Robert La Follette has declined to become a candidate for the United States senate. Her refusal will prove a disappointment to ambitious women politicians, who saw an opportunity to secure a seat in the United States senate, but unquestionably it indicates her own personal desires.

Almost simultaneously with announcement from the widow that she will not seek the seat held by her late husband, her son indicated that he will be a candidate. Whether the son will benefit from the family name and the deep affection which Wisconsin entertained for Fighting Bob in the same degree which the mother most assuredly would is an open question.

The practice of approving the candidacies of widows has become very firmly established in this country. Wyoming selected a governor in this fashion. California, Illinois and Massachusetts elected widows to congress. Wisconsin would have undoubtedly followed suit because Mrs. La Follette has taken an unusually active interest in her husband's political fights covering over a quarter of a century and has been a devoted advocate of progressive principles.

Mrs. La Follette will devote herself to writing her husband's memoirs. It is a most happy choice. She is a strong and vigorous writer, and shared to an unusual degree a knowledge of political conditions during all of that period when her illustrious husband was in the national limelight.

A LESSON IN INTEREST.

It was not $2,000,000 that the city paid back, however, but $9,000,000, together with $50,000 in premiums.

Accrued interest on the old bond issue was paid back all at once and amounted to two and one-half times the amount of the original bonds. Thus the holder of a $20 bond received $70 in interest money besides the original capital. All had been arranged by Bernard Shields fifty years ago.

That original bond issue was to pay off an indebtedness of $2,000,000. This month the city of New Orleans had to pay five times the original amount to be free from debt. Also, it had been paying out smaller sums every year of the fifty.

Perhaps some of the American cities which are plunging deeper and deeper in debt would do well to remember this vivid illustration. It is almost as spectacular and far more useful than the annual festival of Mardi Gras held in the old southern city.

The fact that an even greater amount might have been earned by the city in fifty years had she taken her millions of dollars and put it at compound interest does not enter into the discussion. Cities do not do such things. The payments must be borne years later by a generation which had nothing to do with contracting the original debt.

Now, in addition to the hope that he may someday be president, Johnny has another wonderful possibility to consider. Some day he may be able to talk reasonantly through his teeth and become one of the world's most famous broadcasters.

"What," asks one of the reformers, "has taken the place of the petticoat?" It is always desirable to enlighten reformers, if possible, but we are compelled to give this one an evasive answer.

But who ever got the idea that a traffic cop is a part of our civil government?

The Newest Scandals---Moral and Illiterate

BY WILL ROGERS.

"I could tell by his looks in the pictures that President Coolidge hated that yachting cap."

Ye Olde Reliable Illiterate Digest this week is getting back to our old policy of printing, (not as the New York Times advertises.) "All the news thats fit to print" but all the news, for we believe the news that's not fit to print is what makes newspapers. There is only one newspaper that is run and still can operate on the nothing sensational basis, and that is the Christian Science Monitor. It's sold on the theory that everybody that takes the Monitor takes some other newspaper. So they get the news even if they don't get it out of the Monitor.

Mind you, don't gather from these remarks that we are a scandal sheet. There are certain things happening every day that are so bad we won't print them. But the reason we won't print them is because they have happened to the same people so much that it is of no news to the readers any more.

We want scandal but we want new scandal. The familiar faces who have been committing various forms of moral, political and social scandal are out of date with us. For instance, if Peggy Joyce picks up a wayward millionaire and, explaining coyly that no one has ever really understood her but him, herds him into a justice of the peace's office, why, that's not news. That's what we in editorial parlance call the inevitable.

If Charles Dawes, (vice-president) makes a speech ranting at the senate as "Moronville, why that's no news to the Illiterate Digest. But if he should ever make a speech and not condemn the senate, that would be news.

Our paper is not only glad to encourage new scandal, but we are in a position to even predict it before it happens. We prophesied some weeks ago that Mr. Coolidge would have a very unsatisfactory vacation. Why? Well, because we felt and knew that Mr. Coolidge didn't know what to do on a vacation. You can't learn anything the first time, I don't care how smart you are. It takes years to learn how to vacate properly.

You take a man that don't ride, hunt, fish, swim, golf, or play poker, and you just sit him down for the summer with nothing to do but have his picture taken, it gets pretty monotonous.

And that U Yachting cap! I could just tell by his looks in the pictures, that he hated it. It may have fitted perfectly from an inches standpoint but internally I could just tell it never felt right on his head. I know when he got on that cap and those white breeches, he felt like a mule pulling a hearse.

Of course, it pleased Mr. Stearns and that was compensation. Though a president having occupied your summer home don't hurt the value of it when it's sale is made. But no man should ever take a vacation that don't want one.

Our Foreign News department is able to report progress this week. We told you a few issues ago that China couldn't have a private civil war without outside nations taking a stack of chips. Well they are going further now. England, America and Japan, are drafting what is practically a new constitution for China. When they get through with it, they will send China a bill for it. China is the only nation in the world that never should have to worry. When anything comes up the other nations will always tell 'em what to do. China's own government is as unnecessary as an enforcement officer.

In the No. 2 war over in Morocco, France has just sent 200,000 more men (in keeping with the Versaille's treaty) for the extermination of small nations. Old Abdul Hel Krim is the Gerald Chapman of Africa. The French are hunting old Abdul with airships, but he can see an airship further than they can see him. Of course the French never thought of that. All he has to do is to hide under a camel, and they can't see from the airship what camel he's hiding under. France is really understudying for Spain in this war. Spain was in the original cast.

The foreign society news recorded in The Digest this week is the marriage of Major Metcalf and some Curzon Lady. This Metcalf was one of the Equerrys to the Prince of Wales, and from all my years of kidding fellows in speeches or from the stage this Metcalf is the only one I ever know of that I thought took any exception to any of the joshing.

I had a story I was telling on the stage about the time the Prince visited here, saying that I didn't have any Long Island Estate to offer him as a domicile, but that I could put a cot in my dressing room at the Follies. That used to get a laugh, and I would remark, "Well, that's no laughing matter. I bet you if the prince had his own way he would take my office in preference to theirs." Then I said, "But I wouldn't have room for his equerry. He would have to board his hired help out."

Well, the prince heard about this story and when I was making a speech before him at the big Polo dinner, why he pulled at my coat and asked me to tell it, showing he was a pretty good fellow. Well I did. It went great with the prince, and all the equerrys except this Metcalf. I have always felt that he didn't like it.

I was going right against an unwritten law; and that was that you must never tell a joke about a little fellow They can't stand it. But always tell it on the big fellows. That's why they are big. The prince I afterwards heard, always kidded him about being his hired help.

This Metcalf was a kind of a joke over here with all the Polo bunch anyway. But he has the last laugh on us all now as this is supposed to be the richest girl in all England. He will be big enough the next time I run on to him to be kidded. So here's wishing you good luck, "Fruity." (That's what the prince called him.)

We have had quite a few prominent visitors in to Ye Olde Illiterate Follies lately. Mr. Thomas A. Edison was in the other night to celebrate his birthday. He got, when I introduced him, the most wonderful reception ever had in our theatre. The people stood up and cheered him, and well they should have, especially on Broadway, because you take the lights out of this town and Claremore, Oklahoma, (the best town that ever owed a paving bill) would have it on New York.

He sent me word he enjoyed my act. He is deaf. So that is kind of a cock-eyed compliment. I was going to ask him some questions, (you know he is always making out questionaires.) Well he is a wonderful old man, and will be remembered as long as a phonograph squeaks.

PEACHES AND PERSIMMONS.

It is nice to see the refreshments coming at a party. You know you can go home in a little bit.

Not every people could make America's form of government work. Some people have cranky ideas about liberty.

Middle-age is the time when the average man is going to begin saving next month.

Man is lucky, at that. He doesn't think of a suit as "this horrid old thing" after wearing it four times.

Correct this sentence: "Excuse me for waking you so late at night," said he, "but I promised to pay you that ten today and almost forgot it."

ALL ABOARD FOR EUROPE!

Some Humble Advice to Travelers About the Ups and Downs of an Ocean Voyage.

"Round the purser are twenty people like yourself all trying to get at him."

The summer has been the time when all the people have been buying their tickets for a trip to Europe—thousands and thousands of them. They say that just fifty thousand people have been leaving on the steamers every week. It's been either fifty thousand or five hundred thousand or five thousand—I forget which. Anyway, there have been a great many people going.

Some of them have been going because they need a change of air; some to improve their minds; some because they were tired of making money, and others because they were tired of not making money. And some again were going to see Europe, before it all falls to pieces; and others were going just simply and plainly for a vacation because they wanted for a few weeks to be really happy.

It is especially for this last class that these few words of advice are written. If you want to be happy when you start off on a sea voyage you have got to be prepared to face a lot of disillusionment. You are going to find all through the trip the most striking difference between travel as it is pictured in the guide book and travel as it is in fact.

The Blather of the Book.

The difference begins at the very moment of embarkation. Here is what is said in the attractive steamship guide book—done up in colors with a picture of two girls walking on a promenade deck and swaying in the wind like rushes, while a young man goes past in flannels and a straw hat.

"What," asks the guide book, "is more delightful than the embarkation on an Atlantic steamer, its spotless decks, its commodious cabins, its luxurious saloon and its cozy library, thrill us with a sense of pleasure to come. As we stop on board and look about us at the dancing waters of the harbor ruffled under the breeze from the open sea beyond, we feel that now at least we are entering on the realization of our dreams."

Yes. Exactly. Only, unfortunately my dear reader, it is just at the very moment of embarkation that you are certain to discover that your black valise is missing. Your steamer trunk is there all right in your stateroom and the brown valise and the paper parcel that your aunt has asked you to deliver in Aberdeen when you land at Liverpool. But the black valise apparently is clean gone.

Ignorant Officialdom.

You certainly had it in the Pullman car and your sister remembers seeing it in the taxicab—but where is it? Talk about embarkation on the ruffled harbor and the unrealized dream! Who can think of these things with a valise missing and the huge whistle of the steamer booming out the time of departure?

No use asking that man in uniform; apparently he's only one of the officers. Don't try to fight your way up to the bridge and challenge the captain. He doesn't know. Round the purser there are twenty people in the same condition as yourself, over one thing or another, all trying to get at him and bite him. There seem to be lots of stewards running up and down, but all they can do is to ask you what number is your stateroom and say that the valise ought to be there. A conspiracy, evidently, the whole thing.

The result is that you are fussing up and down for a half an hour and when at last the valise is found (in the next stateroom, owing to the simple fact that you wrote the wrong number on it) you are already far out at sea and have never seen the embarkation at all.

What We Should Think of, and Do.

Never mind, there's lots of the trip left yet. After all, listen to what the guide book says about our first morning at sea—

There is an extraordinary exhilaration," it prattles on, "about the first day at sea. From the lofty deck of the great liner our eye sweeps the limitless expanse. All about is the blue of the Atlantic, ruffled with the zephyrs of a summer morning. We walk the deck with a sense of resilience, a fullness of life unknown to the dweller upon terra firma, or gazing in dreamy reverie at the eternal ocean."

Oh, we do, do we? But I guess not. On our first morning at sea we have too much else to think of, even in the calmest weather, than mere reverie on the ocean. What is troubling us, is the question of deck chairs—how do we get one?—are they free, or do we have to pay?—and if we pay now, do we have to pay to tip the man?—and which man is it that gives out our chairs?—and if we want to get our chairs next to Mr. Snyder from Pittsburgh, whom do we see about it?

Our Hot and Busy Morning.

There is room enough in this problem to keep us busy all morning; and even when we have got it straight, we start all over again with the question of what do we do to get the seat that we want at the table: We would like to get ourselves and Mr. Snyder and Mr and Mrs. Hopkins from Alberta, all at the same table. Somebody has said to somebody that there's a steward giving out seats or going to give out seats somewhere in one of the saloons or somewhere. That's enough for us. That keeps us hot and busy all morning.

And you will find, alas my dear reader, that no matter what the guide book says about it, that kind of worry is going to haunt you all the way. When you have quite done with the valises and the deck chairs and the seats at the table you still have plenty of other problems to fret over, such as—

The English customs. What do they do? Do they examine everything? Will they say anything about those canvas slippers that your aunt has asked you to deliver to her cousin in Nottingham (close to London)? If you explain that she made the slippers, does that make any difference? Or, at any rate, can you say to the man, "Oh very well, I'll send them back to America?" In short, the English customs—what do they do? Travelers lie awake at night and think of that.

Prodding the Purser.

And along with that—

At what hour will you land at Liverpool and will you be able to get the 11:30 train to London or will you have to wait for the 12:30? That's an excellent one. Many travelers have thought so hard about that and talked so much about it on deck, that they never even noticed the blue of the sea, and the rush of the flying fish or the great dolphin that flopped up beside the ship.

But even allowing that you can perhaps get a train—some train—from Liverpool, more intense worries set in as we near the other side.

The question of letters, telegrams and marconigrams. When the purser says that he has no messages for you and no letters for you, is he not perhaps getting your name wrong? He may have made a mistake. Might is not be better to go to him again (the fourth time) and ask him whether he got your name quite right? By all means, and let Mr. Snyder go, too, and you can both stand in line at the purser's window and fret it out together and thus never see the Norwegian sailing ship under full canvass two hundred yards away.

A Columbus or a Cabot?

But there is worse yet—

The ocean is crossed, the trials are over and the land is in sight. And again the little guide book breaks out in its ingenuous joy!

"Land in sight! With what a thrill we go forward to the front of the ship and look ahead to catch a glimpse of the white cliffs of old England rising from the sea. All the romance of history and of exploration rises of the old land. We stand gazing forward, as might have stood a Columbus or a Cabot filled with the mystery of the new land."

Do we? No, we don't. We've no time for it. As a matter of fact, we don't get any such first glimpse at all. We are down below, wrestling with the problem of how much we ought to tip the bath room steward. Is eight shillings what he gets, or is six enough? We feel we need information, light, knowledge. We must try to find Mr. Snyder and learn what he thinks the bath-room steward ought to get.

The Parable.

And then, somehow, before we knew it, and while we are still worrying an dfretting over stewards and tips and baggage, our voyage is all over—the time is gone—and we are saying good-bye to the passengers and Mr. Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins of Alberta, and the stewards and the purser—noble fellows they all seem, now. But we have a queer sense of loss and disillusionment as if our voyage had not yet begun, and a strange longing that we have it all over again and this time know enough not to spoil it with our poor meaningless worries

My friend, this is a parable. As is the Atlantic voyage, so is our little pilgrimage in life, a brief transit in the sunshine from shore to shore, whose short days are all too often marred by the mean disputes and the poor worries that in the end signify nothing. While there is still time, let us look about us to the horizon.

A Fourth Nomination.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 31.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: As one, who in three presidential campaigns supported W. J. Bryan, who has followed his leadership, who has believed in him, loved and trusted him, and who has noted his every utterance and public act from the time he emerged into public life in Nebraska, until he laid down his life for his faith in Tennessee, I want to challenge the truth of the story told by the newspaper reporter that Mr. Bryan had confided to him in New York that a fourth nomination would be agreeable to him; that in case of such an event, his first campaign speech would be made before an exclusive audience of millionaires in New York City.

Mr. Bryan's whole public career and every act of his life gives a lie to that statement.

Had he desired to make an alliance with organized wealth, he would have been made president of this country long ago. Wall street would have poured out her money like water, to place so brilliant a man in the president chair, to promote their interests.

While the democratic convention of 1908 was in session at Denver, Mr. Murphy, the big Tammany boss, went to Bryan's headquarters and requested a private interview; but C. W. Bryan, who knew his brother's mind better than any man living, only smiled and said: "Progressive democratis don't hold private interviews," and the big boss faded away.

At Baltimore, in 1912, Mr. Bryan, by one of the most daring resolutions ever offered in a presidential convention, compelled the convention to go on record as not desiring the support of organized wealth; and the representatives of this element were so dumbfounded that they voted for the resolution.

Does that look like soliciting the support of millionaires?

To invent and circulate such a falsehood, while a man is living, is bad enough; but to do so after he is dead, merits the contempt of all decent people.

The many friends of Mr. Bryan are pleased to know that the Methodists are planning to make the new hospital a memorial to him. This will be a gracious act on their part and will bring to the support of the enterprise, the friends of Mr. Bryan without regard to religious or political affiliations.

REGARDING MIRACLES.

HUBBELL, Neb., July 30—To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I note in your editorial of July 24, what you say about Darrow not sparing our old friend Bryan, and how pitiful it was. I get it that Jesus, himself, believed that the whale swallowed Jonah, because He said "as Jonah was three days and nights in the whale's belly, so must the son of man get three days and nights in the heart of the earth. Matth. 12:14.

Is it more pitiful to believe that Christ was in the tomb, and was resurrected the third day, any more than for Jonah to be kept alive in the whale's belly?

Is it pitiful to believe in Noah's flood as the author of Christianity did, and is recorded in Luke 27-30, where it speaks about men acting worse than monkeys, by eating and drinking, marrying wives (meaning more than one) and knew nothing else until the flood came and destroyed them all? Bryan probably believes, also, in the destruction of Sodom and Gomorah, where the Lord, after taking lunch with Abraham, and joked with Abrahams wife destroyed more soil between daylight and sun-up, than the U. S. government could handle in digging about two score Panama canals, in order to rescue Mr. Lot and his two daughters. Mrs Lot was probably like a lot of those people who come from Missouri, and had to be shown.

Is it pitiful to believe that Joshua commanded the sun to stand still, which according to science is the source of power for our solar system? Would not this have some effect upon the revolution of our earth by slowing down gradually, so that Joshua could win the battle before dark? This would be nothing at all in comparison to one recorded in Second Kings, 20; 9-11 versus, where we have evidence that the earths' revolution was reversed ten degrees in order to convince an Agnostic that his day would be lengthened 15 years. It was optional as recorded in the ninth verse, whether the earth would be speeded up or retarded. Mr. Hezekiah was wise that it would be easier to speed it up, than to stop it and reverse, and then probably he insisted on God doing the thing without touching his hands on the sun dial of Ahaz.

Then the proposition about their being evenings and morning before the creation of light. Thos. A. Edison, in the invention of the phonograph used the principal—that if a heavy tree should crash in the forest, there would be no sound the human ear was not in recording distance. This is illusive but this is the principal that makes the phonograph talk, and so it was at creation.

God being a consuming fire, and dwelling in light that man cannot see or approach unto, could easily measure the revolution of the earth by an evening and morning. A great miracle was in vogue when Christ was crucified on the cross, and nature respected her God by refusing to look upon the scene. I wonder if the scientists and evolutionists have ever figured out how much water it would take to cool the sun off for several hours. It probably would be of benefit to Nebraska corn.

W. C. LAMB.

If He Is Innocent,

HASTINGS, Neb., July 31

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: How proudly the state of Nebraska has always held her head among the great sisterhoods: "Equality Before the Law." Is that not her slogan? If our seal means anything, the Simmons case should mean a great deal.

Surely, we are not going to send this poor youth "dull cold marble" to the "undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns" when there is serious doubt as to his guilt.

We know that Simmons would not be permitted to die, were he wealthy? Is a youths life the penalty for "chill penury" in this old state? If it is we should all retire to Julesburg, Council Bluffs, Yankton or Belleville to spend that dark marrow-shaking day.

Is circumstantial evidence the dynamo invoked only for the poor? Oh, Nebraska, glad with the laugh of its smiling children, true blue with the strength of its storng, virile men, pure with the goodness of its splendid women, happy with the loveliness of its youths and wealth, the most glorious star in the constellation, going to kick and beat and push a youth "down Atlantic glooms" into eternity? Could any of us ever forget the cry of that boy as he goes down that dark, dark, hall to the chair. Oh, God, what if he is innocent! "The rest is silence."

THE "LAW'S" REFORMATION.

Chicago's latest crime outrage, resulting in the death of three men and the serious wounding of a fourth during a daring robbery of the fashionable Drake hotel, will not prove entirely in vain.

A shocked and sobered community began taking an inventory within a few hours after the spitting pistol fire had ceased.

Out of it has come a high resolve by the most prominent members of the legal profession in Chicago to cease lending their splendid talents to the freeing of habitual and notorious criminals. We are told in the news dispatches that the Chicago Bar association has decided to assist in cleansing the second largest city of this country of crime. To this end 400 lawyers, the flower of the legal profession of that community, have pledged themselves to aid the prosecution of those desperate bandit gangs which have been making law a mockery.

Much has been written and much more has been spoken with reference to increasing crime in recent years. The American Bar association in the spirit of patriotism inaugurated special studies of the American constitution and sought to awaken the interest of the young men and the young women of this country in orderly processes. It did this because the records conclusively established the fact that present-day crime is largely traceable to immature young men and young women—that generation of boys and girls, who are just now coming into the bloom of manhood and of womanhood. In a thousand communities this national campaign for law and order was carried forward by the local members of the legal profession. It accomplished some good, but it did not strike at the heart of the crime problem in this country.

* * *

Law has fallen to low estate partially because of the practices of the legal profession. It is strange that the awakening to this fact should come in one of the largest cities of the world, whose citizens have become inured to that against which they have now rebelled.

The legal profession must make its choice.

Either criminal procedure must be greatly simplified by brushing aside its multitude of technicalities, which are the result of America's intense devotion to human freedom and individual rights, or the lawyers, who shape and mould the law of this country must impose certain restraints upon themselves.

A few weeks ago Clarence Darrow announced his retirement from criminal practice and in casual conversation told newspaper men he knew that he had secured the acquittal of men who he thought were guilty of crime, if not the specific offense charged. That was an amazing confession for Mr. Darrow to make. And yet most of the lawyers, who have enjoyed large and extensive practices, if entirely honest with themselves, would be forced to make a similar admission. They secured freedom for men charged with crime by taking advantage of the thick maze of legal defenses which have come with the development of law.

Too often the lawyer has forgotten his infinitely larger and greater responsibility which he owes the government in accepting the retainers of those accused of crime. He has seen only gold. And gradually there has developed in the legal profession the recognized belief that a lawyer should leave no stone unturned to free his client, no matter what facts are established by investigation. You hear reputable attorneys, at the head of their profession and occupying the places of pre-eminence in their communities, give voice to this sentiment. You hear them boldly and brazenly proclaim it. Law to them has become an abstract matter. If in criminal prosecutions, they are able to benefit through mistakes of the state's attorneys or to set traps themselves, they have been quick to take advantage of the opportunity. It is not a question of substantial justice. It is a battle of wits and brains—the one to fasten guilt upon the accused and the other to watch every possible loophole of escape.

The stakes of criminal operations have been enormously multiplied.

The riches to be secured through illegal and violent methods present a constant temptation to the young man of today. He has before him the grim philosophy that success is measured in dollars. It is the first evidence which greets his eyes in the morning. It is the last memory which he takes with him to his slumber.

And then he sees on every hand the evidence of the law's decay.

He finds the leading members of the legal profession putting forth herculean efforts to free desperate, lawless men. It is not surprising that so many young men are willing to take the chance.

The law's reformation must come from within. It must first take root among those who are closest to it. The legal profession of this country needs to take cognizance of that strange upheaval in Chicago. It should take warning from the action of the Missouri State Bar association along similar lines. Civilization at best is only a thin veneer. The transition from the rule of the jungle to law and order, covering as it does several hundred bloody years of human progress, can be obliterated in the twinkling of an eye when faith is crushed. In some of the larger cities of this country crime is becoming so common that no sacrifice should be too great in order to restore reverence and love for law. The legal profession must take the lead even though it strikes at its pocketbook.

NEBRASKA'S "SURE CROP" BELT.

There appears to have been some inaccuracy in the recently published newspaper reports from Scottsbluff that a number of irrigation canals in that vicinity had had their supply of water cut off at the sources of intake along the North Platte river, just at the time when crops were most in need of moisture. In a letter to The Star from a resident of that place who appears to be well informed on the situation, assurance is given that the ditches there, which serve 350,000 acres of fine farming lands, are all carrying the normal amount of water and that crops are being taken care of in the usual way.

Although the amount of snowfall in the Wyoming mountain regions, where most of the water in the North Platte river comes from, was considerably below the average during the last winter season, and while the Pathfinder reservoir is not so full as it has been in past seasons, The Star's correspondent says there is sufficient water stored to mature all crops in the valley which are ordinarily dependent upon irrigation.

Furthermore, there have been some recent heavy rains which not only supplied moisture for the fields of grain, alfalfa and sugar beets, but also increased the flow of the river quite materially. It is predicted that crops in the whole region will be up to the usual standard in quantity and quality.

No one who has not visited the North Platte valley and seen for himself the wonderful system of irrigation ditches which cover the country on both sides of the river can realize the rich agricultural resources of that section. It is the one part of Nebraska which may truthfully be described as a "sure crop" territory. Whether rain comes or not, the farmers there do not have to worry. They know there will be water available for their fields when it is needed, and they can always depend on getting a bountiful harvest.

From ancient times the Nile valley in Egypt has been famous for its fertility because of the annual overflow of the stream which soaked the adjacent lands just before seeding time, and the crude pumps operated by human hands or by beasts which lifted water from the river during the dry season and sent it out over the thirsty soil. The North Platte valley in Nebraska has been made even more productive through the combination of good soil, abundant water supply, and plenty of sunshine.

Here in eastern Nebraska, where dry, hot weather sometimes deprives the farmers of the fruits of their toil, it is not difficult to realize the advantages of irrigation. The northwestern section of the state is to be congratulated on the more certain crop conditions prevailing there.

The twin cities of Scottsbluff and Gering enjoy a very favorable situation in the midst of the fine garden region along the North Platte river. They are making good growth as the country becomes more developed and settled, and it will not be many years until a large population center is established here, with a variety of industries to supplement the raising of crops.

ALONG OLD TRAILS.

Andrew Jensen, assistant historian of the Mormon church, is traveling from Nauvoo, Ill., to Salt Lake City. He is following a historic route—the same trail along which hundreds of followers of Brigham Young plodded slowly westward across a new country. Mr. Jensen is proceeding slowly and carefully across the country, tracing in the most exacting detail the exact route which the Mormons followed in their historic pilgrimage. He has been at it since early spring and it will require several more weeks before his work is finished. When he reaches Salt Lake City he will undertake the task of preparing an authentic history of the trail.

Mr. Jensen succeeded in locating the exact spot where Young and his associates crossed the Missouri river. It was at a bend in the stream, near the Sarpy nad Douglas county line, where the channel of the stream is comparatively narrow. Mandan park was located at the spot where they first set foot on Nebraska soil in 1846. The historian succeeded in locating the first camp of the Mormons and incidentally the first to be established in this state by Anglo-Saxons.

All of this trouble and effort and expense made appeal to many as an unnecessary waste. And yet there is something of importance to be gained from a contemplation of the facts which are brought to light. It affords a truer estimate of the courage and daring and hardihood of those who conquered the west. It gives those of us today a larger insight into the quality of manhood and womanhood which was represented in the pioneer bands. It furnishes a more accurate estimate of the progress of the years. Seventy-nine years have elapsed since the first camp was established in Nebraska. That is but slightly longer than the average lifetime. And yet in that time an unbroken waste has been peopled with more than a million contented men, women and children, flourishing cities have been built, thousands of farm homes have been established and all of the latest discoveries and inventions of science have been placed in the hands of thousands who live here. From the grey haze of the camp fires of Brigham Young to the present day is not a long stretch as years go. But what a transition it represents in the living conditions of men and women.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE'S REFUSAL.

Mrs. Robert La Follette has declined to become a candidate for the United States senate. Her refusal will prove a disappointment to ambitious women politicians, who saw an opportunity to secure a seat in the United States senate, but unquestionably it indicates her own personal desires.

Almost simultaneously with announcement from the widow that she will not seek the seat held by her late husband, her son indicated that he will be a candidate. Whether the son will benefit from the family name and the deep affection which Wisconsin entertained for Fighting Bob in the same degree which the mother most assuredly would is an open question.

The practice of approving the candidacies of widows has become very firmly established in this country. Wyoming selected a governor in this fashion. California, Illinois and Massachusetts elected widows to congress. Wisconsin would have undoubtedly followed suit because Mrs. La Follette has taken an unusually active interest in her husband's political fights covering over a quarter of a century and has been a devoted advocate of progressive principles.

Mrs. La Follette will devote herself to writing her husband's memoirs. It is a most happy choice. She is a strong and vigorous writer, and shared to an unusual degree a knowledge of political conditions during all of that period when her illustrious husband was in the national limelight.

A LESSON IN INTEREST.

It was not $2,000,000 that the city paid back, however, but $3,000,000, together with $50,000 in premiums.

Accrued interest on the old bond issue was paid back all at once and amounted to two and one-half times the amount of the original bonds. Thus the holder of a $20 bond received $70 in interest money besides the original capital. All had been arranged by Bernard Shields fifty years ago.

That original bond issue was to pay off an indebtedness of $2,000,000. This month the city of New Orleans had to pay five times the original amount to be free from debt. Also, it had been paying out smaller sums every year of the fifty.

Perhaps some of the American cities which are plunging deeper and deeper in debt would do well to remember this vivid illustration. It is almost as spectacular and far more useful than the annual festival of Mardi Gras held in the old southern city.

The fact that an even greater amount might have been earned by the city in fifty years had she taken her millions of dollars and put it at compound interest does not enter into the discussion. Cities do not do such things. The payments must be borne years later by a generation which had nothing to do with contracting the original debt.

Now, in addition to the hope that he may someday be president, Johnny has another wonderful possibility to consider. Some day he may be able to talk reasonantly through his teeth and become one of the world's most famous broadcasters.

"What," asks one of the reformers, "has taken the place of the petticoat?" It is always desirable to enlighten reformers, if possible, but we are compelled to give this one an evasive answer.

But who ever got the idea that a traffic cop is a part of our civil government?

Ye Olde Reliable Illitgrate Digest this week is getting back to our old policy of printing, (not as the New York Times advertises.) "All the news thats fit to print" but all the news, for we believe the news that's not fit to print is what makes newspapers. There is only one newspaper that is run and still can operate on the nothing sensational basis, and that is the Christian Science Monitor. It's sold on the theory that everybody that takes the Monitor takes some other newspaper. So they get the news even if they don't get it out of the Monitor.

Mind you, don't gather from these remarks that we are a scandal sheet. There are certain things happening every day that are so bad we won't print them. But the reason we won't print them is because they have happened to the same people so much that it is of no news to the readers any more.

We want scandal but we want new scandal. The familiar faces who have been committing various forms of moral, political and social scandal are out of date with us. For instance, if Peggy Joyce picks up a wayward millionaire and, explaining coyly that no one has ever really understood her but him, herds him into a justice of the peace's office, why, that's not news. That's what we in editorial parlance call the inevitable.

If Charles Dawes, (vice-president) makes a speech ranting at the senate as Moronville, why that's no news to the Illiterate Digest. But if he should ever make a speech and not condemn the senate, that would be news.

Our paper is not only glad to encourage new scandal, but we are in a position to even predict it before it happens. We prophesied some weeks ago that Mr. Coolidge would have a very unsatisfactory vacation. Why? Well, because we felt and knew that Mr. Coolidge didn't know what to do on a vacation. You can't learn anything the first time, I don't care how smart you are. It takes years to learn how to vacate properly.

You take a man that don't ride, hunt, fish, swim, golf, or play poker, and you just sit him down for the summer with nothing to do but have his picture taken, it gets pretty monotonous.

And that U Yachting cap! I could just tell by his looks in the pictures, that he hated it. It may have fitted perfectly from an inches standpoint but internally I could just tell it never felt right on his head. I know when he got on that cap and those white breeches, he felt like a mule pulling a hearse.

Of course, it pleased Mr. Stearns and that was compensation. Though a president having occupied your summer home don't hurt the value of it when it's sale is made. But no man should ever take a vacation that don't want one.

Our Foreign News department is able to report progress this week. We told you a few issues ago that China couldn't have a private civil war without outside nations taking a stack of chips. Well they are going further now. England, America and Japan, are drafting what is practically a new constitution for China. When they get through with it, they will send China a bill for it. China is the only nation in the world that never should have to worry. When anything comes up the other nations will always tell 'em what to do. China's own government is as unnecessary as an enforcement officer.

In the No. 2 war over in Morocco, France has just sent 200,000 more men (in keeping with the Versaille's treaty) for the extermination of small nations. Old Abdul Hel Krim is the Gerald Chapman of Africa. The French are hunting old Abdul with airships, but he can see an airship further than they can see him. Of course the French never thought of that. All he has to do is to hide under a camel, and they can's see from the airship what camel he's hiding under. France is really understudying for Spain in this war. Spain was in the original cast.

The foreign society news recorded in The Digest this week is the marriage of Major Metcalf and some Curzon Lady. This Metcalf was one of the Equerrys to the Prince of Wales, and from all my years of kidding fellows in speeches or from the stage this Metcalf is the only one I ever know of that I thought took any exception to any of the joshing.

I had a story I was telling on the stage about the time the Prince visited here, saying that I didn't have any Long Island Estate to offer him as a domicile, but that I could put a cot in my dressing room at the Follies. That used to get a laugh, and I would remark, "Well, that's no laughing matter. I bet you if the prince had his own way he would take my offer in preference to theirs." Then I said, "But I wouldn't have room for his equerry. He would have to board his hired help out."

Well, the prince heard about this story and when I was making a speech before him at the big Polo dinner, why he pulled at my coat and asked me to tell it, showing he was a pretty good fellow. Well I did. It went great with the prince, and all the equerrys except this Metcalf. I have always felt that he didn't like it.

I was going right against an unwritten law; and that was that you must never tell a joke about a little fellow. They can't stand it. But always tell it on the big fellows. That's why they are big. The prince I afterwards heard, always kidded him about being his hired help.

This Metcalf was a kind of a joke over here with all the Polo bunch anyway. But he has the last laugh on us all now as this is supposed to be the richest girl in all England. He will be big enough the next time I run on to him to be kidded. So here's wishing you good luck, "Fruity." (That's what the prince called him.)

We have had quite a few prominent visitors in to Ye Olde Illiterate Follies lately. Mr. Thomas A. Edison was in the other night to celebrate his birthday. He got, when I introduced him, the most wonderful reception ever had in our theatre. The people stood up and cheered him, and well they should have, especially on Broadway, because you take the lights out of this town and Claremore, Oklahoma, (the best town that ever owed a paving bill) would have it on New York.

He sent me word he enjoyed my act. He is deaf! So that is kind of a cock-eyed compliment. I was going to ask him some questions, (you know he is always making out questionaires.) Well he is a wonderful old man, and will be remembered as long as a phonograph squeaks.

PEACHES AND PERSIMMONS.

It is nice to see the refreshments coming at a party. You know you can go home in a little bit.

Not every people could make America's form of government work. Some people have cranky ideas about liberty.

Middle-age is the time when the average man is going to begin saving next month.

Man is lucky, at that. He doesn't think of a suit as "this horrid old thing" after wearing it four times.

Correct this sentence: "Excuse me for waking you so late at night," said he, "but I promised to pay you that ten today and almost forgot it."

ALL ABOARD FOR EUROPE!

Some Humble Advice to Travelers About the Ups and Downs of an Ocean Voyage.

"Round the purser are twenty people like yourself all trying to get at him."

The summer has been the time when all the people have been buying their tickets for a trip to Europe—thousands and thousands of them. They say that just fifty thousand people have been leaving on the steamers every week. It's been either fifty thousand or five hundred thousand or five thousand—I forget which. Anyway, there have been a great many people going.

Some of them have been going because they need a change of air; some to improve their minds; some because they were tired of making money, and others because they were tired of not making money. And some again were going to see Europe, before it all falls to pieces; and others were going just simply and plainly for a vacation because they wanted for a few weeks to be really happy.

It is especially for this last class that these few words of advice are written. If you want to be happy when you start off on a sea voyage you have got to be prepared to face a lot of disillusionment. You are going to find all through the trip the most striking difference between travel as it is pictured in the guide book and travel as it is in fact.

The Blather of the Book.

The difference begins at the very moment of embarkation. Here is what is said in the attractive steamship guide book—done up in colors with a picture of two girls walking on a promenade deck and swaying in the wind like rushes, while a young man goes past in flannels and a straw hat.

"What," asks the guide book, "is more delightful than the embarkation on an Atlantic steamer, its spotless decks, its commodious cabins, its luxurious saloon and its cozy library, thrill us with a sense of pleasure to come. As we stop on board and look about us at the dancing waters of the harbor ruffled under the breeze from the open sea beyond, we feel that now at least we are entering on the realization of our dreams."

Yes. Exactly. Only, unfortunately my dear reader, it is just at the very moment of embarkation that you are certain to discover that your black valise is missing. Your steamer trunk is there all right in your stateroom and the brown valise and the paper parcel that your aunt has asked you to deliver in Aberdeen when you land at Liverpool. But the black valise apparently is clean gone.

Ignorant Officialdom.

You certainly had it in the Pullman car and your sister remembers seeing it in the taxicab—but where is it? Talk about embarkation on the ruffled harbor and the unrealized dream! Who can think of these things with a valise missing and the huge whistle of the steamer booming out the time of departure?

No use asking that man in uniform; apparently he's only one of the officers. Don't try to fight your way up to the bridge and challenge the captain. He doesn't know. Round the purser there are twenty people in the same condition as yourself, over one thing or another, all trying to get at him and bite him. There seem to be lots of stewards running up and down, but all they can do is to ask you what number is your stateroom and say that the valise ought to be there. A conspiracy, evidently, the whole thing.

The result is that you are fussing up and down for a half an hour and when at last the valise is found (in the next stateroom, owing to the simple fact that you wrote the wrong number on it) you are already far out at sea and have never seen the embarkation at all.

What We Should Think of, and Do.

Never mind, there's lots of the trip left yet. After all, listen to what the guide book says about our first morning at sea—

There is an extraordinary exhilaration," it prattles on, "about the first day at sea. From the lofty deck of the great liner our eye sweeps the limitless expanse. All about is the blue of the Atlantic, ruffled with the zephyrs of a summer morning. We walk the deck with a sense of resilience, a fullness of life unknown to the dweller upon terra firma, or gazing in dreamy reverie at the eternal ocean."

Oh, we do, do we? But I guess not. On our first morning at sea we have too much else to think of, even in the calmest weather, than mere reverie on the ocean. What is troubling us, is the question of deck chairs—how do we get one?—are they free, or do we have to pay?—and if we pay now, do we have to pay to tip the man?—and which man is it that gives out our chairs?—and if we want to get our chairs next to Mr. Snyder from Pittsburgh, whom do we see about it?

Our Hot and Busy Morning.

There is room enough in this problem to keep us busy all morning; and even when we have got it straight, we start all over again with the question of what do we do to get the seat that we want at the table. We would like to get ourselves and Mr. Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins from Alberta all at the same table. Somebody has said to somebody that there's a steward giving out seats or going to give out seats somewhere in one of the saloons or somewhere. That's enough for us. That keeps us hot and busy all morning.

And you will find, alas my dear reader, that no matter what the guide book says about it, that kind of worry is going to haunt you all the way. When you have quite done with the valises and the deck chairs and the seats at the table you still have plenty of other problems to fret over, such as.—

The English customs. What do they do? Do they examine everything? Will they say anything about those canvas slippers that your aunt has asked you to deliver to her cousin in Nottingham (close to London)? If you explain that she made the slippers, does that make any difference? Or, at any rate, can you say to the man, "Oh very well, I'll send them back to America?" In short, the English customs—what do they do? Travelers lie awake at night and think of that.

Prodding the Purser.

And along with that—

At what hour will you land at Liverpool and will you be able to get the 11:30 train to London or will you have to wait for the 12:30? That's an excellent one. Many travelers have thought so hard about that and talked so much about it on deck, that they never even noticed the blue of the sea, and the rush of the flying fish or the great dolphin that flopped up beside the ship.

But even allowing that you can perhaps get a train—some train—from Liverpool, more intense worries set in as we near the other side.

The question of letters, telegrams and marconigrams. When the purser says that he has no messages for you and no letters for you, is he not perhaps getting your name wrong? He may have made a mistake. Might is not be better to go to him again (the fourth time) and ask him whether he got your name quite right? By all means, and let Mr. Snyder go, too, and you can both stand in line at the purser's window and fret it out together and thus never see the Norwegian sailing ship under full canvass two hundred yards away.

A Columbus or a Cabot?

But there is worse yet—

The ocean is crossed, the trials are over and the land is in sight. And again the little guide book breaks out in its ingenuous joy!

"Land in sight! With what a thrill we go forward to the front of the ship and look ahead to catch a glimpse of the white cliffs of old England rising from the sea. All the romance of history and of exploration rises of the old land. We stand gazing forward, as might have stood a Columbus or a Cabot filled with the mystery of the new land."

Do we? No, we don't. We've no time for it. As a matter of fact, we don't get any such first glimpse at all. We are down below, wrestling with the problem of how much we ought to tip the bath room steward. Is eight shillings what he gets, or is six enough? We feel we need information, light, knowledge. We must try to find Mr. Snyder and learn what he thinks the bath-room steward ought to get.

The Parable.

And then, somehow, before we knew it, and while we are still worrying an dfretting over stewards and tips and baggage, our voyage is all over—the time is gone—and we are saying good-bye to the passengers and Mr. Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins of Alberta, and the stewards and the purser—noble fellows they all seem, now. But we have a queer sense of loss and disillusionment as if our voyage had not yet begun, and a strange longing that we have it all over again and this time know enough not to spoil it with our poor meaningless worries.

My friend, this is a parable. As is the Atlantic voyage, so is our little pilgrimage in life, a brief transit in the sunshine from shore to shore, whose short days are all too often marred by the mean disputes and the poor worries that in the end signify nothing. While there is still time, let us look about us to the horizon.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

A Fourth Nomination.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 31.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: As one, who in three presidential campaigns supported W. J. Bryan, who has followed his leadership, who has believed in him, loved and trusted him, and who has noted his every utterance and public act from the time he emerged into public life in Nebraska, until he laid down his life for his faith in Tennessee, I want to challenge the truth of the story told by the newspaper reporter that Mr. Bryan had confided to him in New York that a fourth nomination would be agreeable to him; that in case of such an event, his first campaign speech would be made before an exclusive audience of millionaires in New York City.

Mr. Bryan's whole public career and every act of his life gives a lie to that statement.

Had he desired to make an alliance with organized wealth, he would have been made president of this country long ago. Wall street would have poured out her money like water, to place so brilliant a man in the president chair, to promote their interests.

While the democratic convention of 1908 was in session at Denver, Mr. Murphy, the big Tammany boss, went to Bryan's headquarters and requested a private interview; but C. W. Bryan, who knew his brother's mind better than any man living, only smiled and said: "Progressive democratis don't hold private interviews," and the big boss faded away.

At Baltimore, in 1912, Mr. Bryan, by one of the most daring resolutions ever offered in a presidential convention, compelled the convention to go on record as not desiring the support of organized wealth: and the representatives of this element were so dumbfounded that they voted for the resolution.

Does that look like soliciting the support of millionaires?

To invent and circulate such a falsehood, while a man is living, is bad enough; but to do so after he is dead, merits the contempt of all decent people.

The many friends of Mr. Bryan are pleased to know that the Methodists are planning to make the new hospital a memorial to him. This will be a gracious act on their part and will bring to the support of the enterprise, the friends of Mr. Bryan without regard to religious or political affiliations.

A. H. BROOKS.

REGARDING MIRACLES.

HUBBELL, Neb., July 30.—To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I note in your editorial of July 24, what you say about Darrow not sparing our old friend Bryan, and how pitiful it was. I get it that Jesus, himself, believed that the whale swallowed Jonah, because He said "as Jonah was three days and nights in the whale's belly, so must the son of man get three days and nights in the heart of the earth. Matth. 12:14.

Is it more pitiful to believe that Christ was in the tomb, and was resurrected the third day, any more than for Jonah to be kept alive in the whale's belly?

Is it pitiful to believe in Noah's flood as the author of Christianity did, and is recorded in Luke 27-30, where it speaks about men acting worse than monkeys, by eating and drinking, marrying wives (meaning more than one) and knew nothing else until the flood came and destroyed them all? Bryan probably believes, also, in the destruction of Sodom and Gomorah, where the Lord, after taking lunch with Abraham, and joked with Abraham's wife destroyed more soil between daylight and sun-up, than the U. S. government could handle in digging about two score Panama canals, in order to rescue Mr. Lot and his two daghters. Mrs. Lot was probably like a lot of those people who come from Missouri, and had to be shown.

Is it pitiful to believe that Joshua commanded the sun to stand still, which according to science is the source of power for our solar system? Would not this have some effect upon the revolution of our earth by slowing down gradually, so that Joshua could win the battle before dark? This would be nothing at all in comparison to one recorded in Second Kings, 20; 9-11 versus, where we have evidence that the earths' revolution was reversed ten degrees iin order to convince an Agnostic that his day would be lengthened 15 years. It was optional as recorded in the ninth verse, whether the earth would be speeded up or retarded. Mr. Hezekiah was wise that it would be easier to speed it up, than to stop it and reverse, and then probably he insisted on God doing the thing without touching his hands on the sun dial of Ahaz.

Then the proposition about their being evenings and morning before the creation of light. Thos. A. Edison, in the invention of the phonograph used the principal—that if a heavy tree should crash in the forest, there would be no sound in the human ear was not in recording distance. This is illusive but this is the principal that makes the phonograph talk, and so it was at creation.

God being a consuming fire, and dwelling in light that man cannot see or approach unto, could easily measure the revolution of the earth by an evening and moring. A great miracle was in vogue when Christ was crucified on the cross, and nature respected her God by refusing to look upon the scene. I wonder if the scientists and evolutionists have ever figured out how much water it would take to cool the sun off for several hours. It probably would be of benefit to Nebraska corn.

W. C. LAMB.

If He Is Innocent.

HASTINGS, Neb., July 31.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: How proudly the state of Nebraska has always held her head among the great sisterhoods; "Equality Before the Law." Is that not her slogan? If our seal means anything, the Simmons case should mean a great deal.

Surely, we are not going to send this poor youth "dull cold marble" to the "undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns" when there is serious doubt as to his guilt.

We know that Simmons would not be permitted to die, were he wealthy? Is a youths life the penalty for "chill penury" in this old state? If it is we should all retire to Julesburg, Council Bluffs, Yankton or Belleville to spend that dark marrow-shaking day.

Is circumstantial evidence the dynamo invoked only for the poor? Oh, Nebraska, glad with the laugh of its smiling children, true blue with the strength of its storng, virile men, pure with the goodness of its splendid women, happy with the loveliness of its youths and wealth, the most glorious star in the constellation, going to kick and beat and push a youth "down tlantic glooms" into eternity? Could any of us ever forget the cry of that boy as he goes down that dark, dark, hall to the chair. Oh, God, what if he is innocent! "The rest is silence."

F. X. O'BRIEN.

BIRD GARDEN AT ST. EDWARD

Mr Anderson believes in fostering an independent spirit among his guests so he does not do everything possible for them but he puts some of the food materials in the garden and invites his guests to prepare their own menus He has plants shrubs trees and flowers for bird food including among other things dogwood elderberry choke cherry, sumac and columbine

Mr Anderson's bird garden sounds like the outline of work for a city planning commission with the difference that the city is built and not merely contemplated

The garden contains four flicker homes which are also used bby the red headed woodpecker screech owls and sparrow hawks and two blue bird homes also occupied by the hairy woodpecker The three chickadee homes are open to the nuthatches titmouse and downey woodpecker

The martins who are ever partment dwellers have an eight compartment home the robins three dwellings the wrens six homes of which one is a four compartment residence All the home are cleaned each spring and fall and a handful of sawdust placed on the floor of each one

House construction for birdland is a delicate job, for many elements must be taken into nsideration Birds do not normally live in constructed shelters and when they do, it is wise to have the artificial conditions approximate the natural environment in so far as possible

The building, the size and shape of the entrance must be considered, as well as the diameter of the cavity and moist cool conditions must be obtained If the cavity is too shallow the birdlings will try their wings too soon or will fall out of the home nest with most disastrous result if it is to deep the young will never be able to leave home in time to learn of the value of wings An even degree of temperature insures perfect incubation of the eggs and eliminate any possibilits of the young birds being overcome by heat

Feathering the nest at St Edward is a joy and pleasure No long hours in hunting about for stray threads and twigs and straws You walk right up—or fly possibly—and take your choice Mr Anderson has put up 4 feeding meter st tions supplying the birds with proper material for those that build in home as well as those that buiud their nests in trees and shrubs tree homes are not discouraged These stores contain horsehair, lichen wood, rope fibre, and moss

BLUES ENDORSED.

At the polo club at Bagatelle it was observed that French women endorsed the shades of blues mainly Hyacinth hydrangea Pervenche turquoise and a pale gray blue cornflower and bleu de drapeau were all seen in profusion Mauves and wisteria shades were also popular and pale pink pale bois de rose and other pastel tints a good deal of gray and some beige tones were among other colors worn

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I have been wanting for a long time to write and ask about some things I have wondered about, but have watched 'The Mail' hoping some other fan would ask for questions and as they haven't and there has been a call for 'Dinty,' here I am

I am wondering how P B X knows I am "she' and sure want to thank "her" for wanting to hear from me. It is good to be missed

I would like to know where the Ralstons, Esther and Jobyna came from, and if they ever had folks in Iowa? I admire them so much. Are they related?

There is another actor I admire, and that is Edward Horton I missed seeing "To the Ladies" with him in the cast and watched for it to come back, but it never did I am so sorry the policy of the Sun has been changed, and I am not the only one, as we did enjoy seeing the pictures we had missed and I know of folks who never go to the Sun since they do not bring back the wanted pictures, and think I am safe in saying that the attendance is not what it was with the returned pictures I so wanted to see "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and others.

Has "He Who Gets Slapped' been shown in Lincoln yet, or "The Phantom of the Opera,' both Lon Chaney pictures I try to see all of his as I like his work so much Saw "The Monster, but was very much disappointed with it, as Lon Chaney was kept out of it for so long, and when he did appear did not do so very much They seemed to be saving him for some reason.

There was another picture I saw that was a great disappointment—"The Woman Who Sinned," with Irene Rich, whom I greatly admire She was kept out all together too much to suit me, as I went because she was in the cast, and then she hardly had anything to do She is so earnest, and does so well that I thoroughly like her

Those two admirable villains the Beerys, do not appear often enough to please me either I like them both, also Raymond Hatton, and Charles Ogle Doesn't he just appeal to you? He is so homely, but sure does good work.

Did you see Norma Talmadge in 'Secrets?" It sure was great! I wrote her a letter of appreciation, and did not ask any questions, so I required no answer, but in due time she sent me the dearest autographed photograph of herself I would like some fan who is collecting them to have it, as I am not making any such collection

I have often wanted to tell the fans that there are wonderful photos in all the photoplay magazines, and one can get most any that they want that way I will not name any, as I am not advertising them

In one of recent date there was a whole page devoted to letters from Wallace Reid admirers, and quite a demand for showing of his plays I am another who would enjoy seeing them, and feel sure the Sun could make good at showing some of them but not one a day as someone has suggested Two a week would be better and not show more than two without a rest between

Have you visited "The Lincoln" It is beautiful and well worth the effort. The pictures are of the same class as shown at the Rialto, and the music is the same. The theater is wonderful. It is wonderfully located, right in the business district, a splendid place to spend two hours resting on the luxurious velvet carpet. The rest is about the best ever, too

I want to say in conclusion that I never miss a bit of the moving picture page. I think it is a wonderful reason for taking The Star

Thanking you Dear Movie Editor and with best wishes to P B X and all, I am sincerely DINTY

Perhaps it was the proverbial woman intuition that made P B X know you were a woman Dinty or I might have slipped in the feminine pronoun in correction when I edited the letter At any rate we are all glad to have you with us again

Neither of the Ralston girls claim to be "corn-fed" Jobyna's life history started in East Pittsburgh Tenn She was named after the noted actress Jobyna Howland who is greatly honored by the Ralstons of Tennessee

Jobyna had an early longing for the stage, but she was so before her mother took her to New York to make her name and fortune. She took dancing lessons from Ned Wayburn and he helped her get a part in George Cohan's Two Little Girls in Blue

It was not long before California called to Joby and she took Greeley's advice Her first work in pictures was opposite Max Linder in a burlesque of Douglas Fairbanks 'Three Musketeers' She then played in Hal Roach comedies for six months when Harold Lloyd signed her for his leading woman

I have never heard of any relationship existing between Joby and Esther although they are both of the same blond type Esther was born in Bar Harbor Me twenty three years ago Her parents were prominent in a theatrical company known as "The Ralston Family," which toured the country giving Shakespearian plays to high schools and colleges Esther has been before the footlights since she was 3 years old. She has been in pictures about four years, but it was not until she played the role of Peter Pan's mother that she became very well known.

We shall certainly have to speak to the manager of the Sun about those return pictures. In some cities on the coast they are setting aside certain weeks for the revival of old films I think its a good idea, too at least it would do no harm to give it a trial. There are a lot of old favorites that I should like to see again, but perhaps if we did see them they would seem mediocre and old fashioned.

I don't recall that 'He Who Gets Slapped has ever been here, but happened to see it in another city so I haven't particularly looked for it in Lincoln It's a really worthwhile picture, and you must be sure to see it if you get the opportunity I thought Lon Chaney did some of the finest work of his career as the clown "The Phantom of the Opera' has not been released for general showing yet.

Yes I too am an admirer of Charles Ogle He is so genuine You will be the envy of half the fans with your picture of Norma, and since you have announced that you would be glad to bestow it upon an interested fan I'm sure I'm going to be swamped with letters for your address

I have taken it for granted that nearly all of the fans have seen the pictures in the various photoplay magazines but you must admit that they are not nearly so thrilling as a real honest-to-goodness picture would be

We should be very proud of the fine theaters and good shows we get in Lincoln I know of many larger cities who are not nearly so fortunate especially when it comes to getting the pictures after they are ready for distribution

Could you tell me who the star is that is called "Andy' and has red gold hair She made her debut on the stage in New York in "Little Dolly Gray' She was married at an early age to an aviator Andy's step mother disapproved of the match and separated the young couple A few months later the young aviator was killed while doing daredevil exploits for various movie companies Later Andy married a director You see I know almost everything about her but her name

Thanking you in advance, JUST ME, Inavale Neb

I'm glad to have a fan in Inavale You are the first to write from there and I'm glad to answer your questions? Your Andy sounds like a picture play heroine in reel life rather than a real player She has a romantic history at least, but I'm not acquainted with her Could you tell me some of the pictures in which she has appeared? Ola Cronk was the name under which Claire Windsor spent her childhood. Not nearly so picturesque as Claire Windsor is it? Lois Weber the diretor insisted upon Claire taking the new name when she discovered her for the screen. Her real title, of course, is Mrs Bert Lytell

A Bit o' Blue Blood—Apropos of royalty, Pola Negri might not have landed another royal husband over in Europe as Gloria Swanson did but she does have a blue blood leading man in 'Flower of the Night, which Paul Bern is directing He is Prince Lucca Troubetzkoy son of Prince Cicala Troubetzkoy and nephew of the noted sculptor Paul Trebetzkoy

SLYKER

Radiator Furniture

Slyker Metal Furniture covers the unsightly radiator—making of it a desirable, artistic and more useful room appointment, and, as well, protects the walls and ceiling from radiator smudge. But, better still, it provides means through a concealed water container for moistening the air—a safeguard for health and comfort during the winter months when the air in the room is allowed to get thin and dry and detrimental to health.

Slyker Radiator Shields are a combination humidifier, shield and seat or shelf and do not in any manner interfere with the efficiency of the heating fixture

They are made in all sizes and in three distinctive designs. The tops are finished in mahogany, walnut, ivory or white which will harmonize with the decorations in the room, and being of metal with the finish heat-treated, they will last a life-time.

CHURCHES AND CLUBS

TWENTY-THIRD YEAR. LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, AUGUST 2, 1925. EIGHT PAGES

Brilliant Weddings of Past Quarter Century Recalled by Passing of Two Old Churches

The old First Presbyterian church has gone.

It is like the closing of an old album of beautiful pictures, hallowed with time and made sweet with caressing memories. It is like another bit of yesterday to be remembered tenderly and spoken of softly over misty bridal veils and faded bouquets which long since have been stored away in deep chests.

For, at one time, when this little church was large enough and splendid enough it saw many, many weddings, and among them were those of some of Lincoln's most prominent society folk.

The Early Marriages.

There are no records of weddings that have been, only recent ones, but some of the older members of the congregation believe that the first wedding to have taken place after the church was completed, was that of Miss Ethel Marsland and James A. Drain. The Drain-Marsland wedding was at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of a wonderful late September day. This was about 1891, and just a few weeks prior to the marriage of Miss Minnie Latta and Dr. C. F. Ladd.

Mrs. Ladd chose the evening instead of afternoon, and the wedding was one of the big social events of the season.

The church was decorated for the occasion by Mrs. A. J. Sawyer, who was a busy florist in the early days of Lincoln. Mrs. Ladd does not remember her bridal bouquet, but supposes that it was probably of roses and much like those carried by the brides of today. Her gown was of ivory colored faille with a long train, and trimmed heavily with lace. She also wore a long tulle veil that came to the edge of her train.

At 8 o'clock on the evening of October 2, 1894, the marriage of Miss Bertie Burr Elman Dawes was solemnized in the church. The affair was a great social event and the church was packed with friends of Miss Burr and Mr. Dawes. There were no attendants. The bride wore a beautiful gown, and there was lovely music and a profusion of flowers.

Ricketts-Folsom Wedding.

Another large wedding uniting two prominent young people was in 1900 on the thirteenth day of June, when Miss Edna Ricketts became the bride of Ernest C. Folsom. This bride also chose the evening for her wedding, and had a number of attendants. The wedding gown was of white satin with long close fitting sleeves and a high collar. The church was decorated with lilies and roses, and the bride carried an arm bouquet of white roses. Among her attendants were Mabel Richards, who later became her sister-in-law; Mrs. L. A. Ricketts, Nora Houtz Rankin, Frances Gere, and Dora Harley, who was the maid of honor. The bride's brother served as groomsman. There were two other attendants so Mrs. Folsom says, but does not remember who they were.

Before the Folsom - Ricketts wedding, however, was the marriage of Miss Olive Latta to Dr. Edward Watson, which took place at the Presbyterian church, also, and which, as the others, was talked of many days before and afterwards because of its lovliness. Mrs. Watson had quite a wedding party, with pretty attendants in lovely frocks.

And then, a good many years later, in the same church, with practically the same service, with probably much the same music, were married the daughters of Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Ladd, and Mrs. Olive Watson.

In 1922, Miss Olive Ladd was married to J. Leslie Grainger, and following closely upon their wedding was that of Miss Latta Watson and Perry W. Branch. Both were evening weddings and were among the social events of the season.

In 1919, Miss Sarah Risdon, daughter of Mrs. Risdon and the late George Risdon, and Worth Minnick, were married.

For many years Ross Curtice, father of Ross P. Curtice, was organist at the Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Ross P. Curtice were not married in the church, however, for at that time Mrs. Curtice was not a Presbyterian.

Other Interesting Ceremonies.

Another church which has been abandoned by its flock, but still remains standing is the First Congregational church at Thirteenth and L streets. Here, as in the First Presbyterian church, the weddings of several prominent society girls took place.

The first one, according to Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, who was organist at the church for a good many years, was that of Miss Alice Tuttle and Landy Clark. Mrs. Raymond does not remember the exact date, but knows that the wedding was on a summer evening.

The second wedding in the church was Anne Funke's, who married Charles Burr. This ceremony took place at high noon, and according to Mrs. Raymond was beautiful.

Miss Louis Burnham and Willard Yates, Dorrance Harwood and Arthur Raymond, Carrie Dennis, who was at that time city librarian, and John Reed, all were married in the old First Congregational church.

Just twenty-five years ago on the first of June, Miss Helen Woods became the bride of A. L. Haecker. Miss Woods was the daughter of Col. and Mrs. F. M. Woods, and a sister of Mark, Frank and George Woods, all prominent Lincoln men. Twenty-five years later, the first of last June, Miss Madeleine Haecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Haecker, became the bride of Ardath B. Garnich. The same ceremony was carried out as nearly as it could be remembered. Mrs. Raymond played the same nuptial music for Mrs. Garnich as she did for her mother.

Mrs. Hamilton President New State Society

Five and forty women from the state of Nebraska, including six from the city of Lincoln, have returned to their homes from the state convention of the Legion auxiliary in Columbus, full fledged members of La Societe des 8 chapeaux 40 Femmes.

And from the forty-five Nebraska members, Mrs. R. H. Hamilton of Lincoln, was named Le chapeau departmental, or president of the new chapter or "salon." Mrs. Hamilton was recently appointed state organizer for the Legion auxiliary by Mrs. Madge King Johnston of Aberdeen, S. D., national president.

The new "Eight and Forty" club is a companion society to the Forty and Eight club of the American Legion. It was formed during the convention, in as much as the national conclave of the Legion is to be held in Omaha this year. It is required that no society can be formed in a state which has not entertained a national convention.

Membership in the "Eight and Forty club" is open to all American Legion auxiliary members who have performed some meritorious service for that body. While the social service of the group concerns itself with child welfare, the purpose of the group is essentially for entertainment.

Besides Mrs. Hamilton, other Lincoln members include Mrs. B. C. McGlasson, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. P. R. Chevalier, Mrs. Elmer La Follette and Mrs. Richard Oddie. Mrs. Edgar Penny, of Fullerton, and Mrs. E. C. Warner, of Norfolk, well known in Lincoln, are also member of the group.

Weddings

FAGAN-HAYES

The marriage of Miss Nita Fagen to Lucius B. Hayes was solemnized last night at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride, 804 Lei Lau Farl apartments. The Rev. John Andrew Holmes, pastor of First Plymouth-Congregational church, officiated in the presence of close friends and relatives. Mrs. Lois Brubaker of Goff, Kas., Mrs. Hayes' mother, and her sister, Mrs. C. S. Goodrich of Goff, were the out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will be at home in Lincoln. For several years, Mrs. Hayes has been secretary to W. S. Whitten at the chamber of commerce.

BENTLEY-ROBBINS

The marriage of Miss Mabel Bentley and S. B. Robbins took place in Omaha Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins will be at home in Lincoln at 621 South Eleventh street.

ESTES-PURYEAR

The marriage of Miss Winnifred Estes of Glenwood, Ia., and Evard E. Puryear of Omaha, was solemnized at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 1, at the Church of the Holy Trinity in Lincoln. Rev. Dwight H. Dow officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne K. Selby of Omaha were the attendants.

MUELLER-DUNCAN

An interesting wedding took place at St. Mary's cathedral yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, when Miss Helen Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mueller, became the bride of James T. Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Duncan of Roseland, Neb. The Rev. P. L. O'Loughlin read the lines in the presence of close friends and relatives.

Miss Ann Duncan was the bride's only attendant, she wore a frock of poudre bleue georgette. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Dr. J. W. Duncan was the groomsman.

Mr. Duncan, who was given in marriage by her father, was attractive in a white georgette gown, appliqued in a motif of flat white velvet gardenias. Her flowers were a shower of Ophelia roses and daisies.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at La petit Gourmet. Covers for twelve, including only the relatives of the bride and groom, were placed at one table, on which the center piece was a wedding cake, with massed gladioli in pink and white on either side. Tapers in Italian pottery cupids lighted the table, on which the other appointments were carried out in pink, green and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan are taking their wedding trip in Minnesota, and will be at home in Lincoln about September. Mrs. Duncan is traveling in a smoke blue jersey suit, with a close hat of tangerine.

Mrs. Duncan is prominent in musical circles in the city. She is agraduate of the University School of Music and a member of Mu Phi Epsilon. She attended the university for a time. For the past three years she has been a member of the faculty of the school of music and she is a member of the Matinee Musical and the Musical Art club. Mrs. Duncan has also taken part in several Junior league productions and in university affairs.

Mr. Duncan is a university graduate and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon. He is now connected with the bond department of the First Trust company.

BURTON-THOMSEN

The marriage of Miss Sunbeam Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Burton, and Fred Thomsen of Minden, will take place the evening of August 22 at the First Christian church. Miss Burton has chosen Miss Eva Anderson as maid of honor and the Misses Ruey Beach, Myra McGraw and Frances Walker as bridesmaids. The attendants have all been presidents of the La Joie de Vie club of which Miss Burton is a member. Little Billy

Popular Lincoln Co-eds Take Places in Business World For Summer To Earn Pin Money

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

"I'm going a-working, sir," she said.

And the best part of it is, she means it, or rather "they" do, for there are a group of popular young co-eds, all members of prominent sororities, who powder their dainty little noses each morning, and pull a jaunty hat down over the bright left eye, preparatory for the daily grind in office and shop.

Time was when the fair maid considered her face her fortune and let it go at that—but no more now-a-days she earns her own bright coppers and spends them as she pleases whether it be for ice cream sodas or seal skin coats.

Every shiny morning and every rainy morning, cold or hot, a group of Lincoln's young girls awake to the tunes of shiny new alarm clocks yawn luxuriously, scuttle out of bed eat breakfasts evident of their healthy appetites and rush away to their places of work with mingled feeling of importance and enjoyment.

In 1500 Abby Elizabeth spread her danty skirts displaying tiny ruffled pantalettes, and sat down on a silk cushion to crosstitch a sampler or sew a fine seam.

In 1925 the young girl mingles with people, discussing politics instead of pastries and poetry, science as well as sewing, and finance along with frills.

In Offices and Stores.

What young business man would not enjoy a soft low voice in answer to his call? Miss Dorothy O'Shea answers telephones and does other little office duties at O'Shea-Rogers in the summer months. Miss O'Shea stated decidedly, "There is nothing to do in Lincoln during the summer. So I thought it a good way to pass the time." She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta at the University of Nebraska. Miss O'Shea plans to attend St. Mary's of the Woods in Indiana this fall, where she will major in history.

As busy at work as at play is Miss Ruth Sunderland, an attractive brunette, who is whilling away long Lincoln hours at Miller and Paine's in various ways. She is sometimes seen at the return desk and other times in the millinery department showing dashing felts and gay garden hats to other fair co-eds, here, there and everywhere. Miss Sunderland is also a Kappa Alpha Theta.

A blue-eyed blonde, who is as chic as her name, displays plaids, balbriggans and sheer evening frocks with her sparkling enthusiasm at Sardeson and Hovland's. This is Miss Frances French, a junior in the university this fall and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Miss French is specializing in public school music.

A very capable co-ed saleslady is Miss Margaret Nelson, also at Sardeson and Hovland's. Miss Nelson graduated from the university this spring, having specialized in kindergarden-primary work. She, too belongs to Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Among the vivid colorings of straws and felts and the lavenders, pinks, sky blues, yellows, rose and sea-green hues of filmy, drooping pokes one spies a fair complexioned blonde with a glint of auburn in her hair. It is none other than Miss Elsie Neely, who is spending her time in the millinery department of Gold's store. Miss Neely belongs to Delta Delta and is majoring in fine arts.

Is Church Organist.

An unusual line of work is that of Miss Coleita Aitken, who is organist at St. Paul church in the summer months. Miss Aitken will assist in the fine arts department of the University this fall, teaching dramatic literature. She graduated from the University of Nebraska with the class of 1923 and was a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Amid the clatter of typewriters, the tinkle of telephones and the bustle of the First National bank there is found Miss Marion Easterday, who helps her father there. Miss Easterday will enter the university as a freshman this fall.

So, be it shop, bank or store, there may be found pretty little Lincoln maids who are buying their own shoe strings, soap, sodas, sachet silks, slickers, sweets, sandwiches and soup with the bright shiny pennies they are earning this summer.

Dutch Treat, Family Parties At Eastridge

Neither the cheery little supper parties at Eastridge Friday evening, rose-tinted from the glow of softly shaded candles, nor the friendly games of bridge, could quite blanket the drab chill of a leaden sky, hinting with its premature curtain of darkness, of the frost-laden blights of early autumn, forerunner of the russet and crimson glory of Indian summer.

The annual epidemic of vacation malady has fallen with telling force on the social life of the club. The lull which precedes the brilliant season when travelers return to the family hearth and friends, is settling with decision upon the city, and social life is in a state of coma.

Small Dutch treat parties, or family groups for the most part entertained Friday evening at the club.

Mrs. Randolph Jonnson entertained for her mother, Mrs. Frank P. Wilson, and Mrs. Wilson's sister, Mrs. Donat Miller, who is visiting from Peoria, Ill. Yellow and white formed the color motif for table decorations where places were laid for the two honor guests, for Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hammond, and Mrs. Johnson and daughter Sarah Jane.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Krepps. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hunt and son Gerald, and Mr. and Mrs. William Gray made a Dutch treat party.

A number of guests came for dancing and cards.

Observe Wedding Anniversary By Dinner At Club

Midsummer, so often lending the charm of blue skies, flecked sketchily with bits of fleecy cloud, to the bridal procession, with equal care chooses the same fair weather for the celebration of the host of happy anniversaries which follow the nuptial vows.

Wedding anniversaries, unlike weddings, are more often celebrated in the quiet intimacy of the home. But as families grow a bit scattered, friends seems a little nearer, and occasionally a few friends and neighbors are invited to share in the joy of the occasion.

Ten friends of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Davis were invited to help celebrate the twenty-fourth wedding anniversary of the host and hostess, at a dinner party at the Country club last evening. Summer flowers were used in baskets on the table and other favors were in keeping with the sentiment of the occasion. Covers were laid for Mr and Mrs C. E. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Shire, Dr. and Mrs. Chauncey Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitten, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughter, Martha Elizabeth.

Mrs. William M. Leonard asked a few friends to join the family dinner at the club which included Mr. and Mrs J. . Frazier of Omaha. Mrs. Frazier is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard.

Included in one of the several Dutch treat parties were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Waugh, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Bumstead, Mr. and Mrs Barton Green, and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fawell.

The past week has been an exceptionally busy one for brides and guests. There have been a number of weddings, most of them informal affairs, which gave opportunity for prenuptial dinners and parties.

Perhaps the largest wedding of the week was that of Miss Dorothy Fitzsimmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fitzsimmons, and William Harry Carson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Carson, whose marriage was solemnized Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 217 South Twenty-seventh street. Mrs. Carson was one of the prominent girls in social and school activities at the University of Nebraska, where she affiliated with Delta Gamma. Mr. Carson is a member of Delta Upsilon. After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Carson will be at home in St. Paul, Neb.

Mrs. Joseph L. Edwards, before her marriage Saturday, July 25, was Miss Margaret Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curry W. Watson, 3204 Starr street. Mrs. Edwards was graduated from the University of Nebraska in June. Mr. Edwards will continue his work in the law college of Nebraska university this year.

One of the interesting marriages of the week is that of Miss Helen Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mueller, and James Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Duncan of Roseland, Neb., which took place Saturday morning, August 1, at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's cathedral. Mrs. Duncan has been especially popular in musical circles in Lincoln. She is a graduate of the University School of Music, and is a member of the Mu Phi Epsilon, also of the Matinee Musicale and the Musical Art club. She has taken an active part in several Junior League productions and has been associated with the piano department of the University School of Music for the past three years. Mr. Duncan is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

An attractive bride was Mrs. Adrian VanderLinde, formerly Miss Mercy Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Wood of University Place, whose marriage took place Saturday evening, July 25, at her home.

Mrs. I. H. Vogel and son Richard of Mattituck, Long Island, N. Y. have been guests of Mrs. Vogel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fulmer. They accompanied Mr. Fulmer on a motor trip to Fargo, N. D. last week for a short visit with Mrs. Vogel's sister. They will return to Lincoln and spend sometime at the Fulmer home before returning to New York.

Mr. and Mrs Charles G. Dawes will arrive in Lincoln Friday and during their stay in Lincoln will be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Burnham. Due to the fact that the length of their visit is still indefinite, there have been no social events planned for Mr. and Mrs. Dawes.

With the Dawes party will be Mr. and Mrs. Beeman Dawes of Columbus, O. who will be guests at the home of Mrs. Dawes' sister, Mrs Ross P. Curtice and Mr. Curtice.

CHURCHES AND CLUBS

TWENTY-THIRD YEAR. LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, AUGUST 2, 1925. EIGHT PAGES

Brilliant Weddings of Past Quarter Century Recalled by Passing of Two Old Churches

The old First Presbyterian church has gone.

It is like the closing of an old album of beautiful pictures, hallowed with time and made sweet with caressing memories. It is like another bit of yesterday to be remembered tenderly and spoken of softly over misty bridal veils and faded bouquets which long since have been stored away in deep chests.

For, at one time, when this little church was large enough and splendid enough it saw many, many weddings, and among them were those of some of Lincoln's most prominent society folk.

The Early Marriages.

There are no records of weddings that have been, only recent ones, but some of the older members of the congregation believe that the first wedding to have taken place after the church was completed, was that of Miss Ethel Marsland and James A. Drain. The Drain-Marsland wedding was at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of a wonderful late September day. This was about 1891, and just a few weeks prior to the marriage of Miss Minnie Latta and Dr. C. F. Ladd.

Mrs. Ladd chose the evening instead of afternoon, and the wedding was one of the big social events of the season.

The church was decorated for the occasion by Mrs. A. J. Sawyer, who was a busy florist in the early days of Lincoln. Mrs. Ladd does not remember her bridal bouquet, but supposes that it was probably of roses and much like those carried by the brides of today. Her gown was of ivory colored faille with a long train, and trimmed heavily with lace. She also wore a long tulle veil that came to the edge of her train.

At 8 o'clock on the evening of October 2, 1894, the marriage of Miss Bertie Burr Elman Dawes was solemnized in the church. The affair was a great social event and the church was packed with friends of Miss Burr and Mr. Dawes. There were no attendants. The bride wore a beautiful gown, and there was lovely music and a profusion of flowers.

Ricketts-Folsom Wedding.

Another large wedding uniting two prominent young people was in 1900 on the thirteenth day of June, when Miss Edna Ricketts became the bride of Ernest C. Folsom. This bride also chose the evening for her wedding, and had a number of attendants. The wedding gown was of white satin with long close fitting sleeves and a high collar. The church was decorated with lilies and roses, and the bride carried an arm bouquet of white roses. Among her attendants were Mabel Richards, who later became her sister-in-law, Mrs. L. A. Ricketts, Nora Houtz Rankin, Frances Gere, and Dora Harley, who was the maid of honor. The bride's brother served as groomsman. There were two other attendants so Mrs. Folsom says, but does not remember who they were.

Before the Folsom - Ricketts wedding, however, was the marriage of Miss Olive Latta to Dr. Edward Watson, which took place at the Presbyterian church, also, and which, as the others, was talked of many days before and afterwards because of its loviiness. Mrs. Watson had quite a wedding party, with pretty attendants in lovely frocks.

And then, a good many years later, in the same church, with practically the same service, with probably much the same music, were married the daughters of Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Ladd, and Mrs. Olive Watson.

In 1922, Miss Olive Ladd was married to J. Leslie Grainger, and following closely upon their wedding was that of Miss Latta Watson and Perry W. Branch. Both were evening weddings and were among the social events of the season.

In 1919, Miss Sarah Risdon, daughter of Mrs. Risdon and the late George Risdon, and Worth Minnick, were married.

For many years Ross Curtice, father of Ross P. Curtice, was organist at the Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Ross P. Curtice were not married in the church, however, for at that time Mrs. Curtice was not a Presbyterian.

Other Interesting Ceremonies.

Another church which has been abandoned by its flock, but still remains standing is the First Congregational church at Thirteenth and L streets. Here, as in the First Presbyterian church, the weddings of several prominent society girls took place.

The first one, according to Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, who was organist at the church for a good many years, was that of Miss Alice Tuttle and Landy Clark. Mrs. Raymond does not remember the exact date, but knows that the wedding was on a summer evening.

The second wedding in the church was Anne Funke's, who married Charles Burr. This ceremony took place at high noon, and according to Mrs. Raymond was beautiful.

Miss Louis Burnham and Willard Yates, Dorrance Harwood and Arthur Raymond, Carrie Dennis, who was at that time city librarian, and John Reed, all were married in the old First Congregational church.

Just twenty-five years ago on the first of June, Miss Helen Woods became the bride of A. L. Haecker. Miss Woods was the daughter of Col. and Mrs. F. M. Woods, and a sister of Mark, Frank and George Woods, all prominent Lincoln men. Twenty-five years later, the first of last June, Miss Madeleine Haecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Haecker, became the bride of Ardath B. Garnich. The same ceremony was carried out as nearly as it could be remembered. Mrs. Raymond played the same nuptial music for Mrs. Garnich as she did for her mother.

Mrs. Hamilton President New State Society

Five and forty women from the state of Nebraska, including six from the city of Lincoln, have returned to their homes from the state convention of the Legion auxiliary in Columbus, full fledged members of La Societe des 8 chapeaux 40 Femmes.

And from the forty-five Nebraska members, Mrs. R. H. Hamilton of Lincoln, was named Le chapeau departmental, or president of the new chapter or "salon." Mrs. Hamilton was recently appointed state organizer for the Legion auxiliary by Mrs. Madge King Johnston of Aberdeen, S. D., national president.

The new "Eight and Forty" club is a companion society to the Forty and Eight club of the American Legion. It was formed during the convention, in as much as the national conclave of the Legion is to be held in Omaha this year. It is required that no society can be formed in a state which has not entertained a national convention.

Membership in the "Eight and Forty club" is open to all American Legion auxiliary members who have performed some meritorious service for that body. While the social service of the group concerns itself with child welfare, the purpose of the group is essentially for entertainment.

Besides Mrs. Hamilton, other Lincoln members include Mrs. E. C. McGlasson, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. P. R. Chevalier, Mrs. Elmer La Follette and Mrs. Richard Oddie. Mrs. Edgar Penny, of Fullerton, and Mrs. E. C. Warner, of Norfolk, well known in Lincoln, are also member of the group.

The marriage of Miss Nita Fagen to Lucius B. Hayes was solemnized last night at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride, 304 Lei Lau Farl apartments. The Rev. John Andrew Holmes, pastor of First Plymouth-Congregational church, officiated in the presence of close friends and relatives. Mrs. Lois Brubaker of Goff, Kas., Mrs. Hayes' mother, and her sister, Mrs. C. S. Goodrich of Goff, were the out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will be at home in Lincoln. For several years, Mrs. Hayes has been secretary to W. S. Whitten at the chamber of commerce.

BENTLEY-ROBBINS

The marriage of Miss Mabel Bentley and S. B. Robbins took place in Omaha Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins will be at home in Lincoln at 621 South Eleventh street.

MUELLER-DUNCAN

An interesting wedding took place at St. Mary's cathedral yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, when Miss Helen Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mueller, became the bride of James T. Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Duncan of Roseland, Neb. The Rev. P. L. O'Loughlin read the lines in the presence of close friends and relatives.

Miss Ann Duncan was the bride's only attendant, she wore a frock of poudre bleue georgette. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Dr. J. W. Duncan was the groomsman.

Mr. Duncan, who was given in marriage by her father, was attractive in a white georgette gown, appliqued in a motif of flat white velvet gardenias. Her flowers were a shower of Ophelia roses and daisies.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at La petit Gourmet. Covers for twelve, including only the relatives of the bride and groom, were placed at one table, on which the center piece was a wedding cake, with massed gladioli in pink and white on either side. Tapers in Italian pottery cupids lighted the table, on which the other appointments were carried out in pink, green and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan are taking their wedding trip in Minnesota, and will be at home in Lincoln about September . Mrs. Duncan is traveling in a smoke blue jersey suit, with a close hat of tangerine.

Mrs. Duncan is prominent in musical circles in the city. She is agraduate of the University School of Music and a member of Mu Phi Epsilon. She attended the university for a time. For the past three years she has been a member of the faculty of the school of music and she is a member of the Matinee Musical and the Musical Art club. Mrs. Duncan has also taken part in several Junior league productions and in university affairs.

Mr. Duncan is a university graduate and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon. He is now connected with the bond department of the First Trust company.

The marriage of Miss Sunbeam Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Burton, and Fred Thomsen of Minden, will take place the evening of August 22 at the First Christian church. Popular Lincoln Co-eds Take Places in Business World For Summer To Earn Pin Money

"I'm going a-working, sir," she said.

And the best part of it is, she means it, or rather "they" do, for there are a group of popular young co-eds, all members of prominent sororities, who powder their dainty little noses each morning, and pull a jaunty hat down over the bright left eye, preparatory for the daily grind in office and shop.

Time was when the fair maid considered her face her fortune and let it go at that—but no more now-a-days she earns her own bright coppers and spends them as she pleases whether it be for ice cream sodas or seal skin coats

Every shiny morning and every rainy morning, cold or hot, a group of Lincoln's young girls awake to the tunes of shiny new alarm clocks yawn luxuriously, scuttle out of bed eat breakfasts evident of their healthy appetites and rush away to their places of work with mingled feeling of importance and enjoyment.

In 1800 Abby Elizabeth spread her danty skirts displaying tiny ruffled pantalettes, and sat down on a silk cushion to crosstitch a sampler or sew a fine seam.

In 1925 the young girl mingles with people, discussing politics instead of pastries and poetry, science as well as sewing, and finance along with frills.

In Offices and Stores.

What young business man would not enjoy a soft low voice in answer to his call? Miss Dorothy O'Shea answers telephones and does other little office duties at O'Shea-Rogers in the summer months. Miss O'Shea stated decidedly, "There is nothing to do in Lincoln during the summer. So I thought it a good way to pass the time." She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta at the University of Nebraska. Miss O'Shea plans to attend St. Mary's of the Woods in Indiana this fall, where she will major in history.

As busy at work as at play is Miss Ruth Sunderland, an attractive brunette, who is whfiling away long Lincoln hours at Miller and Paine's in various ways. She is sometimes seen at the return desk, and other times in the millinery department showing dashing felts and gay garden hats to other fair co-eds, here, there and everywhere. Miss Sunderland is also a Kappa Alpha Theta.

A blue-eyed blonde, who is as chic as her name, displays plaids, balbriggans and sheer evening frocks with her sparkling enthusiasm at Sardeson and Hovland's. This is Miss Frances French, a junior in the university this fall and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Miss French is specializing in public school music.

A very capable co-ed saleslady is Miss Margaret Nelson, also at Sardeson and Hovland's. Miss Nelson graduated from the university this spring, having specialized in kindergarden-primary work. She, too belongs to Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Among the vivid colorings of straws and felts and the lavenders, pinks, sky blues, yellows, rose and sea-green hues of filmy, drooping pokes one spies a fair complexioned blonde with a glint of auburn in her hair. It is none other than Miss Elsie Neely, who is spending her time in the millinery department of Gold's store. Miss Neely belongs to Delta Delta and is majoring in fine arts.

Is Church Organist.

An unusual line of work is that of Miss Coleita Aitken, who is organist at St. Paul church in the summer months. Miss Aitken will assist in the fine arts department of the University this fall, teaching dramatic literature. She graduated from the University of Nebraska with the class of 1923 and was a member of Pi Beta Phi.

Amid the clatter of typewriters, the tinkle of telephones and the bustle of the First National bank there is found Miss Marion Easterday, who helps her father there. Miss Easterday will enter the university as a freshman this fall.

So, be it shop, bank or store, there may be found pretty little Lincoln maids who are buying their own shoe strings, soap, sodas, sachet silks, slickers, sweets, sandwiches and soup with the bright shiny pennies they are earning this summer.

Dutch Treat, Family Parties At Eastridge

Neither the cheery little supper parties at Eastridge Friday evening, rose-tinted from the glow of softly shaded candles, nor the friendly games of bridge, could quite blanket the drab chill of a leaden sky, hinting with its premature curtain of darkness, of the frost-laden blights of early autumn, forerunner of the russet and crimson glory of Indian summer.

The annual epidemic of vacation malady has fallen with telling force on the social life of the club. The lull which precedes the brilliant season when travelers return to the family hearth and friends, is settling with decision upon the city, and social life is in a state of coma.

Mrs. Randolph Jonnson entertained for her mother, Mrs. Frank P. Wilson, and Mrs. Wilson's sister, Mrs. Donat Miller, who is visiting from Peoria, Ill. Yellow and white formed the color motif for table decorations where places were laid for the two honor guests, for Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hammond, and Mrs. Johnson and daughter Sarah Jane.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Krepps. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hunt and son Gerald, and Mr. and Mrs. William Gray made a Dutch treat party.

A number of guests came for dancing and cards.

Observe Wedding Anniversary By Dinner At Club

Midsummer, so often lending the charm of blue skies, flecked sketchily with bits of fleecy cloud, to the bridal procession, with equal care chooses the same fair weather for the celebration of the host of happy anniversaries which follow the nuptial vows.

Wedding anniversaries, unlike weddings, are more often celebrated in the quiet intimacy of the home. But as families grow a bit scattered, friends seems a little nearer, and occasionally a few friends and neighbors are invited to share in the joy of the occasion.

Ten friends of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Davis were invited to help celebrate the twenty-fourth wedding anniversary of the host and hostess, at a dinner party at the Country club last evening. Summer flowers were used in baskets on the table and other favors were in keeping with the sentiment of the occasion. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Shire, Dr. and Mrs. Chauncey Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whitten, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Mayhew, Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughter, Martha Elizabeth.

Mrs. William M. Leonard asked a few friends to join the family dinner at the club which included Mr. and Mrs. J. . Frazier of Omaha. Mrs. Frazier is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard.

Included in one of the several Dutch treat parties were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Waugh, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Bumstead, Mr. and Mrs Barton Green, and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fawell.

The past week has been an exceptionally busy one for brides and guests. There have been a number of weddings, most of them informal affairs, which gave opportunity for prenuptial dinners and parties.

Perhaps the largest wedding of the week was that of Miss Dorothy Fitzsimmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fitzsimmons, and William Harry Carson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Carson, whose marriage was solemnized Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 217 South Twenty-seventh street. Mrs. Carson was one of the prominent girls in social and school activities at the University of Nebraska, where she affiliated with Delta Gamma. Mr. Carson is a member of Delta Upsilon. After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Carson will be at home in St. Paul, Neb.

Mrs. Joseph L. Edwards, before her marriage Saturday, July 25, was Miss Margaret Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curry W. Watson, 3204 Starr street. Mrs. Edwards was graduated from the University of Nebraska in June. Mr. Edwards will continue his work in the law college of Nebraska university this year.

One of the interesting marriages of the week is that of Miss Helen Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mueller, and James Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Duncan of Roseland, Neb., which took place Saturday morning, August 1, at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's cathedral. Mrs. Duncan has been especially popular in musical circles in Lincoln. She is a graduate of the University School of Music, and is a member of the Mu Phi Epsilon, also of the Matinee Musicale and the Musical Art club. She has taken an active part in several Junior League productions and has been associated with the piano department of the University School of Music for the past three years. Mr. Duncan is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

An attractive bride was Mrs. Adrian VanderLinde, formerly Miss Mercy Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Wood of University Place, whose marriage took place Saturday evening, July 25, at her home.

Mrs. I. H. Vogel and son Richard of Mattituck, Long Island, N. Y. have been guests of Mrs. Vogel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fulmer. They accompanied Mr. Fulmer on a motor trip to Fargo, N. D. last week for a short visit with Mrs. Vogel's sister. They will return to Lincoln and spend sometime at the Fulmer home before returning to New York.

S. H. Burnham Will Entertain Vice President

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes will arrive in Lincoln Friday and during their stay in Lincoln will be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Burnham. Due to the fact that the length of their visit is still indefinite, there have been no social events planned for Mr. and Mrs. Dawes.

With the Dawes party will be Mr. and Mrs. Beeman Dawes of Columbus, O., who will be guests at the home of Mrs. Dawes' sister, Mrs. Ross P. Curtice and Mr. Curtice.

The annual dinner for all women in the summer session of the University of Nebraska will be held Thursday evening at 6 o'clock at the Temple. Mrs. Ada Stidworthy Westover will preside and the guests will sing university songs.

REGARDLESS of the brightness, or the loudness, or the dullness of autumn colors, white will be worn by the ultra smart. White flannel dresses, white flannel wraps, even white bags and white felt hats will be worn to match. White's closest rival will be black and white combinations. After that colors will run riot but they will not be as vivid as they are now.

One of our well known actresses has just returned from abroad wearing a covert rep ensemble in cobalt blue, made on straight lines, with a velvet scarf collar attached to the dress. Which is to say—or in other words—not only middle westerners but women all over the United States will wear ensembles of covert rep in cobalt blue with velvet scarf collar attached.

Dear Modern Eve I wish you might see some of our chic young women on the roof gardens of New York They were never more smart or unusual Many are wearing chiffon frocks, plain to the knees and then wide, Oh so wide is the flare When they dance yards and yards of chiffon float about through the air It reminds one of the "Dance of the Seven Veils."

JUST as the renowned Parisian dressmakers interpret the vogue in costumes so does Kathleen Mary Quinlan decree the fashions in cosmetics This season she declares that rouge shall be brilliant red. There is the languid complexion Delicately perfumed, the rouge is tucked in a wafer thin gold case, There is the Blush, a cream rouge in light and dark, the Pimpernel the rich carnal, and the Petunia in the dry rouge Miss Quinlan recommends Pimpernel for medium, Petunia for brunets and Crushed Coral for blonds. DO you have trouble keeping your ice box cold during the high temperature? Is the ice box damp? Does it collect odor? Do the tracks of the ice man muddy the floor? Does your milk sour and your food spoil in warm weather? These are questions asked by the people who are equipping the modern homes and apartments with Frigidaire. A Frigidaire system can be installed in any refrigerator The temperature is always the same The inside of the box is always dry and odorless The trays are always filled with ice in cubes ready to use I want to tell you how to make frozen desserts without the least bit of trouble or worry or litter but that will come next week The Delco Light Co, 1121 P street will demonstrate the advantages of Frigidaire

JUDGE FLORENCE ALLEN DISCUSSES WORLD COURT.

Judge Florence E. Allen of the Supreme court of Ohio was at the national federation meeting of business and professional women held recently in Portland, Me. She discussed the World Court in an address and explained the pact recently entered into whereby it was decided to endorse the entrance of the United States into this court upon the condition that within five years an international law shall be passed designating war an international crimee.

Resolutions were adopted by the federation approving this pact, and upon these conditions endorsing the participation of the United States in the World court according to the Smith-Hughes-Coolidge proposals.

Resolutions adopted called upon the states to ratify the child labor amendment, endorsed a bill advocating a department of education with a secretary in the national cabinet, a bill making statutory the federal employment service and also an amendment to the Smith-Hughes act relating to training in home economics.

The legislative committee recommended to local clubs the organization of round tables for discussion of legislative measures of local, state and national interest, and making it an open forum for the women of the city.

CIVICS DEPARTMENT MEETS AT HOSPITAL.

The civics department of the Lincoln Women's club held its weekly entertainment at the Orthopedic hospital Wednesday afternoon. The program was as follows:

Violin solo, Henry Hauck.
Readings, Wilmer Hauck.
Cornet solo, C. W. Hauck.
Old time songs, Mrs. W. A. Miller, Mrs. Marie McKinstry, C. W. Hauck, accompanists.
Brief address, Mrs. E. L. Marty.

OUTLINE OF WORK FOR DRAMATIC DEPARTMENT.

The dramatic department of the Lincoln Woman's clubs will be instructed the coming year by C. Wesley Batchelder, who is head of the dramatic art department of the University School of Music. Mr. Batchelder is a graduate of Emerson college of oratory, holding the degree of Bachelor of Literary interpretation.

The accredited course will include the study of masterpieces. "The study of masterpieces of literature, with the endeavor to understand their truth, beauty and purpose and to express these through the spoken word, deepens and widens appreciation of literature and art. More than this, it leads to a fuller self-knowledge and command," says Mr. Batchelder.

It is planned to present two plays publicly each month, so that all the members may be given attention and have a chance to test themselves before an audience.

The meetings will be held every Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 in Faculty hall. Tea, with special features in entertainment, will be served once a month on the following dates: October 14, November 18, December 16—the Christmas party, January 20, February 17—Colonial costume party. The March date is not yet determined.

The closing program of the department, before the open meeting of the club, will be given in Temple Theater, April 12.

Officers of the department are: Mrs. C. Rush Henderson, leader; Mrs. Roy Kohler, assistant leader; Mr. C. Wesley Batchelder, instructor; Mrs. E. S. Gunn, secretary; Mrs. R. R. Betz, door. The hostesses for the year are: Mrs. William Rademacher, Mrs. J. P. Cox Mrs. W. H. Moore, Mrs. J. R. Roberts, Mrs. J. G. McBride, Mrs. F. M. McElrath.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I was nervous and could not sleep, had crying spells and the blues, and didn't care if I lived or died. My right side was very bad and I had backache and a weakness. Given Surprise Party On Birthday

Mary Eileen Van Winkle, standing at the right of the birthday cake, celebrated her eighth birthday Wednesday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mamie Van Winkle in College View, with a party for eighteen little friends, who came to her home to surprise her. After games and stories, luncheon was served on the lawn, for which here were two birthday cakes. Summer flowers were used on the table and the little girls were given kittens as favors and the boys received horns.

They had come out from the east in wagons in 1854, the first year of the territory, and Mr. Bentz and William Mann named Sterling, Neb., for Sterling, Ill., the last town they had seen as they came west. MODERN EVE
THE SHOPPER

REGARDLESS of the brightness, or the loudness, or the dullness of autumn colors, white will be worn by the ultra smart. White flannel dresses, white flannel wraps, even white bags and white felt hats will be worn to match. White's closest rival will be black and white combinations. After that colors will run riot but they will not be as vivid as they are now.

One of our well known actresses has just returned from abroad wearing a covert rep ensemble in cobalt blue, made on straight lines, with a velvet scarf collar attached to the dress. Which is to say—or in other words—not only middle westerners but women all over the United States will wear ensembles of covert rep in cobalt blue with velvet scarf collar attached.

HAVE you seen the softly beautiful picture from the Chinese, "Love Birds?" It is unusual regardless of its treatment but when India, who works artistically and very uniquely with Jesso art, finishes one of the "Love Birds" it is irresistible. India may be found on the second floor at Herpolsheimer's. She will finish a picture or she will teach you how to do Jesso art. See her for artistic ideas.

IF you want the right kind of oil for your permanent wave, send 75c to Dr. Irene Ward, 920 Forest Ave., Kansas City, Mo., for a bottle of Permo. It makes permanents look like natural curls.

IF you want to bleach your skin, reduce your pores, stop excessive oil, remedy excessive dryness, cure skin eruptions, (in other words remake your skin) send to Mme. Pattie, 918 Grand, Kansas City, Mo., or a jar of cleansing cream, tan cream and special astringent, $1.10 each plus 15c postage. Ask for instructions. Or, if you do not wish to bother, I will shop for you.

WHAT is a home without a baby and an Eden washing machine? Decidedly incomplete. Half the drudgery in a home can be saved by installing an Eden. It cannot blow out fuses, it cannot connect with the electricity until securely locked against accident. For the other hundred reasons why you should have an Eden see Mr. Gray at The General Supply Co., 13th and P streets.

HAVE you a Piggly Wiggly shelf? It is wonderfully convenient and an unbelievable saving of time and money. Piggly Wiggly, you know "helps those that help themselves." You can walk once around their store and gather up all sorts of dainties, necessities and emergency cans for the top shelf, or the Piggly Wiggly shelf. The saving? Well, judge for yourself. No. 3 cans of broken slices pineapple sell for 27 cents. Ordinarily No. 3 cans of sliced pineapple sell for 45 cents. And the slices are only slightly broken. They are delicious for fruit salad, Dutch pineapple cake, for breakfast, lunch and dinner. By keeping a Piggly Wiggly shelf the business woman always has a meal on tap, the housekeeper is never embarrassed by unexpected company. Why, everybody should have a Piggly Wiggly shelf? It is becoming the fashion.

Dear Modern Eve: I wish you might see some of our chic young women on the roof gardens of New York. They were never more smart or unusual. Many are wearing chiffon frocks, plain to the knees and then wide, Oh so wide! is the flare. When they dance, yards and yards of chiffon float about through the air. It reminds one of the "Dance of the Seven Veils."

ELECTRIC sewing machines are sending to the background all other kinds. No wonder. Almost no expense to operate, no more backaches, no more clumsy furniture in these modern homes and apartments. A very late model is the Rockford electric. It is made of solid black walnut, has a cabinet cover look so that it can be tucked away when not in use much as we do our portable typewriters. This machine comes fully equipped for $66 and plenty of time to pay the bill. See the machine in the window at the Crystal Furniture Company, 1223 P street.

IF you want the "windows of your soul" to have dark lashes and expressive brows, send $1 to Dr. Irene Ward, 920 Forest, ave., Kansas City for permanent eyelash stain. It does not rub off.

THE perky autumn hats are here—some of them. At Ben Simon and Sons the cutest new models imaginable are now displayed and the prices are extremely reasonable, from $5 up. Purples and pansy shades seem to be in the lead. Mrs. Yarwood, is now in New York buying the last minute creations and they will arrive daily beginning Wednesday. Each morning will bring a new stock of the latest, and most approved millinery in both small and large hats. There will be models for maids and matrons, large and small head size. Mrs. Yarwood assures me that these hats will be within the reach of every woman whether she has little or much to spend. She has all of Lincoln in mind while buying in the east.

JUST as the renowned Parisian dressmakers interpret the vogue in costumes so does Kathleen Mary Quinlan decree the fashions in cosmetics. This season she declares that rouge shall be brilliant red. Miss Quinlan has blended a series of pure, adherent rouges to bring the flattering blush of youth to the wafer thin gold case. There is the languid complexion. Delicately perfumed, the rouge is tucked in a wafer thin gold case. There is the Blush, a cream rouge in light and dark, the Pimpernel, the rich cardinal, and the Petunia in the dry rouge. Miss Quinlan recommends Pimpernel for medium, Petunia for brunets and Crushed Coral for blonds. The Sun Drug company in the Telephone building, handles the Quinlan toiletries in Lincoln.

IF you want a beautiful fur coat, very latest model, at a discount, see the marvelous selection at Cadwallers', 1010 Q street. Everything from seal to caracul is displayed in finished garments. During August the discount is from 20 per cent to 33⅓ per cent. Mr. Cadwaller invites women who are contemplating the purchase of a fur garment to come in and make a selection while the choice models are on display. Make a payment down and request that the garment be placed in cold storage so that it will be ready for you on an hours notice. If you want a coat made to order now is the time to confer with Mr. Cadwaller for you have the choice skins to select from, also you avoid the rush which is bound to effect workmanship later in the season.

TO be wrapped in the folds of a lovely silk kimono is the feeling of luxury that every woman craves. And women who are coming to Lincoln for the fair, women who are going on a trip or women who are to be at home for the winter, need new negligee if their old ones are soiled or worn. Gorgeously beautiful are the silk robes at the Kimono Shop, 1343 O street.

RENT a kodak for a day, 25 cents go kodaking or picnicing and then take your films back where you rented the kodak—to Walter Johnson's Sugar Bowl 1552 O street. They develop, finish, enlarge and tint your kodak pictures expertly—even beautifully for a few thin dimes.

CURE your weak, tired red eyes with the Quinlan eye lotion and eye packs. These preparations not only relieve the strain and correct the filmy vision but they make the eyes more beautiful. The Sun Drug company carries the Quinlan preparations.

A PAIR of scissors in the hands of a novice means ruin, but if you want a fashionable hair cut, the kind Mme. Louise writes about from Budapest, go to the Giffen Beaute Shoppe, 1340 M street. Mrs. Lewis' barber does the famous French stripping that brings heavy hair nestling around the ears.

DO you have trouble keeping your ice box cold during the high temperature? Is the ice box damp? Does it collect odor? Do the tracks of the ice man muddy the floor? Does your milk sour and your food spoil in warm weather? These are questions asked by the people who are equipping the modern homes and apartments with Frigidaire. A Frigidaire system can be installed in any refrigerator. The temperature is always the same. The inside of the box is always dry and odorless. The trays are always filled with ice in cubes ready to use. I want to tell you how to make frozen desserts without the least bit of trouble or worry or litter but that will come next week. The Delco Light Co., 1121 P street will demonstrate the advantages of Frigidaire.

HOW often I have heard women say, "If only I could get a permanent that would look natural and not like a Fiji Islander." If you have a flat wind, plenty of curls, an expert operator, and then take care of your hair afterwards you can have a beautiful, soft permanent wave. Mrs. Maus who conducts the beauty parlor at Mayer Brothers, has a new Nestle machine. She assured me that her operators give the flat wind, which is necessary to make the permanent-marcel, that it takes approximately forty curls for a heavy head of hair, and that one operator does all the winding. Two operators winding on one head will make two different kinds of curls which is not desirable. If you get your permanent right now it will cost you but $10.

May I assist you with your shopping? Describe articles carefully and, unless you have charge accounts in the Lincoln stores, send check or money order. Address me in care of Lincoln Star.

MODERN EVE.

"Tell Me How you reduced"

Perhaps millions of people have asked millions of others that question in late years. And the answer is often Marmola.

Consider how conditions have changed since Marmola came into use. That was 18 years ago. Then excess fat was common. The only ways to reduction were through abnormal exercise and diet.

Then medical research discovered the factors in Marmola which act on the cause of fat. The result was the famous Marmola Prescription which now comes in tablet form.

Look about you and note the result. Excess fat is now uncommon. Slender figures, beautiful and fashionable, dominate every circle.

Marmola acts on the cause of fat in a scientific way. We state every ingredient, and explain exactly how results come. Every user knows the reason for reduction. The use has grown until 100,000 boxes of Marmola are now used every month.

Excess fat is a blight to beauty, to health and to efficiency. There is now an easy way to combat it—a scientific way. People all about you now employ it. Will you not let us explain and prove that that method means to you? Do that in fairness to yourself.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Send this coupon for our latest book 2 25-ct. sample free and our guarantee. Clip it now

ALL SET FOR ASSEMBLY AT EPWORTH PARK

Grounds In First Class Condition; Many Inquiries Made.

The twenty-ninth annual Nebraska Epworth assembly opens Wednesday evening, August 5, at Epworth Lake park. Inquiries indicate about average interest in the assembly this year, Pres. E M Avery says, and his seven or eight years in helping manage the assembly lead him to predict this years gathering will be at least an average one, with about 1,200 campers on the grounds.
"If the unprecedented attendance at the Epworth League Institute is any indication," President Avery said Saturday, "we may expect a corresponding increase in the assembly."
The program this year, is uniformly good from day to day. President Avery believes, and studious effort has been made to curb the tendency to a "peak" of attractions. The religious side of the program is being stressed by giving almost the entire mornings to Bible conferences and round table discussions conducted by prominent ministers.
The assembly board is depending upon receipts this year to wipe out the $2,500 deficit remaining from 1924.
"We feel that we ought to enjoy the co-operation of the people of Lincoln," said President Avery, voicing the board's sentiment.
"The assembly is a state enterprise, but the city of Lincoln should feel some responsibility for support and encouraging it."

Registration Large.

Registration is already large. All of the eighty cottages on the grounds, housing from two to eight persons each, have been rented for the eight days, President Avery said, and many lots are already rented by those who intend to come in with automobile camping outfits
The park is virtually prepared and finishing touches are now being put upon the physical features of the grounds.
The streets have been cindered, new electric pumps have been installed at the main well, the electric lighting system has been thoroughly tested, the weeds and grass mowed and the trees trimmed, the platform and seats in the auditorium rebuilt, and a footbridge remodeled
The tennis courts are in good condition, volley ball courts, baseball diamonds and horseshoe pitching alleys are prepared. The lake is full and boats have been launched.
President Avery has definite assurance from all attractions there will be no interruptions.
Among the outstanding speakers on the program are Dr. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the house of representatives; Elmer E. Thomas, federal prohibition director in Nebraska, and Judge Frank P Sadler formerly of the Chicago Municipal court.
The Bible conferences, to be held daily from 9 to 10 a m, will be led August 6, 7, and 8 by Dr. F. W. Hannan, professor of theology in the Drew Theological seminary, and on August 10, 11 and 12 by Pres. E. Guy Cutshall of the Iliff School of Theology.

Miss Gladys Marshall of University Place is in charge of junior activities. She will hold play hours from 9 to 11 a. m, with a program varied from day to day, and from 2 to 3 o'clock an hour of story telling and instruction.
The program Wednesday night will begin at 8 o'clock with assembly singing, a duet by Mr and Mrs Armstrong, and a solo by Miss Josephine L Avery of University Place. The Lincoln Bel Canto quartet will give a 25-minute program

University Notes

Dr. G. O. Condra, of the department of conservation and survey, has been making re-checks of soil survey work in Southeastern Nebraska the last week. He will speak Monday before the Farmers' club and the Chamber of Commerce of Nebraska City at Goose Hill, near Nebraska City.

The Boys and Girls clubs of southwestern Nebraska were entertained last week at the Nebraska School of Agriculture at Curtis. There were more than 230 present, it was reported by Supt. C K. Morse. Special work was given the boys in fitting and judging livestock and special work for the girls was given in sewing and cooking. Registration in the school will take place September 10, 11 and 12, with classes starting Monday following. The full year's work is offered in eight months, giving an extra month at home. This is accomplished by lengthening the class hours, which does not lower the standard of the school.

A dinner for all women in the university will be given Thursday at 6 p. m. at the Temple cafeteria. Definite plans have not been announced.

Director P. H. Grummann of the school of fine arts, and Mrs. Grummann, left Thursday by auto for Minneapolis where they will visit their son, Herbert Grummann.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thompson, the latter of the extension division, expect to leave today for Morristown, Tenn., where they will visit relatives, later making a tour of the east, returning by way of Canada.

The registrar's office has announced that no students, whether graduates or undergraduates, will be admitted to classes hereafter, unless registration has been completed.

Prof. T. J. Thompson, of the department of chemistry with Harry H Powers, have issued a bulletin on the variation of certain blood constituents of chicks during the molting season. The report was published in Poultry Science, the June-July issue.

Dr Frank P. Graves, who will speak before summer school students August 10, at 4 p. m., is president of the university of the state of New York, and commissioner of education for that state He has had experience that especially qualifies him as a speaker to summer school students, having been president of the University of Wyoming, the University of Washington, dean of the teachers college, University of Missouri and professor of the history of education in several institutions. He is also widely known as an author on the history of education. His subject will be "The Function of Leadership."

A suggestion for a perpetual calendar, by Prof. A L. Candy, is featured in a bulletin issued by the extension division the last week. It is not necessary, according to the bulletin, to make a radical change in the calendar now in use to secure a perpetual calendar. One day is taken from March and one day from August, and added to February; one day is taken from May and added to April; and the last of December is set apart for "New Years Day." A "Mid-summer Holiday" is included in the plan. This makes the year consist of four equal parts with three months, of ninety-one days in each quarter. Such a calendar could be put into effect some year when the first day of January falls on Monday, according to the plan, without causing any appreciable disturbance of the large affairs of the world. No important anniversaries in this country would be changed

The final examination of Lowry Charles Wimberly, for the degree of philosophy, was held Saturday, August 1. The degree was taken in anthropology, with a minor in English. The examination was conducted by a committee consisting of Prof. Hutton Webster, chairman, Prof. Joyce O. Hertzler, Prof. Hattie Plum Williams, Prof. Louise Pound, Prof G. O. Virtue, Prof. A. A. Reed and Prof. S Mills Hayes. The candidate received his A. B degree from the university in 1915 and his master's degree in 1920. He is an instructor in the department of English.

C. O. Weber, of the department of psychology, has resigned to accept a position as assistant professor of philosophy at Wells (t in geourses in applied psychology and the history of science, and has been in charge of the psychology clinic. Plans are under way for William H Werkman to take over those courses. Mr. Weber this summer completed studies of inmates in several state institutions, and will publish the work in the Journal of Criminal Law and the Journal of Applied Psychology.

Co. F. E. Jewett, commandant of the university R. O. T. C. corps, and family arrived recently in Lincoln paratory to the fall term Col. Jewand are arranging their affairs preett comes to the University from St. Leavenworth, Kan

The upper photograph is of the first medical or bed unit of the Lincoln Methodist hospital, as it appears now in process of construction at Fairview, the William Jennings Bryan estate, part of which was deeded to the Methodist church by the Commoner for use as a hospital site. This unit contains space for seventeen beds. Most of the other units, to be built later, will hold eighteen. It will represent an investment of about $30,000 when complete
The lower photograph is of the surgical and maternity unit as it appears now, up to the level of the main floor. It will have two floors, including the one shown. The other units of this type will have only one floor. The lower floor of this building is to be taken up by the kitchen and X-ray department. The second floor contains operiaing rooms, laboratories, surgical dressing and accident receiving rooms, eye, ear, nose and throat room, supply rooms, pharmacy and doctors' rooms. It will cost about $100,000 complete.
Both structures will be finished sometime in the fall, but the date of opening has not been set by the hospital board. They are of pressed brick with white mortar joints, trimmed in white stone and will be covered with variegated slate roofs Both are Colonial in style and are of fireproof construction.
The general ground plan shown below, prepared by the architects, Fiske, Meginnis & Schaumberg outlines the future development contemplated at present

Power House Next.

Forty-eighth street is at the left of the plant, and Summer along the bottom. The surgical unit photographed above is to the left of the center of the plan, and is lettered "operating unit." The bed unit shown above is the one on the left of the north group of three words east of the surgical unit
After the power house, the wing of the surgical unit paralleling the first bed ward will be built, and then the adjoining administration building At the same time the second bed unit, at the right of the one now being constructed, will be begun.
The remainder of the plans are just now a long way from being fulfilled.
The drives on the left of the administration building and surgical unit will probably be of white stone. They may be paved. Neither Forty-eigth nor Summer is paved at present past the hospital site.
The probable change now being contemplated from a Lincoln Methodist hospital to Bryan Memorial hospital may bring some difference in the plans, but with the funeral of the great Commoner but a few days in the past, A. R. Talbot, president of the board of trustees, has not yet approached the Bryan family on the project.

LINCOLN MUSICIANS' ASSOCATION.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. O'Neal returned last week from a two weeks automobile trip to Danville, Ill., where they visited with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Kurth and daughter are spending their vacation motoring in Minnesota and Illinois and will return to Lincoln the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Capps and son spent the past two weeks at Blair, Neb., with Mr. Capps' parents.

Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Marx leave tomorrow for a two weeks automobile trip to various places in Colorado.

Vernon A. Forbes is spending the summer with relatives at Fruita, Colo., and will return to Lincoln the last of August.

According to the London Referee, Paul Whiteman has signed a contract for his band and himself to appear at the Kit Cat, the new West End dance club of London, presumably during the present summer. This will be his first appearance there since three years ago, when he was the sensation at the Grafton Galleries' club. Vincent Lopez, who has been appearing with great success at the London Hippodrome as The Jazz Master, has returned to America, and his place is taken by Winifred Arthur and an all-British jazz band (male) of twenty-odd players. The show has been renamed The Jazz Mistress.

Owing to the great popularity of Erik Satie in the last few years, his death occasioned wide-spread sorrow. He left some extraordinary compositions, and as time goes on they will probably be looked upon as even greater. Critics have termed his Trois Gymnopedies and Trois Gnoissiennes as remarkable.

Haydn Wood, one of the most popular of English composers, has repeated his great success of Roses of Picardy with two new numbers, "I Look Into Your Garden," and "The Valley of Roses." There have been no adverse criticisms or comparison to his great ballad Roses of Picardy. It is quite unusual when a composer who has had such overwhelming success comes back with two numbers which are endorsed immediately.

The largest crowd in an experience of Stadium concerts, covering the entire eight years of their existence, turned out for the Denishawn dancers in New York City. There was not a seat anywhere in the huge ampitheater nor on the field, and hundreds stood in both places. Such a great audience here was a picturesque, almost thrilling sight, the whole Stadium dotted with tiny flares as matches were lit so that programs might be read. Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn and their troupe presented a program, of which the high light was their own group of Spanish dances and the American square dances of post-bellum days.

Wheatley Back From Singing At St. Louis Opera

Walter Wheatley returned recently from a weeks' visit to St. Louis, where he was guest artist with the Municipal Open air Theater in that city. Mr Wheatley sang in six per-

Yvonne D'Arle of the Metropolitan Opera, N. Y., was the soprano. This open air theater, which seats 10,000 persons is a pride of St. Louis. Mr. Wheatley states capacity audiences were present during this engagement and established an attendance record.

Light operas, such as "Robin Hood", "Chocolate Soldier", and the "Merry Widow" are more often produced by the civic group, and the recent presentation of the "Cavalleria Rusticana' was the first time a grand opera has been produced. A chorus of ninety voices and the sixty-piece orchestra, presenting an outdoor program in theater in Forest Park is providing popular.

The Municipal Opera company is controlled by an association of prominent St. Louis citizens. All profits returned to the company. In addition to subscription seats at various prices up to $2 00, 1,000 free seats are provided.

University Notes

A publication dealing with operating expenses of grocery stores in Nebraska will be issued soon by the college of Business Administration, through the extension division. The pamphlet is now in press.

Prof. Charles Fordyce returned last week from the state teachers college at Aberdeen, South Dakota, where he devilered a series of convocation lectures on the "Psychology of the Child," and the proper methods of educational treatment. He spoke Saturday at the state boy's camp at Columbus on "Forces that Build Boys into Manhood."

USES SILK SHAWLS.

Silk fringed shawls of hand-embroidered net as delicate as gossamer wings were features of the wardrobe of Isabelle, Infanta of Spain, on the occasion of her recent visit to Biarritz. A large pink, feathery ostrich fan, pink and black straw hats and handsome jeweled bags were appropriate accessories.

The simple grace of georgette in dance frock, in pink and in yellow, was revealed in another window. Each model had a snug sleeveless basque and circular skirt. The distinctive feature was two strands of three tulips each, in velvet, extending down the sides of the skirt. A cloth of gold coat, with summer fur collar draped over a chair, beaded bags, perfumes and accessories for evening, completed the setting.

Tube Sockets.

Have all the tubes resting properly in sockets. See that the springs are "springy," and that they exert enough upward pressure to keep the bulbs tight against the bayonet lock of the socket.

Radio Digest

Battery Lore.

When charging a battery, always open the vent caps so that the gas can escape. The temperature of the battery will go up entirely too high if the vent caps are not removed, and the battery may become damaged beyond repair.

Resistance.

Some grades of carbon have almost 50,000 times the resistance of copper. Grid leaks and other resistance units needed for radio sets are made of carbon mixed with other materials to vary the resistance over given range.

The Soldering Iron.

It is virtually impossible to make a soldered connection with a red-hot soldering iron. The tool must be hot, but if it turns cherry colored while being heated, it should be allowed to cool a little before any work is attempted with it.

Static and Tubes.

Before a severe thunder storm, it is a good plan to disconnect both aerial and ground wires from the binding posts on the receiving set. The lead-in wires alone may become charged and let heavy static get into the set, thereby damaging the tubes.

Faulty Filament Contacts.

A defect other than a burnt-out tube may be the cause of a vacuum tube's failure to light. The "A" battery switch or connections may be open dirty, dirty contacts of the rheostat, socket or tube tips, or the tube may not be seated properly in the socket.

Getting Results With a Loop.

To get good results out of a loop antenna, a set should be used that is designed especially for the purpose. Such a receiver generally uses from one to three more stages of radio-frequency amplification. For loud speaker operation, at least four or five tubes should be used.

Radio Broadcasting.

Speaking by radio telephone is done without effort. The voice is not raised higher than in ordinary conversation in fact not so loud as over the ordinary telephone. The speaker stands or sits a foot or more from the microphone, depending on the strength and quality of the voice. The microphone serves the same purpose as the telephone transmitter. It is designed to pick up the sound waves and convert them into electrical energy. Sound waves carry the words to the diphragm of the microphone, causing it to vibrate, and this vibration causes corresponding changes in the current flowing in the circuit. After speech is impressed upon the electric circuit, it is forwarded over the wires to the control room of the station where low power amplifiers increase the power to about one watt. High power amplifiers then increase the energy to about 20 watts, thus preparing the voice currents to control the radiaphone transmitter, with its power of 500 watts. The current is passed through vacuum tubes known as modulators. Their duty is to modulate or mold the continuous wave into the form of the voice. Transmitting tubes contain the same elements as the smaller tubes used in receiving sets but they are much larger and more powerful.

From the Notebook.

Some had tubes, when used as detectors, are very noisy when subject to the slightest jar.

In wiring a set, do not crowd wires. It is better to have a bulky set than one improperly wired.

An aerial insulator should be of glass or porcelain, moolded in one solid piece without any metal parts.

Wires that are not joined together with solder will corroda by the action of the weather and the resistance of the joints with be increased.

Radiograms.

There are 3,000 manufacturers of radio sets and accessories in the United States.

Broadcasting of after-dinner speeches in England may be abandoned owing to protests of radio fans.

Radio installation at St. Peter's, in Rome, for broadcasting is said to have been approved by the Pope.

Twenty-two new stations were licensed in the United States during June, and 21 stations stopped broadcasting.

A life-term prisoner at the state penitentiary, in Jefferson City, Mo., was recently given his first glimpse of progress during the years he has been confined by allowing him to listen in on a radio set. He was given a radio receiving outfit for his cell.

ALL SET FOR ASSEMBLY AT EPWORTH PARK

Grounds In First Class Condition; Many Inquiries Made.

The twenty-ninth annual Nebraska Epworth assembly opens Wednesday evening, August 5, at Epworth Lake park. Inquiries indicate about average interest in the assembly this year, Pres. E. M. Avery says, and his seven or eight years in helping manage the assembly lead him to predict this years gathering will be at least an average one, with about 1,200 campers on the grounds.

"If the unprecedented attendance at the Epworth League institute is any indication," President Avery said Saturday, "we may expect a corresponding increase in the assembly."

The program this year, is uniformly good from day to day, President Avery believes, and studious effort has been made to curb the tendency to a "peak" of attractions. The religious side of the program is being stressed by giving almost the entire mornings to Bible conferences and round table discussions conducted by prominent ministers.

The assembly board is depending upon receipts this year to wipe out the $2,500 deficit remaining from 1924.

"We feel that we ought to enjoy the co-operation of the people of Lincoln," said President Avery, voicing the board's sentiment.

Registration Large.

Registration is already large. All of the eighty cottages on the grounds, housing from two to eight persons each, have been rented for the eight days, President Avery said, and many lots are already rented by those who intend to come in with automobile camping outfits.

The park is virtually prepared and finishing touches are now being put upon the physical features of the grounds.

The streets have been cindered, new electric pumps have been installed at the main well, the electric lighting system has been thoroughly tested, the weeds and grass mowed and the trees trimmed, the platform and seats in the auditorium rebuilt, and a footbridge remodeled.

The tennis courts are in good condition, volley ball courts, baseball diamonds and horseshoe pitching alleys are prepared. The lake is full and boats have been launched.

President Avery has definite assurance from all attractions there will be no interruptions.

The Bible conferences, to be held daily from 9 to 10 a m, will be led August 6, 7, and 8 by Dr. F. W. Hannan, professor of theology in the Drew Theological seminary, and on August 10, 11 and 12 by Pres. E. Guy Cutshall of the Iliff School of Theology.

Play Time Arranged.

Rev. Corwin Taylor, fresh from fifteen years of work in Korea, will address the assembly the afternoon of August 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Armstrong will conduct the assembly music again this year.

Charles C. Stanton is back in charge of senior activities. He plans to hold baseball games, boat racing, tennis and volley ball tournaments from 6:30 to 9 a. m. and games from stunts adopted for social groups in the church from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

Miss Gladys Marshall of University Place is in charge of junior activities. She will hold play hours from 9 to 11 a. m., with a program varied from day to day, and from 2 to 3 o'clock an hour of story telling and instruction.

The program Wednesday night will begin at 8 o'clock with assembly singing, a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, and a solo by Miss Josephine L. Avery of University Place. The Lincoln Bel Canto quartet will give a 25-minute program.

University Notes

Florence I. McGahey, university registrar, is expected to return today from a vacation period spent at Wequetonsing, Mich.

Dr. G. O. Condra, of the department of conservation and survey, has been making re-checks of soil survey work in Southeastern Nebraska the last week. He will speak Monday before the Farmers' club and the Chamber of Commerce of Nebraska City at Goose Hill, near Nebraska City.

The Boys and Girls clubs of southwestern Nebraska were entertained last week at the Nebraska School of Agriculture at Curtis. There were more than 230 present, it was reported by Supt. C. K. Morse. Special work was given the boys in fitting and judging livestock and special work for the girls was given in sewing nad cooking. Registration in the school will take place September 10, 11 and 12, with classes starting Monday following. The full year's work is offered in eight months, giving an extra month at home. This is accomplished by lengthening the class hours, which does not lower the standard of the school.

A dinner for all women in the university will be given Thursday at 6 p. m. at the Temple cafeteria. Definite plans have not been announced.

Director P. H. Grummann of the school of fine arts, and Mrs. Grummann, left Thursday by auto for Minneapolis where they will visit their son, Herbert Grummann.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Thompson, the latter of the extension division, expect to leave today for Morristown, Tenn., where they will visit relatives, later making a tour of the east, returning by way of Canada.

The registrar's office has announced that no students, whether graduates or undergraduates, will be admitted to classes hereafter, unless registration has been completed.

Prof. T. J. Thompson, of the department of chemistry with Harry H. Powers, have issued a bulletin on the variation of certain blood constituents of chicks during the molting season. The report was published in Poultry Science, the June-July issue.

Dr. Frank P. Graves, who will speak before summer school students August 10, at 4 p. m., is president of the university of the state of New York, and commissioner of education for that state. He has had experience that especially qualifies him as a speaker to summer school students, having been president of the University of Wyoming, the University of Washington, dean of the teachers college, University of Missouri and professor of the history of education in several institutions. He is also widely known as an author on the history of education. His subject will be "The Function of Leadership."

A suggestion for a perpetual calendar, by Prof. A. L. Candy, is featured in a bulletin issued by the extension division the last week. It is not necessary, according to the bulletin, to make a radical change in the calendar now in use to secure a perpetual calendar. One day is taken from March and one day from August, and added to February; one day is taken from May and added to April; and the last of December is set apart for " New Years Day." A "Mid-summer Holiday" is included in the plan. This makes the year consist of four equal parts with three months, of ninety-one days in each quarter. Such a calendar could be put into effect some year when the first day of January falls on Monday, according to the plan, without causing any appreciable disturbance of the large affairs of the world. No important anniversaries in this country would be changed.

The final examination of Lowry Charles Wimberly, for the degree of philosophy, was held Saturday, August 1. The degree was taken in anthropology, with a minor in English. The examination was conducted by a committee consisting of Prof. Hutton Webster, chairman, Prof. Joyce O. Hertzler, Prof. Hattie Plum Williams, Prof. Louise Pound, Prof. G. O. Virtue, Prof. A. A. Reed and Prof. S. Mills Hayes. The candidate received his A. B. degree from the university in 1816 and his master's degree in 1920. He is an instructtor in the department of English.

At in gcourses in applied psychology and the history of science, and has been in charge of the psychology clinic. Plans are under way for William H. Werkman to take over those courses. Mr. Weber this summer completed studies of inmates in several state institutions, and will publish the work in the Journal of Criminal Law and the Journal of Applied Psychology.

Co. F. F. Jewett, commandant of the university R. O. T. C. corps, and family arrived recently in Lincoln paratory to the fall term. Col. Jewand are arranging their affairs preett comes to the University from St. Leavenworth, kan.

The upper photograph is of the first medical or bed unit of the Lincoln Methodist hospital, as it appears now in process of construction at Fairview, the William Jennings Bryan estate, part of which was deeded to the Methodist church by the Commoner for use as a hospital site. This unit contains space for seventeen beds. Most of the other units, to be built later, will hold eighteen. It will represent an investment of about $30,000 when complete.

The lower photograph is of the surgical and maternity unit as it appears now, up to the level of the main floor. It will have two floors, including the one shown. The other units of this type will have only one floor. The lower floor of this building is to be taken up by the kitchen and X-ray department. The second floor contains operating rooms, laboratories, surgical dressing and accident receiving rooms, eye, ear, nose and throat room, supply rooms, pharmacy and doctors' rooms. It will cost about $100,000 complete.

Both structures will be finished sometime in the fall, but the date of opening has not been set by the hospital board. They are of pressed brick with white mortar joints, trimmed in white stone and will be covered with variegated slate roofs. Both are Colonial in style and are of fireproof construction.

Power House Next.

Forty-eighth street is at the left of the plant, and Summer along the bottom. The surgical unit photographed above is to the left of the center of the plan, and is lettered "operating unit." The bed unit shown above is the one on the left of the north group of three words east of the surgical unit.

After the power house, the wing of the surgical unit paralleling the first bed ward will be built, and then the adjoining administration building. At the same time the second bed unit, at the right of the one now being constructed, will be begun.

The remainder of the plans are just now a long way from being fulfilled.

The drives on the left of the administration building and surgical unit will probobly be of white stone. They may be paved. Neither Forty-eigth nor Summer is paved at present past the hospital site.

The probable change now being contemplated from a Lincoln Methodist hospital to Bryan Memorial hospital may bring some difference in the plans, but with the funeral of the great Commonor but a few days in the past, A. R. Talbot, president of the board of trustees, has not yet approached the Bryan family on the project.

The Musical World

LINCOLN MUSICIANS' ASSOCIATION.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. O'Neal returned last week from a two weeks automobile trip to Danville, Ill., where they visited with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Kurth and daughter are spending their vacation motoring in Minnesota and Illinois and will return to Lincoln the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Capps and son spent the past two weeks at Blair, Neb., with Mr. Capps' parents.

Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Marx leave tomorrow for a two weeks automobile trip to various places in Colorado.

Vernon A. Forbes is spending the summer with relatives at Fruita, Colo., and will return to Lincoln the last of August.

According to the London Referee, Paul Whiteman has signed a contract for his band and himself to appear at the Kit Cat, the new West End dance club of London, presumably during the present summer. This will be his first appearance there since three years ago, when he was the sensation at the Grafton Galleries' club. Vincent Lopez, who has been appearing with great success at the London Hippodrome as The Jazz Master, has returned to America, and his place is taken by Winifred Arthur and an all-British jazz band (malu) of twenty-odd players. The show has been renamed The Jazz Mistress.

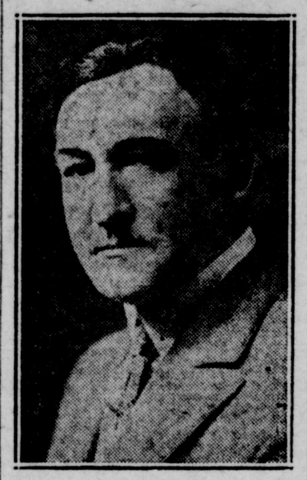
Owing to the great popularity of Erik Satie in the last few years, his death occasioned wide-spread sorrow. He left some extraordinary compositions, and as time goes on they will probably be looked upon as even greater. Critics have termed his Trois Gymnopedies and Trois Gnoissiennes as remarkable.

Haydn Wood, one of the most popular of English composers, has repeated his great success of Roses of Picardy with two new numbers, "I Look Into Your Garden," and "The Valley of Roses." There have been no adverse criticisms or comparison to his great ballad Roses of Picardy. It is quite unusual when a composer who has had such overwhelming success comes back with two numbers which are endorsed immediately.

The largest crowd in an experience of Stadium concerts, covering the entire eight years of their existence, turned out for the Denishawn dancers in New York City. There was not a seat anywhere in the huge ampitheater nor on the field, and hundreds stood in both places. Such a great audience here was a picturesque, almost thrilling sight, the whole Stadium dotted with tiny flares as matches were lit so that programs might be read. Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn and their troupe presented a program, of which the high light was their own group of Spanish dances and the American square dances of post-bellum days.

Wheatley Back From Singing At St. Louis Opera

Walter Wheatley returned recently from a weeks' visit to St. Louis, where he was guest artist with the Municipal Open air Theater in that city. Mr Wheatley sang in six performances of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," taking the tenor role of Turiddu.



Yvonne D'Arle of the Metropolitan Opera, N. Y., was the soprano. This open air theater, which seats 10,000 persons is a pride of St. Louis. Mr. Wheatley states capacity audiences were present during this engagement and established an attendance record.

Light operas, such as "Robin Hood", Chocolate Soldier", and the "Merry Widow' are more often produced by the civic group, and the recent presentation of the "Cavalleria Rusticana' was the first time a grand opera has been produced. A chorus of ninety voices and the sixty-piece orchestra, presenting an outdoor program in theater in Forest Park is providing popular.

The Municipal Opera company is controlled by an association of prominent St. Louis citizens.. All profits returned to the company. In addition to subscription seats at various prices up to $2.00, 1,000 free seats are provided.

USES SILK SHAWLS.

Silk fringed shawls of hand-embroidered net as delicate as gossamer wings were features of the wardrobe of Isabelle, Infanta of Spain, on the occasion of her recent visit to Biarritz. A large pink, feathery ostrich fan, pink and black straw hats and handsome jeweled bags were appropriate accessories.

The simple grace of georgette in dance frock, in pink and in yellow, was revealed in another window. Each model had a snug sleeveless basque and circular skirt. The distinctive feature was two strands of three tulips each, in velvet, extending down the sides of the skirt. A cloth of gold coat, with summer fur colklar draped over a chair, beaded bags, perfumes and accessories for evening, completed the setting.

Tube Sockets.

Have all the tubes resting properly in sockets. See that the springs are "springy," and that they exert enough upward pressure to keep the bulbs tight against the bayonet lock of the socket.

University Notes

A publication dealing with operating expenses of grocery stores in Nebraska will be issued soon by the college of Business Administration, through the extension division. The pamphlet is now in press.

Prof. Charles Fordyce returned last week from the state teachers college at Aberdeen, South Dakota, where he devilered a series of convocation lectures on the "Psychology of the Child," and the proper methods of educational treatment. He spoke Saturday at the state boy's camp at Columbus on "Forces that Build Boys into Manhood."

Radio Digest

Battery Lore.

When charging a battery, always open the vent caps so that the gas can escape. The temperature of the battery will go up entirely too high if the vent caps are not removed, and the battery may become damaged beyond repair.

Resistance.

Some grades of carbon have almost 50,000 times the resistance of copper. Grid leaks and other resistance unites needed for radio sets are made of carbon mixed with other materials to vary the resistance over given range.

The Soldering Iron.

It is virtually impossible to make a soldered connection with a red-hot soldering iron. The tool must be hot, but if it turns cherry colored while being heated, it should be allowed to cool a little before any work is attempted with it.

Static and Tubes.

Before a severe thunder storm, it is a good plan to disconnect both aerial and ground wires from the binding posts on the receiving set. The lead-in wires alone may become charged and let heavy static get into the set, thereby damaging the tubes.

Faulty Filament Contacts.

A defect other than a burnt-out tube may be the cause of a vacuum tube's failure to light. The "A" battery switch or connections may be open dirty, dirty contacts of the rheostat, socket or tube tips, or the tube may not be seated properly in the socket.

Getting Results With a Loop.

To get good results out of a loop antenna, a set should be used that is designed especially for the purpose. Such a receiver generally uses from one to three more stages of radio-frequency amplification. For loud speaker operation, at least four or five tubes should be used.

Radio Broadcasting.

Speaking by radio telephone is done without effort. The voice is not daised higher than in ordinary conversation in fact not so loud as over the ordinary telephone. The speaker stands or sits a foot or more from the microphone, depending on the strength and quality of the voice. The microphone serves the same purpose as the telephone transmitter. It is designed to pick up the sound waves and convert them into tleectrial energy. Sound waves carry the words to the diphragm of the micorophone, causing it to vibrate, and this vibration causes corresponding changes in the current flowing in the circuit. After speech is impressed upon the electric circuit, it is forwarded over the wires to the control room of the station where low power amplifiers increase the power to about one watt. High power amplifiers then increase the energy to about 20 watts, thus preparing the voice currents to control the radiaphone transmitter, with its power of 500 watts. The current is passed through vacuum tubes known as modulators. Their duty is to modulate or mold the continuous wave into the form of the voice. Transmitting tubes contain the same elements as the smaller tubes used in receiving sets but they are much larger and more powerful.

From the Notebook.

A single rheostat may be used on two amplifying tubes.

A 5 per cent overload of filament may cut the life of tubes in half.

Using a jack and plug is an easy way of shifting from detector to amplifier.

Some had tubes, when used as detectors, are very noisy when subject to the slightest jar.

In wiring a set, do not crowd wires. It is better to have a bulky set than one improperly wired.

An aerial insulator should be of glass or porcelain, moolded in one solid piece without any metal parts.

Wires that are not joined together with solder will corrode by the action of the weather and the resistance of the joints with be increased.

Radiograms.

There are 3,000 manufacturers of radio sets and accessories in the United States.

Broadcasting of after-dinner speeches in England may be abandoned owing to protests of radio fans.

All the lighthouses on the coast of Great Britain are to be fitted with wireless transmitting sets.

Radio installation at St. Peter's, in Rome, for broadcasting is said to have been approved by the Pope.

Twenty-two new stations were licensed in the United States during June, and 21 stations stopped broadcasting.

A life-term prisoner at the state penitentiary, in Jefferson City, Mo., was recently given his first glimpse of progress during the years he has been confined by allowing him to listen in on a radio set. He was given a radio receiving outfit for his cell.

THE GUMPS

• SIDNEY SMITH •

NOW WHAT HAVE YOU BEEN UP TO?

LOOK – I CLIMBED UP IN THE BIG TREE AND FOUND A BIRD'S NEST – WON'T THE BIRD'S BE SURPRISED WHEN THEY COME HOME AND FIND THEIR FOUR EGGS HAVE DISAPPEARED?

I'M SURPRISED TO SEE A SON OF MINE LEARNING THE ART OF KIDNAPING – WHAT RIGHT HAVE YOU TO ROB A BEAUTIFUL BIRD'S NEST? HOW WOULD YOU LIKE IT IF A GREAT BIG BIRD PICKED YOU UP OUT OF YOUR BED AND FLEW AWAY WITH YOU?

I DIDN'T MEAN ANY HARM

DO YOU REALIZE THE FOUR EGGS YOU STOLE WOULD HAVE HATCHED OUT AND BECOME FOUR BEAUTIFUL LITTLE BIRDS IF YOU'D LEFT THAT NEST ALONE? IN FOUR OR FIVE YEARS THERE'D BE A WHOLE FLOCK OF BIRDS, ALL FROM THOSE FOUR EGGS –

I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT –

ALL YOU WERE THINKING ABOUT WAS YOU'R OWN PLEASURE – IF YOU WERE BRAVE ENOUGH TO ROB AN EAGLE'S NEST I WOULD ADMIRE YOU BUT ROBBING THE NEST OF POOR WEAK LITTLE BIRDS WHO ARE UNABLE TO DEFEND THEMSELVES DON'T PROVE YOU ARE A HERO –

GEE – I'M SORRY – I WISH I HADN'T TOUCHED THE EGGS AT ALL –

NOW SHOW ME WHERE THE NEST IS AND WE'LL TAKE THE EGGS BACK – AND NEVER LET ME CATCH YOU ROBBING A BIRD'S NEST AGAIN –

THE NEST IS IN THAT GREAT BIG TREE – IT'S A WAY UP NEAR THE TOP –

IT'S HARD TO CLIMB –

WHEN I WAS YOUR AGE I USED TO CLIMB TREES SO HIGH IT WOULD MAKE THIS ONE LOOK LIKE AN ASPARAGUS STALK –

BE CAREFUL, PAPA – THERE IS A HORNET'S NEST UP IN THAT TREE –

HEY! QUIT! I'M TRYING TO DO YOU A FAVOR –

BAM!

OH MIN!

THE GUMPS

SIDNEY SMITH

NOW WHAT HAVE YOU BEEN UP TO?

LOOK - I CLIMBED UP IN THE BIG TREE AND FOUND A BIRD'S NEST - WON'T THE BIRD'S BE SURPRISED WHEN THEY COME HOME AND FIND THEIR FOUR EGGS HAVE DISAPPEARED?

I'M SURPRISED TO SEE A SON OF MINE LEARNING THE ART OF KIDNAPING - WHAT RIGHT HAVE YOU TO ROB A BEAUTIFUL BIRD'S NEST? HOW WOULD YOU LIKE IT IF A GREAT BIG BIRD PICKED YOU UP OUT OF YOUR BED AND FLEW AWAY WITH YOU?

I DIDN'T MEAN ANY HARM

DO YOU REALIZE THE FOUR EGGS YOU STOLE WOULD HAVE HATCHED OUT AND BECOME FOUR BEAUTIFUL LITTLE BIRDS IF YOU'D LEFT THAT NEST ALONE? IN FOUR OR FIVE YEARS THERE'D BE A WHOLE FLOCK OF BIRDS, ALL FROM THOSE FOUR EGGS -

I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT -

ALL YOU WERE THINKING ABOUT WAS YOU'R OWN PLEASURE - IF YOU WERE BRAVE ENOUGH TO ROB AN EAGLE'S NEST I WOULD ADMIRE YOU BUT ROBBING THE NEST OF POOR WEAK LITTLE BIRDS WHO ARE UNABLE TO DEFEND THEMSELVES DON'T PROVE YOU ARE A HERO -

GEE - I'M SORRY - I WISH I HADN'T TOUCHED THE EGGS AT ALL -

NOW SHOW ME WHERE THE NEST IS AND WE'LL TAKE THE EGGS BACK - AND NEVER LET ME CATCH YOU ROBBING A BIRD'S NEST AGAIN -

THE NEST IS IN THAT GREAT BIG TREE - IT'S A WAY UP NEAR THE TOP -

IT'S HARD TO CLIMB -

BE CAREFUL, PAPA - THERE IS A HORNET'S NEST UP IN THAT TREE -

BAM!

OH MIN!
